No League for Colorado.
About Roosevelt and Mussolini.
Peggy Duncan and the Atom.
Rubber From Petroleum.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GEORGE H. SHAW ran against Mr. Hodges for the Republican senatorial nomination in Colorado. Shaw made his objection to the League of Nations, the International Bank and the League Court his chief issues, and won.

Mr. Hodges learned that official thinking done in Washington is not always the thinking that is done outside of Washington.

YESTERDAY, GOV. ROOSEVELT, of New York, came out in favor of repealing the prohibition amendment.

This means that the Democratic government and party of New York goes wet, hook, line and sinker. What is more serious for the drys, it probably will mean refusal of New York state authorities to co-operate in the suppression of bootlegging.

There will be, presumably, the usual co-operation WITH bootlegging, based in each case on a substantial consideration, but that is limited to the underworld and the sub-stratum of officialdom.

MUSSOLINI IS displeased about something, and Grandi, his representative at the League of Nations at Geneva, leaves suddenly, with no explanation, just as France is developing her plan for a "United States of Europe."

The difference between Mussolini and other European statesmen is that they talk and he acts. The League is much puzzled.

PEGGY DUNCAN, a powerful 19-year-old girl from South Africa, has conquered the English Channel, making the swim in 16 hours 15 minutes, but failing to beat Gertrude Ederle's record.

Miss Ederle can tell the young girl from South Africa that swimming the channel does not pay. You lose your hearing in the cold water and the world soon loses its recollection of you.

THE STRONG girl from South Africa is an interesting product of that group of white people transplanted on a dark continent.

At 15 she ran away from a convent school to enter a swimming race from Robben Island to Cape Town. Twelve started, six of them men. She alone finished, undisturbed by a man-eating shark that had to be harpooned.

YOU WILL be disappointed to hear about the proton, or "nucleus," the little central "sun" residing inside the atom, with electrons revolving around it.

Dr. Dirac, a physicist of Cambridge, only 30 years old, startles scientists with the statement that nothing in the universe is of any great consequence except the electron.

The proton, around which the other parts of the atom revolve, is only another electron, acting queerly, and charged with negative electricity, whereas the revolving electrons are positively charged.

YOU MAY FIND it impossible to explain how one electron can swell up to 1,800 times the size of its brothers, which is the difference in size between some electrons and protons. But you need not be ashamed of your ignorance. Professors that applauded Dr. Dirac's announcement admit that nine out of 10 would find his announcement too deep for them. It contains relativity, and the quantum theory, which is saying enough.

MORE IMPORTANT to millions of women than the scientific discovery about the atom's proton is another discovery reported to the American Chemical Society yesterday by Dr. MacArthur, of the University of Buffalo. He finds that one of the three sections of the pituitary gland contains a third hitherto unknown hormone, which affects "pigmentation." Thus the pituitary gland, which has so much to do with mental capacity, may also control the complexion.

YEARS AGO, when Mr. Edison and others began experimenting with various weeds and bushes, seeking a source of rubber here at home, it was suggested here that long before the experiments could amount to anything, some chemist would make a brand of rubber from petroleum independent of all vegetation.

NOW DR. BURGESS, director of the Bureau of Standards in Washington, announces that rubber crystals have been produced from petroleum, under the direction of Dr. Washburn, head of the chemical laboratory.

These cautious scientists confine themselves to hoping that these experiments "may be of use to the commercial world." They may indeed.

The rubber tree may, in a few years, be as unnecessary as the little female cochineal insect that once provided the world with scarlet, or the marine creatures that provided a beautiful purple before aniline dyes were produced.

INCIDENTALLY, RUBBER made from petroleum, accompanied by another automobile boom, would help take care of our so-called "oil surplus."

If you find an oil well that

VERONA OFFERS NEW BOARD

Alderman John J. Verona today submitted a new list of nominees to the Redistricting Commission for Third Ward election posts, following cross-charges made against candidates submitted by both the Joseph Englesberg and Verona factions.

No new list was submitted by the Engelsberg followers, though counter charges made by the Verona faction yesterday charged the nominees were racketeers, including operators of gambling establishments and bootleggers.

Like charges were made by the Engelsberg faction against Verona names.

CLOSED SESSION

Consideration of the names submitted by both factions will be taken up tomorrow by the commission, according to Chairman N. R. Criss. A closed meeting will be held at 10:30 o'clock when nominees will be selected for rec-

7 Filipinos Killed As Car, Train Crash

SALINAS, Cal., Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Seven Filipinos were killed today when their automobile was struck by a Southern Pacific train, the Coaster, in a spectacular grade-crossing crash two miles east of here. A puppy in the machine escaped unharmed.

Passengers on the train, many of them asleep, were shaken violently by the impact. The train, traveling 45 miles an hour, was en route from Los Angeles to San Francisco.

50 Hurt as Stromboli Volcano Erupts; Ships Rushing Aid to Stricken Villages

MESSINA, Italy, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—A score of persons are reported dead and 50 or more injured in the simultaneous eruption of Stromboli volcano and an earthquake on Stromboli Island, one of the Aeolian group near here.

When the eruption blew the volcano's cone high into the air a great stream of lava descended upon San Bartolo and other villages.

Four destroyers and torpedo boats, loaded with provisions, tents and medical supplies, as well as companies of city firemen, with officials, have been sent from Messina to assist the victims.

Later official reports said that Stromboli's activity returned to normal shortly afterward.

P. C. KNOX'S WIDOW DIES

Mrs. Lily Knox, 75, widow of Philander C. Knox, secretary of state during the administration of the late President William Howard Taft, died today in the Atlantic City Hospital.

Mrs. Knox was born on the North Side, where she lived for several years after her marriage. From the North Side Mrs. Knox and her husband moved to Ellsworth avenue and from there to Washington. For the past several years she had made her home in Valley Forge, Pa.

Death came today after an illness of several months. She leaves three sons, Reed, Hugh and Philander Knox, Jr.; one daughter, Mrs. James R. Tindle, of Valley Forge, and a niece, Mrs. Louisa W. Knox, of Brighton road.

Mrs. Knox went to Atlantic City early in the summer hoping to improve her health.

Gains at Polls Spur Anti-Drys To Press Fight

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—New ferment was poured into the cauldron of prohibition debate by the results of primaries in 10 states during the past three days.

The overthrow of several dry champions and the victories of several candidates opposed by the prohibition forces appeared one of the most interesting developments in the race.

The anti-prohibition cause received an encouraging impulse yesterday also from Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, who, after two-year silence on the question, placed himself on record as favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment with substitution of a statute granting each state control of intoxicants.

An official canvass of the vote is under way to determine whether Representative Louis C. Cramton, of Michigan, dean of the House dry leaders, has lost his seat to Jesse P. Wolcott, an anti-dry.

Revision of the original returns gave Wolcott a lead of 135 over Cramton, who up to that time had been credited with a majority of 75.

Wilber M. Brucker, attorney general, won the Republican nomination for governor of Michigan over Alex J. Groesbeck, former governor, in Tuesday's primary by about 5,000 votes.

DRY LEADERS LOSE

Among the losers was Representative Grant M. Hudson, a former Anti-Saloon League official.

PARENTS BACK PUPILS' STRIKE

Seventy-five public school pupils of Laurel Gardens, Ross Township, faced an indefinite respite from classes, today, after action of their parents last night in voting to battle in court, if necessary, to continue the holdout.

At the meeting, held in the Laurel Gardens municipal building, the township school board was called upon to provide a school building for the district, or provide suitable transportation.

Parents insisted it was unsafe for their children to trek nearly a mile through woods infested with dogs to the school in Perrysville. The only alternative, it was said, is a three-mile walk along a road, as the school board has refused to operate buses because of the steep hill at Laurel Garden.

County Superintendent of Schools C. E. Dickey continued his investigation today.

Coolidge Questions Value to Tariff Quiz

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 11.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The report that the Tariff Commission is about to start investigations of a wide variety of commodities will not give much encouragement to business.

The low tariff advocates first secured the flexible provisions of the law. When careful research under it showed rates were too low with the exception of some agricultural schedules, flexibility was abandoned by its former sponsors. New investigations would probably reveal about the same conditions.

Calvin Coolidge.

While we talk of a scientific tariff to balance the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, conditions change so fast that rates can be only approximate. We do not wish to exclude foreign goods, but to give our people only a fair chance in their own markets under our scale of wages and standards of living.

A very bad tariff would be better than constant agitation, uncertainty, foreign animosity, and change. We have recently had well over a year of tariff discussion with resulting injury to business. Hope for a purely scientific tariff will prove a delusion. Any prolonged investigations, covering many schedules, for the purpose of rewriting the law will do more harm than good. Many will be injured while none will be satisfied. And the country will not be benefited.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

INSPECTOR'S JOB GOING TO MOORE

Lieutenant Likely to Succeed Official Decapitated During 'Numbers' Feud

The highly-coveted and much-talked about commission of police inspection of the South Side district, from which John J. McArdle was toppled in a recent "numbers" row, will go to Harry E. Moore, now a North Side lieutenant, it was announced today by a political "big shot" who will attend a meeting early next week to formally select the new inspector.

The meeting will be held somewhere in the City-County Building, and has been called by Mayor Charles Kline, and will also be attended by Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh. Other men, prominent in politics, will be admitted to the meeting.

KLINE ASTONISHED

Mayor Kline, upon returning from a vacation abroad, was astonished to learn that McArdle, whom the South Side ward leaders denounced, and whom County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong upheld, had been decapitated by Clark's ax.

It was stated that Clark will officially inform the Mayor of the difficulties that forced his removal of McArdle "for the good of the service." That the Mayor will uphold his cabinet member is generally believed.

FORMER INSPECTOR

Lieut. Moore was formerly inspector of the South Side district in Kline's first administration. When the new police district in Mt. Washington was organized Lieut. Moore was appointed acting inspector with the understanding that the position would be made permanent. He was disappointed, for Dennis Hennessey, basking in the sunshine of the Mayor's affection, cornered the job. When McArdle was demoted, Moore was offered the job temporarily, but refused, saying that it interfered with his vacation plans.

CAHILL CANDIDATE

Close upon Moore's heels in the race for the new job is Lieut. Charles Cahill, who is now acting inspector of the Mt. Washington district. Both Moore and Cahill are said to be sponsored by the same political leaders, Magistrate Thomas D. Jones and Sam Reno.

A score of others have put out their hand for the job, but with Moore almost certain to be appointed they have little chance.

Technicality Bars 'Lost Judge' Quiz

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Lack of any allegation that a crime was committed today prevented Chief Magistrate Joseph B. Corrigan from ordering a John Doe inquiry into the disappearance of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater.

Corrigan, replying to District Attorney Crain's request for such an investigation, held he was without power to order it and quoted a decision of the higher courts in support of his opinion.

Jetta Goudal, Film Star, Soon to Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Word of the approaching marriage of Jetta Goudal and Harry Grieve, interior decorator, spread through the motion picture colony today.

Miss Goudal, temperamental motion picture star, is to become the wife of Grieve next month, it was announced.

School Boy Sobs 24 Hours; Still In Danger

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Stricken with a crying spell in school when he was unable to remember part of a lesson which he was called upon to recite, Joseph Ruseckas, 12, on a cot in City Hospital, entered his twenty-fourth hour of sobbing today.

During the night he was unconscious, but regained consciousness today. The hospital reported, however, that his condition was "poor" and his name was placed on the danger list.

KLINE LAUDED AT BANQUET

Political Pittsburgh marveled today how Mayor Charles H. Kline's trip to Europe affected the expressed attitude toward him of those with whom he has differed politically. They marveled the more because at the welcome home banquet to the Mayor last night these highlights appeared:

Two of the speakers were Senator Frank J. Harris and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, outstanding leaders in the forces of Kline's two opponents in the last mayoralty campaign.

Senator James J. Coyne, avowed political enemy of City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, Congressman P. J. Sullivan and Dr. F. H. Frederick, who arranged the banquet, graced the WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Charles M. Stedman, representative from North Carolina since 1911, was critically ill in Mount Alto Hospital today from an apoplectic stroke.

Physicians said while there was no immediate apparent danger and his vitality was unusual, his condition was serious because of his 89 years. He is the only surviving Civil War veteran in Congress, having served with the Confederate forces.

HIRES NOTED LAWYER TO PLEAD

Johnstown Attorney Will Attempt to Save Blonde In Court Here October 6

The wealthy Mrs. Ella Mountz, coal operator, of Smith's Mills, Clearfield County, with qualms against capital punishment, has engaged Johnstown's high-priced attorney, Percy Allen Rose, to plead for Irene Schroeder's life before the State Supreme Court here October 6.

Mrs. Mountz, who, while attending the blonde trigger woman's trial at New Castle, announced she had a lot of money to spend in Irene's defense, refused to reveal the portion of her wealth the retaining of Attorney Rose will require.

AGAINST DEATH PENALTY

She declared she retained additional counsel for Irene because she didn't believe in capital punishment and because she didn't believe the blonde guilty of the murder of Corp. Barry Paul, of the highway patrol, on the Butler-New Castle highway, for which Irene and her sweetheart, Glenn Dague, have been sentenced to die.

ATTORNEY ON WAY

Rose was en route to New Castle today, where he will confer with Attorneys Thomas W. Dickey and Benjamin Jarrett, counsel for Irene and Dague. Following his conference with the attorneys, Rose announced he would attempt to interview Irene. He will study a transcript of the case.

The appeal to the Supreme Court followed the refusal of Judge R. C. Hildebrand, of New Castle, to grant the pair a new trial.

BRINDISI, Italy, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Edda Mussolini, daughter of Il Duce, and her husband, Count Galleazo Ciano, today were en route to Shanghai, where he will be Italian consul general. They sailed from here last night aboard the liner Tevere.

ANNE FORREST ESCAPES RAID

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Following a showing of a play based on the song "Frankie and Johnnie," last night in Jamaica, a suburb, police arrested the author, the stage and company managers and 10 members of the cast on a charge of giving an indecent performance.

All were released on $500 bail for a hearing this morning.

Anne Forrest, former star of the Pitt Theater stock company in Pittsburgh, starring in the production, missed being arrested because of an injured hand. At the matinee performance, Miss Forrest was burned seriously on the hand when the gun backfired as she "shot" Johnnie.

Miss Forrest is a sister of Mabel Kroman, wife of George Sharp, head of the Pitt company.

John M. Kirkland, the author, is the husband of Nancy Carroll, motion picture star.

Arrest Three Near Palace of Michael

VIENNA, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—A censored ditspatch from Bucharest, Rumania, today said three Bulgarians had been arrested near the palace where the little former King Michael, son of King Carol II, had been staying. Rumors, later proved to be unfounded, connected them with an alleged attempt on Michael's life. The Bulgarians said they were fleeing to Russia from their own country, but encountered a storm and their boat was wrecked.

Jocelyn Lee, Ex-Pittsburgh Actress, Sued for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—The three-month marriage of Jocelyn Lee, film actress, and Luther A. Reed, screen director, reached the courts today in a divorce suit by the husband, charging unreasonable jealousy and profane abuse in public places.

Reed alleged his wife hurled dishes at him and clawed his face. While at dinner in a San Francisco hotel he charged she swore at him and hurled dishes across the table. A week ago at Agua Caliente, Mexico, he said, his wife raised such a commotion they were ordered to leave.

The director was divorced about two years ago by the former actress, Naomi Childers, and married Miss Lee last June.

Miss Lee formerly lived in the Oakland district, Pittsburgh, and was an entrant in a theater beauty contest there several years ago.

BATTLE POLAR BEARS TO RETRIEVE RECORDS OF ANDREE

SAVE RELICS AT PERIL OF LIVES

Hearst Expedition Members Recover Diary at Camp Site Infested by Beasts

By KNUT STUBBENDORFF.
Universal Service.

(From the special Hearst-Scandinavian newspaper expedition which, on Thursday, reached White Island, death place of Salomon Auguste Andree and his two comrades, searching for further Andree relics.)

ABOARD SS. ISBJOERN, Bound for Tromsoe, Sept. 11.—The secret of the fate of the Andree balloon expedition, held for 33 years by the Arctic, has been finally told by Nils Strindberg's diary, unearthed by the Hearst-Dagens-Nyheter expedition to White Island.

But the diary of Strindberg which recounted in dramatic entries the progress of the fantastic flight toward the North Pole and the tragic trudge over the ice and the ride on the ice floe to White Island, was not given up by the Arctic without a last struggle.

Polar bears—animals which seldom visit Vitoen (White Island)—fought with us over the removal of the body believed to be that of Knut Fraenkel and the skull we think is that of the expedition's leader, Salomon Auguste Andree.

SAVED BY SHOT

These giant ice bears attacked our party as soon as we arrived; they literally swarmed along the cliffs of Vitoen near the last camp of Andree and his men. We shot three while landing our small dory.

One of the Isbjoern's machinists and the radioman, who had gone ashore without rifles, live today because of Photographer Zappfe, of Tromsoe, who shot and killed three of the Arctic beasts that were rushing the unarmed men.

On their ice floe, on which they constructed a hut, Andree and his two companions were caught by the current east of Vitoen and drifted first southward and thence with the northwest running current, being carried to the southwestern side of the island, the only accessible point.

Here their ice floe "boat" broke up. Had it gone to pieces earlier, the three would probably have perished suddenly without leaving a single trace. Then they camped on the lonely island.

After landing and having our first brush with the polar bears, our party discovered the landmark left by Dr. Gunnar Horn, above which a cross had been erected.

DISCOVER SLEDGE

It was not long before we discovered one of the Andree sledges, oars to the canvas boats, several pairs of snowshoes and a clothing depot alongside their rudely put-together hut.

Against an opposite wall of the hut were two heaps of driftwood, which doubtless originally had been propped against the icy cliff. Against the cliff, atop the ice, we discovered a bearskin.

We saw the fragments of two or three ballast baskets, but they were so worn they fell apart when we tried to dig them out of the ice. We also saw the rim of what seemed to be part of a water bucket. The rim was fastened to the edge of the cliff and gave us the first clue that the last camp must have been in this vicinity.

FINDS LISTED

Our finds can be summarized as two skulls, one body, one sledge, oars, snowshoes, remnants of balloon baskets and boats, two diaries, tin cans and packets of food, a sleeping bag, instruments, clothing, and a sum of money, part of this in American and Russian silver and gold coins.

Now the last of the Andree party's remains are bound back to civilization aboard our little boat. But they were not given up by the Arctic without a struggle.

As we put out in the Isbjoern the Arctic made its last attack. Three giant bears swam out in the icy sea, growling for combat. But we pushed on homeward, lucky to have a boat so that we would reach home, instead of repeating the struggle told by the entries in Strindberg's diary:

"A good march." (August 1, 1897.)

"The attempt to walk further was given up." (September 16.)

"Tense situation." (October 2.)

"Resignation." (After October 6.)

"Home." (October 17, 1897.)

commendation to the Quarter Sessions Court.

The commission withheld the two Verona lists and the Engelsberg nominees.

A canvass of district leaders of the Fifth and other wards indicated there would be no conflict between rival political leaders concerning recommendations for members of new election boards, except in the Third Ward.

Former President of Council James F. Malone, one of the claimants for the Republican chairmanship of the Fifth Ward, said he had recommended to the redistricting commission a list of eligibles. Malone considered the incident closed.

Harry Feldman, city property assessor, who is Mayor Kline's representative in the Fifth ward, was inaccessible, but his friends took the position that the decision was up to the commission.

No objections were evident last night concerning lists submitted by the rival Republican chairmen of the Thirteenth ward, John Donley and Lon Mackintosh, member of the city board of water assessors.

The redistricting commission, Criss explained, was empowered to amalgamate two or more of the present election districts into one and also to recommend to Quarter Sessions Court the personnel of the different election boards.

ASKED CO-OPERATION

Criss pointed out that as a semi-official agency the commission had solicited the co-operation of the ward chairmen of the various parties in suggesting the judges and inspectors of election boards for the reduced number of districts.

Criss observed that the commission had urged political party leaders to recommend persons of integrity, with special reference to respect for the election laws.

He called attention to the fact that the state laws define who is forbidden as an election board official, and that every precaution is being taken to prevent the recommendation of any person convicted or indicted for election law violations, or at liberty on parole.

The commission, regardless of protest, would investigate the character of each applicant for judge and inspector of each election district and would not accept any person who had been guilty of a violation of the election laws.

CAN SUBMIT NAMES

Criss declared that any citizen or group could submit the name of a candidate or an entire slate on board and that they also could object to any of those now recommended by ward chairmen.

The commission would seriously consider an offer from any citizen or group to assist in determining the validity of an attack against any proposed election board official, he said.

Francis S. Guthrie, of the Allegheny County branch of the Pennsylvania Election Commission, said last night he had not completed a study of the Third Ward charges, but that if the occasion warranted he would ask the commission's attorney to report on the legal phases of the situation.

MOVIE MUSIC STRIKE CALLED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—All musicians employed in local moving picture theater houses will go on strike at midnight tonight unless the theater owners agree to retain the complete staff of musicians they now employ until September 25, pending further negotiations, according to an ultimatum today by the musicians' union.

The decision is the latest to be reached by the musicians in their battle with the theater owners over a proposed 65 per cent cut in the staffs of orchestras.

CAPITAL PLAYERS JOIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—A walkout of the musicians, coupled with a sympathy strike by movie machine projectionists, appeared virtually assured today following refusal of the musicians to agree to withdrawal of orchestras from all save two large downtown theaters.

The walkout will become effective September 19 unless an agreement is reached. Projection machine operators have been ordered to go out of the theaters on sympathy strike with the musicians.

Woman Assails Divorce Views of 'Gloomy Dean'

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Dean Inge, of St. Paul's, the "gloomy dean" who in a recent book took a cheerful view on divorce, met today with some controversial opposition from no less a personage than Mrs. M. L. Seaton-Tiedemann, secretary of the Union for Divorce Law Reform.

The dean had suggested two kinds of marriages, one of the sure-fire type that would be binding forever, and the other a limited contract.

Mrs. Seaton-Tiedemann declared today:

"Outside the intelligentsia there is no real feeling among the people of this country for anything in the nature of a trial or companionate marriage or for free union."

She characterized the suggestions of the dean as "amazing," coming from such a source and also as "confused and contradictory."

The dean's suggestion was that marriages should be of two kinds—a limited contract for persons who do not recognize lifelong vows of fidelity and a marriage wherein man and woman take such vows. The first kind, he contended, should be recognized by the state and the second by the church.

PINCHOT MOVES TO OUST VARE COHORTS

Building Own Organization, To Take Over Philadelphia Reins Following Election

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Believing Vare leaders in the Philadelphia Republican organization are not going to support him as the nominee for governor, Gifford Pinchot and his forces here are organizing committees in every ward now under organization control.

Some of the ward leaders and a large number of the ward committeemen have assured S. Davis Wilson, chairman of the Pinchot campaign committee in Philadelphia, he says, that they will stand by Pinchot's candidacy and not follow the Vare chiefs in supporting John M. Hemphill, the candidate of the Democratic and Liberal parties.

Including the regular Republican committeemen who are loyal to Pinchot, the latter's forces propose that by the November election, a city-wide body will be functioning in opposition to the antagonistic Vare group. Following the election, Wilson says, he intends to ask the Republican National Committee to read out of the party all members of the Republican city committee, or of ward executive committees, who support Hemphill, also to recognize the Pinchot committee as the regular party body.

DENOUNCES 'GANG RULE'

COUDERSPORT, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor, told a campaign meeting here last night that his attack upon his political enemies in Philadelphia did not necessarily represent an indictment of Quaker City politics as a whole.

Pinchot arrived here at the end of his third day of touring, which took him through Bradford, Tioga and Potter counties. Leaving Towanda, he traveled more than 600 miles, the longest distance covered thus far.

At Troy, Mansfield, Wellsboro and Galeton, he continued to pound away at what he described as the Philadelphia "gang," demanding that they make known what stand they are preparing to adopt on the forthcoming election.

In previous speeches he had maintained that disgruntled Republican ward leaders in Philadelphia were threatening to support John M. Hemphill, the Democratic and Liberal candidate, and had declared:

"We won in the primary without the Philadelphia gang, and we can do it again if necessary."

HEMPHILL DENIES 'DEAL'

BEDFORD, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal nominee for governor, was continuing his campaign tour today after pausing in this little county seat town to tell the crowd attending the Bedford County Democratic rally that he has made no deals with the Republican organization in Philadelphia for its support.

Referring to attacks by Gifford Pinchot, Republican and Prohibition nominee, in which a tie-up between Hemphill and the Philadelphia Republican organization was alleged, Hemphill said here last night:

"Neither I nor anyone for me has made any deals for political support, nor will I do so at any time. Furthermore, no one asked me to make any deal. That should be sufficiently straight-forward and unequivocal for even Mr. Pinchot."

TRADE MOVING UPWARD, SAYS DAVIS HERE

Tells Engineers to Fight Competition Forcing Wage Cuts; Praise for Hoover

Declaring that business is showing a definite upward trend, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis warned 200 members of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, coal division, in session here today, that unfair competition which cuts payrolls should be avoided.

"It is clear now, and will be increasingly clear, that what started us back was the prompt action of President Hoover in calling financial, industrial and labor leaders to united action for economic stabilization and a vast program of public construction. In this move, President Hoover has set a precedent for all times."

NEEDS OF INDUSTRY

Citing that the engineers could do much for the good of the steel industry as a whole, Secretary Davis said:

"If you can stop what we call unfair competition, that sort which is ruining business of the country and forcing men to sell below the cost of production, you will be doing something eminently worth while. After all, the purchasing power of the nation is wrapped up in the pay envelope and the salary check of millions of men and women who work.

"Our economic body is showing unquestionable signs of life. I am not making light of the losses and discouragements that we have all had to endure of late, but I repeat that they have hit bottom and are on the upswing."

The engineers' sessions, which will continue through Saturday in the William Penn Hotel, are the first general meetings of the newly formed coal division.

CLEANING OF COAL

Pennsylvania was second last year in the bituminous coal tonnage mechanically cleaned, F. G. Tryon, of the United States Bureau of Mines, Washington, told the delegates. Alabama led with 13,586,000 tons, he said, with Pennsylvania's output totaling 11,099,000 tons. West Virginia was third with 7,639,000 tons. The development of pneumatic cleaning has been greatest in Pennsylvania and Southern West Virginia, the latter including the Virginia field.

RIVER PARLEY ASKED CANADA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—A note has been sent to the new Canadian Conservative government suggesting further negotiations toward a treaty for development of the St. Lawrence waterway.

The note, which was delivered to Premier Bennett by Hanford MacNider, the American minister to Canada, marked the first known move through formal diplomatic channels since 1928 for completion of the St. Lawrence project.

While the content of the United States note was not made public, it was said in informed circles here to suggest appointment of commissioners by the two countries for the settlement of differences arising over the project.

nobody can tap, and drain it, take care of it, and some day it will take care of you.

RICHARD WHITNEY, president of the New York Stock Exchange, says the country is getting back on a firm business basis, and that the stock exchange was in no way responsible for the slump, unemployment, etc.

The latter statement is sound. The stock exchange and the ticker reflect, but do not create conditions. The wave of stock gambling, wasting the time of able men, and scattering the money of fools, caused trouble, but that is not the fault of the exchange.

FRANK KIERNAN in New York has distributed fifteen hundred little buttons, carrying in white letters: "Business Is Good."

Mr. Kiernan, an advertising man, believes that if you say a thing often enough, people will believe it.

They will, if it is true.

One of the big "bears" of the New York Stock Exchange had one of the buttons fastened to his coat. He had reasons for wearing it.

HAIL ATTITUDE OF ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's declaration for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment caused wide comment throughout the state today.

Generally, the Governor's stand was indorsed by Democratic leaders. Republicans said it had aided their cause. Republican drys said the declaration would bring them votes and Republican anti-prohibitionists declared his pro-repeal statement, other than one merely favoring modification of dry laws, was to their advantage.

In his declaration, the Governor said he favored repeal of the amendment by passage of a superseding amendment that would restore control of liquor to the states while strictly prohibiting saloons. His position was voiced in a letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem.), of New York.

Anti-dry Republicans were pleased with the statement especially, they said, because it would hasten a similar declaration from Charles H. Tuttle, regarded as the outstanding Republican contender for the gubernatorial nomination. They added that the action of the Governor would show that naming a Republican candidate opposed to prohibition would now be imperative.

OHIO ANTI-DRYS PRESS ISSUE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Anti-dry delegates came to the Republican state convention here today determined to force the prohibition question to the fore, despite the opposition of party leaders.

Notwithstanding that their keynote speaker, Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican national chairman, has said prohibition is not an issue unless the Democrats make it so, proponents of repeal are expected to make strong efforts to place a definite declaration on that question in the platform.

Those opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment were heartened by the declaration yesterday in Cleveland of National Committeeman Maurice Maschke, that he favors a state referendum. Maschke said he would not bring the matter up himself in deference to Senator Fess.

Franklin High School Tuition Advanced

FRANKLIN, Sept. 11.—Pupils attending Franklin High School from outside the district will pay $11 monthly instead of $10, the school board has decided. The increase was ascribed to crowded conditions and increased expenses.

PROHIBITION FOES PRESS BATTLE

Primary Results Intensify Opposition; Marked Gains Made in Several States

of Michigan. In his race, the prohibition issue was outstanding.

Representative John F. Miller, of Washington, also was a loser for Republican renomination, going down before the anti-dry attack of Ralph H. Herr. Miller's district is Seattle, however, and Herr is Republican county chairman. In the state of Washington also drys can point to the victories of two dry incumbents over anti-dry opposition, and the return unopposed of two more drys. All this in the face of anti-dry planks in the state platforms of both parties.

Dry victories occurred in Republican ranks in New Hampshire and Vermont, but in most cases the anti-dry opponents were third men in the races. The Democrats of the two states will wave the anti-dry flag in the November elections, making a bid for normally lacking popular support for their party.

VICTORY OF SHAW

Colorado's Republican senatorial primary yielded a victory for the only candidate not indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League, George H. Shaw. He did not campaign as an anti-dry, however.

Senator James Couzens won the Republican renomination in Michigan against the opposition of Chase S. Osborn, who had the tacit support of the Anti-Saloon League.

Couzens favors law observance, but is not in sympathy with prohibition.

The Anti-Saloon League, however, did not give a definite statement of approval to Osborn's candidacy.

Maryland candidates for the November elections promise to have much to say on the question. But this is not unusual in that state.

In Arizona, Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina the prohibition issue was not significant. Maine's election also turned principally on national issues.

Irenee du Pont Bolts Dry Republican Ticket

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Irenee du Pont, vice chairman of the board of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, has announced he will neither support nor contribute to the election of the Republican nominees selected at Dover Tuesday.

Scoring the party in Delaware for disregarding the prohibition issue by nominating candidates for the Senate and Congress who are either "dry or straddlers," Mr. du Pont in a letter to former United States Senator Thomas F. Bayard, anti-dry Democratic candidate, said:

"In my estimate, you are the best man for senator."

The Republican convention, which renominated Senator Daniel O. Hastings and Congressman Robert G. Houston, adopted a dry platform.

Mr. du Pont has been a lifelong Republican, as has his brother, Pierre S. du Pont, who some time ago announced he would support Bayard.

Harris Renominated In Georgia Landslide

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Complete unofficial returns today showed an overwhelming victory for Senator William J. Harris, who ran for renomination in yesterday's Democratic primary. Nomination is equivalent to election.

Harris swept nearly every county, picking up 410 county unit votes and a popular vote that approximated 200,000. Ex-Gov. John M. Slaton, his opponent, carried only two counties.

Connecticut Democrats Out for Dry Law Repeal

EASTERN POINT, Conn., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Wilbur L. Cross, retired dean of the Yale Graduate School, was nominated by acclamation today as the Democratic candidate for governor at the state convention.

The preamble to the platform declared the Republican party responsible for the industrial depression. Outstanding planks for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act and a declaration that the state should be ruled by its people, and "not by and for the benefit of an invisible machine."

PLAINCLOTHESMAN

Graf Zeppelin, Under Fire Crossing Soviet Border

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Completing another long trip, the big German airliner, Graf Zeppelin, arrived here from a round trip to Moscow today. The return jaunt from the Soviet capital was made in 19½ hours.

In the Red capital, where it swung at a specially constructed mooring mast on Frunze airfield for five hours, the huge sky-liner was greeted with unprecedented enthusiasm.

An untoward incident occurred as the airship crossed the Russian border, on its Moscow flight, it became known here. Frontier guards fired several shots at it, executing orders to shoot at all foreign aircraft crossing into Soviet territory. Sharp reprimands were issued here to the officers in charge of the border troops which shot at the Graf.

Twenty passengers were aboard the dirigible.

The bridge, completed and turned over to the city some time ago, has been closed to motorists awaiting Mayor Kline's return from Europe, in accordance with Public Works Director Edward G Lang's "unexpressed wish," North Side business association members say.

With representatives of various North boroughs civic organizations sharing the speaker's platform with city officials, the orators will include Mayor Kline, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and Director Lang.

Oliver Einstein, grandson of Senator Morris Einstein, and Jean Leyon, granddaughter of John Cowling, will cut the ribbon officially opening the bridge immediately following the addresses. A parade of civic associations will be one of the features.

SANTO DOMINGO ASKS U. S. LOAN

SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—After a conference with President Trujillo today, the survey committee appointed to estimate the property loss in the recent hurricane made preliminary plans to seek an emergency loan of about $3,000,000 in the United States.

It was suggested that $1,000,000 would be asked for governmental public works, and probably $2,000,000 for limited loans to private persons at small interest, secured by first mortgages.

ASK FOR MARINES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—The Navy Department today was asked by Col. R. M. Cutts, United States Marine Corps, to order 50 Marines from Haiti to Santo Domingo "to handle the food supplies and for moral effect."

Col. Cutts reported that a new government survey places the dead at 2,700 and 8,000 injured.

Relief forces have overcome an obstacle by clearing the harbor so ships can enter and unload at the dock.

TRACE DONOHOE ON LAST RIDE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 11.—The last trace of John F. Donohoe before he was "taken for a ride" on the morning of July 31, 1929, was testified to today by Constable George Zemo, Chester Evans and Harry W. Morris. The three said they were certain Donohoe occupied a machine which was stopped in a street at Republic, with a second man whom Zemo said was Glenn Allum. The other two witnesses were not positive of Allum's identity.

Morris said he saw Donohoe and the other man leave Republic, going in the direction of High House, near where he was slain.

Postpones Flight 50,000 Feet High Until '13th'

AUGSBURG, Germany, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Science and superstition held hands today when Prof. Piccard, planning to reach a height of 50,000 feet in a specially constructed balloon to study cosmic rays and the secret of atomic destruction, announced postponement of his attempt until September 13 for his thirteenth ascent.

The weather is favorable at present, but he holds fast to 13 as a lucky number. He said that at least 300 miles of good weather zone would be necessary for a successful ascent and descent.

Frau Piccard arrived at the hanger this morning. She said: "Ach, there is nothing to worry about.

17 DIE IN RIOTS IN POLAND

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—The threat of martial law hung over the capital and other cities following a violent demonstration against the summary action of Premier Josef Pilsudski, who ordered the arrest of 70 leaders of a newly formed political faction in opposition to him.

In the riots which swept the land as a sequel to the arrests, 15 demonstrators and two policemen were killed and more than 100 persons reported injured. Police charging into massed ranks of rioters with drawn sabres were met with vigorous shouts of "down with Pilsudski, out with the dictator!" The cities of Aracow, Tarnow and Warsaw witnessed the worst disturbances.

The arrests were the culmination of a long-planned "little coup d'etat" by Marshal Pilsudski.

Judge George V. Moore waited until Butler could testify this afternoon before sentencing Eck.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—After 32 years, survivors of the crew of the U. S. S. Dixie in the Spanish-American War will carry their claim for prize money to the Navy Department.

The warship's crew formed an association several weeks ago and last night voted to send Lieut. Layton F. Smith, who in 1898 sailed one of the Dixie's most important prizes to a Florida court, to Washington to press their claim.

Lieut. Smith took charge of the Spanish vessel Greenan Castle after it was overtaken and captured by the Dixie off the Cuban coast.

MERGER TRIAL AIRS ACCOUNTS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—The hearing of the injunction suit against the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger drifted back today to the controversial question of comparative depreciation charges of the two companies and to bad debt charges for which the plaintiffs claim Youngstown was not given proper adjustment.

W. B. Campbell, partner in Price, Waterhouse & Co., the firm that prepared the merger audit, repeated in cross-examination the statement that Youngstown adopted a new policy in 1927 to charge more capitalizable expenditures to depreciation instead of the income account direct. The purpose, he said, was to increase the income account, since Youngstown in prior years had been ultra-conservative.

COSTE'S TOUR DELAYED WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—A new wooden propeller for their plane, the "?," must be brought from France before the Paris-to-New York fliers, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, can begin their good-will tour. The delay will be about a week.

Discovery of a crack in the propeller was made yesterday when they inspected the plane at Curtiss Field, Valley Stream, L. I.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Senator Hiram Bingham and Paul Claudel, the French ambassador to the United States, are members of the good-will trip committee.

Definite date for a visit here of Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French trans-Atlantic fliers, today was undecided, though a stop-over during the pair's cross-country tour seems certain.

Thomas C. Poley, acting manager of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, declared delay in setting a date was due to Hayden and Stone, bankers, who are arranging the tour, being desirous of listing all invitations before laying out a route.

EUROPE'S UNION BEFORE LEAGUE

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, turned his idea for a federation of European states today over to the assembly of the League of Nations in an atmosphere of warm admiration for himself and friendly sympathy for the principle of European collaboration.

Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, told the assembly of the League of Nations this afternoon that Great Britain hoped any action on the plan of French Foreign Minister Briand for a European federation would be taken only upon the authority of the League of Nations.

It was regarded as likely that the plan as outlined in M. Briand's memorandum of May 17 to the various nations and the responses of the powers will be submitted to a committee for study and action.

Jose Evaristo Uriburu seized the government a week ago, went into apparent exile accompanied only by his daughter, his physician, Dr. Meabe, and a small guard of revolutionary agents.

The destination of the cruiser was not made known, but earlier reports had indicated that it would proceed first to Motevideo, Uruguay.

MATE DIVORCES FILM BEAUTY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—The troubled domestic life of Lina Basquette went through another episode with the granting of a divorce yesterday to J. P. Everell Marley, who married the film beauty in January, 1929.

Marley complained of his wife's jealousy. As a motion picture cameraman, he recited, his life brought him into contact with many actresses. This so enraged Miss Basquette he finally gave up the work and went with her on a vaudeville tour. Several weeks ago, when the actress was recovering from an attempted suicide, she told Marley to get a divorce. The suit followed.

Thelma Todd, actress, testified that as recently as last May, Miss Basquette threatened to slap Marley's face at a ball because he nodded to a woman acquaintance.

Miss Basquette's first husband was the late Sam Warner, of Warner Brothers, motion picture producers.

Anderson, former Wilmerding newspaperman, had asked that it be held in abeyance until the other actions are disposed of.

Ship's Crew Freed Of Liquor Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Charges of conspiracy and smuggling today had been dismissed in the case of the captain and crew of the Ray Roberts. Federal Judge Harold Louderback acted after United States Attorney George Hatfield had admitted the government made a "gross error" in seizing the craft outside the 12-mile limit.

The vessel was captured by the Coast Guard near here July 28. One thousand and fifty cases of liquor, valued at $60,000, were aboard. Hatfield said he believed the dismissal expedient, if the government wished to avoid a conflict with Great Britain over violation of treaty specifications.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—For the first time on record, a man committed suicide today by jumping from the cupola of St. Peter's Basilica. Marcello Nitrati, 33, a pilgrim from Cortena, leaped from the dome and was killed when he struck the street in St. Martha's square.

A dome guardian accosted Nitrati as he was sitting on the sill of a small window in the cupola, asking what he was doing there.

The man replied, "I am doing nothing. I am going right away."

Then, as the guard turned away, Nitrati leaped through the window.

Many Prominent Public Officials Denounce French Government for Expelling W. R. Hearst

Blow to Freedom of Press Seen by Senators

Following are expressions of opinion from distinguished public officials over the expulsion from France of William Randolph Hearst by the French Government:

C. C. DILL, United States Senator from Washington:

"Mr. Hearst's expulsion from France is proof conclusive that the French Government is dominated by the reactionary Bourbon spirit that all free citizens abhor and had hoped was dead in modern Europe.

"It is a disgrace to the French Government and should arouse the resentment of the lovers of freedom of the press the world around. Such an act is sufficient to justify a protest by the Government of the United States as being an interference with freedom of the American press."

ROYAL S. COPELAND, United States Senator from New York:

"To my mind Mr. Hearst's own statement is a complete rejoinder to the French position. To an American the action of France seems utterly ridiculous. In our country we acknowledge the benefit of criticism and respect honest critics of government.

"As I view it there is no just cause for complaint when an American journalist who criticizes his own government when it is wrong makes proper criticism of France when it is wrong.

"Every liberty-loving Frenchman will resent the silly bureaucracy of this short-sighted official. Freedom of the press is one of the cornerstones of liberty in every land."

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor of Boston:

"William Randolph Hearst through the chain of newspapers operated under his direction, has always been an ardent advocate of every measure beneficial to America and Americans. For more than a quarter of a century his agencies for the dissemination of news have represented the progressive spirit of the American people. The expulsion of William Randolph Hurst as an American citizen from the territory of France would not mean much, but the expulsion of William Randolph Hearst as one of America's leading publishers exercising a prerogative rarely denied under a republican form of government becomes a serious matter not for Mr. Hearst, but for the agency of which he is head and for the country of which he is a citizen.

"That wise old statesman, Talleyrand, once said that a blunder in political relations is worse than a crime, and surely the action of the French Government in this case cannot be construed as representing the thought of the large mass of the French people with whom liberty of the press and freedom have ever been synonymous. The philosophical attitude taken by Mr. Hearst with reference to the expulsion, namely, that France has unwittingly done herself untold harm and has done Mr. Hearst and freedom of the press throughout the world a service of the highest importance is significant.

"The action of the French Government in the expulsion of William Randolph Hearst is the highest character of tribute to the mental attainments of an American citizen ever given by the Republic of France. Congratulations, not sympathy, should be extended this one American out of 120,000,000 singled out by the Government of France as possessed of wits and pen so keen as to pierce and irritate the heads of presumably able and brainy officials.

GEORGE H. MOSES, United States Senator from New Hampshire:

When a great nation descends to childish performances the by-product is likely to be most interesting. This is the case in the expulsion of Mr. Hearst from France because forsooth, his newspapers in this country displayed their customary enterprise in procuring and publishing a document of grave international consequence.

The fact that this publication seriously interfered with negotiations which might have been of inestimable damage to the United States and of inestimable value to negotiating powers furnishes, of course, a reason for the futile resentment now displayed by the French government.

It has been the practice of several eastern nations to procurse the services of American advisors in their financial and international affairs, and I am wondering whether some western nations might not profitably follow this admirable practice."

LOUIS L. EMMERSON, Governor of Illinois:

Expulsion of William Randolph Hearst from France is an act of official pettiness which, in my opinion, is not representative of the real feeling of the French people. It is in direct contradiction to the American ideals of freedom of the press and is not justified by the facts in the case.

"Under the circumstances his electment is a reflection not on him but on the Government of France. Such action will not deter the American press from taking a firm stand on international matters in which the welfare of the United States is concerned."

FRANK EDWARDS, Mayor of Seattle:

"It is indeed unfortunate that France, who as a nation has always been considered a staunch friend of the United States, should have taken such an unfriendly attitude against one of our most prominent citizens. Without a doubt it is a nation's right to choose its visitors and residents, but this particular action has more the appearance of an affront to our nation than it does as a direct insult to Mr. Hearst. An honest difference of opinion among Americans has always been considered an inalienable right. I sincerely hope that France will see fit to recognize this principle and make amends."

ROBERT F. WAGNER, United States Senator from New York:

"France has, of course, the right to admit or exclude the nationals of other countries in accordance with her own wishes. No one can question her. At the same time we have an equal right to reflect that when the French government excluded Mr. William Randolph Hearst, publisher of one of our greatest chains of newspapers, from her borders because of his journalistic activities, it gave vent to an intolerance which is not promotive of international good will and exhibited an excessive touchiness to criticism.

"A petty reprisal of the kind resorted to in this instance is a poor response to adverse newspaper opinion. The world has learned to expect more from French gallantry and chivalry than this exhibition of petulance and intolerance. The denial of hospitality to a citizen as prominent as Mr. Hearst is, to say the least, an ungracious act."

C. M. CHAMBERS, Mayor of San Antonio:

"The American press and every American citizen has the right to express an honest opinion on both national and international questions, and it is the duty of the press to warn the American people of any matter that might endanger the safety of the republic. The expulsion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst from France was unjustified and unwarranted, but whether expelled or not, William Randolph Hearst will continue to fight for what he believes to be to the interest of the American nation."

[The foregoing comment was made by the respective commentators in a symposium gathered by the New York Sunday Enquirer.]

Action Called Serious Blunder on Part of Ministers

'Editor and Publisher' Calls Action of France 'Foolish'

The following editorial was published in Editor & Publisher in the issue of Sept. 6:

MR. HEARST AND FRANCE.

Secret diplomacy and the Hearst idea of aggressive public service journalism do not mix. The French Government is deeply committed to the shutter policy. William Randolph Hearst has built his immense newspaper organization on a policy of crusading editorials and reportorial enterprise. He has built faith in French politics. French officialdom has no use for his methods. It is a stand-off. In Mr. Hearst's scheme of things journalistic secret covenants are made to be exposed. He has been prying off lids in infinite variety, for a full generation. In this he is just as practical as are the French political powers in their arrivist methods. These elements this week clashed in Paris. The government of M. Tardieu ordered Mr. Hearst from French soil. He hastened to London and there gave out an interview expressing his amusement over the incident. Mr. Hearst's enemies clapped their hands with glee at his "predicament." His friends roared with laughter. The publisher referred to the business as a bit foolish." It was all of that.

The reason assigned for the expulsion was the incident of two years ago wherein the Hearst newspapers published a document concerning an Anglo-French naval cruiser arrangement. This paper, which Mr. Hearst called a secret pact, but which the French politicians called the record of preliminary negotiations, was taken from the files of the Foreign Office by a junior official who "loaned" it to a French newspaper man. Mr. Hearst received it from him, presumably paying a round sum for the information. The Hearst correspondent in Paris, Harold J. T. Horan, cabled the story. Mr. Hearst says he was only his agent, but the French police questioned Horan and he left the country. The French newspaper man and the junior officials of the Foreign Office were exculpated by the French courts, but the junior official was relieved from his position at the Quai d'Orsay. He is now suing his superiors. The ramifications of the incident have been exploited in the French press for months.

Mr. Hearst, it appears, was recently in Germany and there gave to the press an interview which expressed his familiar theories concerning foreign affairs, with the usual accent on the post-war conduct of the French Government. This seems to have stirred up more antagonism. Mr. Hearst says the Horan matter was incidental. The chief trouble, he thinks, is that his newspapers demand that the French pay American war debts in full and that the United States keep out of the League of Nations. Mr. Hearst says his business is to tell the readers of his newspapers what he can find out about public affairs, and freely voice his opinions, and he has no complaint to make.

The London press, in so far as we have seen it, welcomed Mr. Hearst cordially, enjoyed the wit of his public statements and jeered at M. Tardieu. London Daily Express said:

"The more Americans we are able to welcome to England, the better pleased we shall be. We and they may smile at one another's forms and symbols, but our instinct of good-fellowship is, in the end, the same as theirs—and sound at that."

And the comment of the Daily News-Chronicle was that the expulsion of Mr. Hearst was "idiotic" and the "spectacle of a great nation avenging upon an individual real or fancied wrongs is odious when the revenge is ineffective."

The silliest feature of the business is that M. Tardieu, of all men should expect Mr. Hearst, at this late date, to conform to the so-called conventions of journalism. The French claim to be logical, but there is no logic here. Mr. Hearst has never hesitated in this country to publish his opinions and what he believed to be the facts, whether the news came out of the front door or from secret files. His theory is that the business of the journalist is to tell the people "all." He could not be cajoled, frightened or pushed out of this life-long position.

The Horan incident is by no means clear. We shall not attempt to decide the right or wrong of it, but if it was merely used as a pretext for the expulsion, and if the real objection is to Mr. Hearst's expressed political opinions, we are sure that M. Tardieu will live to regret the persecution of a powerful, free American spirit. Meanwhile Mr. Hearst, as he says, will lose no sleep.

3 HELD ON FAKE MONEY CHARGE

Three Italians charged with passing counterfeit $20 Federal Reserve bank notes in Johnstown and other towns in Cambria and Somerset counties on Labor Day and the day preceding, have been arrested by United States secret service operatives.

Sebastiano Passalackqua, 45, and Santo Leone, 35, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were arrested in New York, and Angelo Parago, 46, of Jenners, Somerset County, a coal miner, was arrested at his home. Complaints were filed against them before the United States commissioner and they will be brought to Pittsburgh for a hearing.

Labor Day and the day before, $40 of the spurious notes were passed on owners of gasoline stations, barbecue stands and other merchants. The passers of the bogus bills traveled in two automobiles, and after purchasing gasoline would soon after drain their tanks and then visit another filling station, and make another purchase, always tendering a counterfeit bill in payment.

One of the Brooklyn men was said to have been a former resident of Somerset County and was recognized as one of the passers.

Dormont Man Held In Bail Jumping

John Blackhall, of Dormont, accused of passing spurious checks to downtown merchants, was turned over to the district attorney today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg for bail jumping. He was released by Alderman George Anderson July 20 on $1,500 bail, but failed to appear for a hearing. He was located in New York and was returned here by city detectives.

Robbers Loot Safe In Railroad Depot

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 11.—Robbers broke into the New York Central railroad office at Kinsman, O., knocked the combination from the safe and escaped with $30.

BISHOP ON WAY TO KOREA

Bishop Herbert Welch, of the Pittsburgh area, Methodist Episcopal church, is en route to Korea to participate in the merger of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church South, in that country.

He sailed from Vancouver September 4, on the Empress of Japan, as a commissioner named by the general conference held in Des Moines in May, 1928. Prior to his appointment here, he was bishop in Korea and Japan for 12 years.

Dr. Welch is expected to attend conferences of the church in China and likely will be gone six months, according to his associates. The various district superintendents will carry on the work in his absence, with normal supervision by bishops of adjoining areas.

Consolidation of the two branches of the Methodist church in mission fields is in pursuance of a world-wide policy of the American church.

Three Homestead Officers Suspended

Three Homestead policemen, Albert Kezar, Patrick Clohercy, Leroy Jones, were suspended from the force by J. J. Cavanaugh today pending charges and evidence to be brought against them at the next council meeting. Kezar and Clohercy will be charged with collecting money and Jones with issuing bad checks. Cavanaugh is chairman of the public safety committee.

Conrad Horn, 58, Adams street, Natrona Heights, is in a serious condition at the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, suffering from injuries when he was attacked by a bull on the farm of his aunt, Mrs. Anna Koenig, Freeport Hill. The bull attacked Horn, it is said, as the Natrone Heights man was watering him. Horn suffered several broken ribs and a punctured right lung.

Five-Year Record Set by New Gas Well

Drillers of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Equitable Gas Company, of Pittsburgh, yesterday brought in a well that set a record for the past five years, according to an announcement by M. C. Schneider, operating manager of the company.

The well was drilled on the J. F. Drain farm in the Troy district of Gilmer County, W. Va., and produced 8,800,000 cubic feet in a day's open flow.

KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE HIS CASE NEEDED

Former Sufferer Glad to Tell What New and Different Medicine Did for Him.

After all, what mightier recommendation can a medicine get than the grateful words of those who, to their everlasting joy, found in Konjola the very medicine they needed; the medicine they should have had in the first place.

MR. C. R. CHARLTON

Konjola wins victory after victory because all of Konjola's 32 ingredients work together in cleansing the system and stimulating the ailing organs, bringing quick and glorious relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Consider, for example, the case of Mr. C. R. Charlton, 527 Woodward Avenue, McKees Rocks, near Pittsburgh. Think it over, and then resolve to meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city. Hear from him the remarkable record of this remarkable medicine. But now read the words of Mr. Charlton, who said to the Konjola Man:

"For years I suffered with a very bad case of stomach trouble. Food did not digest, and did me little good. I tried several medicines in two years, but none gave relief. Six months ago I started taking Konjola, and found it to be the very medicine I needed. I am feeling better than in years, and can eat all kinds of food. Gladly I recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did. Konjola relieved constipation, too, and I do not have to take laxatives of any kind."

So it goes, everywhere Konjola is put to the test. Konjola is for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

FIGHT FOLLOWS KLINE DINNER

Inspector James Hoey of the Oakland district broke up what promised to be a free-for-all fight in the lobby of the William Penn Hotel last night as the guests at Mayor Charles H. Kline's party started for home.

Chauncey White, William Penn bellhop, stepped in when the clash started and in his attempt to restore peace himself caused the participants much grief. He got a black eye and then Hoey walked in.

As if by magic quiet descended upon the lobby and the bellhop's political badges—of which a second before had been baffling heaps—melted into the night.

The fight started when a man accompanied by an attractive blonde was struck from behind. He whirled and hit the man next to him, and the fight was on. Scores of diners guests witnessed the affair.

KLINE TO GET SUBWAY PLAN

With festivities at an end following his return from a vacation in Europe Mayor Charles H. Kline is expected to deliver to city business now. Among the matters which Public Works Director Edward G. Lang expects to lay before the mayor shortly is the $6,000,000 subway.

No conference on the matter has been announced, but Lang says the City Planning Commission, acting in an advisory capacity, (the subway) is expected to make recommendations on the subject. Actual work on street car subway, the operation of surface cars, this report probably will be ready about October 1.

Smithfield and Grant streets have been mentioned as the starting point of the subway between Water street and Liberty avenue with a branch line to Sixth avenue in the Penn avenue district. Bonds for the subway were authorized years ago.

Kline Lauded by Friends, Foes at Banquet

head of a table to the right of the speakers.

Senator William D. Mansfield, of McKeesport, independent leader, expressed the hope Kline would extend his political influence "outside the borders of the city."

LARGEST OF ITS KIND

Today Mayor Kline was in his office looking over an accumulation of mail.

The week-coming banquet to the mayor, who returned from Europe Tuesday after a two months' absence, was the largest affair of its kind ever held in the William Penn Hotel. More than 2,000 guests jammed the seventeenth floor to take part in the festivities, see 20 vaudeville acts and hear the speeches.

A large number of others never reached the seventeenth floor. They furnished their own songs and entertainment. Harold Thier-Guin, Wilson prohibition administrator, being praised highly because of his absence.

The climax came when Mayor Kline was presented with a specially designed clock by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang. The clock, according to reports, cost $1,500. Each guest received a desk photograph of the mayor in colors. A filet steak held the place of honor in the menu, with the usual accompaniments of fruit salad, soup, lima beans, potatoes, lettuce salad, dessert and coffee. All of these items had French names.

MAKES DRAMATIC ENTRY

Mayor Kline made a dramatic entrance shortly before 7 o'clock. First came motion pictures of his ship crossing the broad Atlantic. Then came a still of the mayor, looking out of a porthole. Then the lights came on and the mayor himself appeared at the wheel of the ship of state. He was escorted to his place by two young ladies uniformed as sailors, amid tremendous applause.

His pastor, the Rev. B. M. Paul of the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church, pronounced the invocation. Assistant City Solicitor B. I. Steinberg, who was in New York to meet the mayor on his return, introduced Dr. Frederick, general chairman of the banquet committee. Dr. Frederick, announcing the choice had been the unanimous one of the committee, introduced Treasurer Schooley as toastmaster. There was tremendous applause, in which, according to those in the vicinity, Senator Coyne did not join.

SUGGESTS THIRD TERM

Schooley, after presenting Mrs. Kline with a large bouquet of American Beauty roses, suggested Mayor Kline for a third term. He declared, when the applause died away:

"The ayes seem to have it. I hope he notifies the newspapers. And I hope that at some future meeting like this, he will either accept or reject it."

Mayor Kline was told by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt the next speaker:

"You are not without honor in your home city."

Waldschmidt had acted as Mayor during Kline's absence. President of Council John S. Herron spoke of Kline as the Mayor with a heart.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong was the next speaker. Highly praised by Schooley, he received a long ovation that he himself tried to still. Then he began:

"This is a Kline night."

He added that Commissioner E. V. Babcock would have been present if business had not carried him out of the city, asserting:

"No one knows as well as I do what close friends Kline and Babcock and Mrs. Kline and Mrs. Babcock are."

REFERS TO ASSOCIATIONS

Commissioner Armstrong then referred to the trips he had made with Mayor Kline, "especially to horse races, although I must say only Old Joe did any betting." He went on:

"I call him just a kid, even if I am a newlywed. Sometimes I think I'm still just a young fellow. And I want to tell you boys and girls that getting married is not a bad stunt."

Someone told him no women would be present so he did not bring his wife. Armstrong explained. Possibly one-fifth of those there were women.

One of the surprise speakers was District Attorney Andrew T. Park. The Mayor, Park said, "works day and night at being courteous." Judge Samuel H. Gardner, former district attorney at a time when a grand jury was investigating rackets in Pittsburgh, declared in praise of Kline that the fact a man was active in politics did not militate against him being a great judge. He cited former Judges Josiah Cohen and John A. Evans as examples.

SULLIVAN PAYS TRIBUTE

Congressman Sullivan, introduced by Schooley with a story illustrating that he was proud of representing the "Strip," praised the mayor highly. Senator Mansfield said the fact that the Mayor is the first in Pittsburgh's history to serve two successive terms seemed to prove his record is satisfactory. He added:

"We often wish he would take part in public life outside of the borders of the city."

Sheriff Robert S. Cain added his praise, followed by Senator Frank J. Harris, one of the real surprises. The Mayor has a great opportunity, he pointed out, adding:

"The problems which confront him are numerous and difficult. If he approaches the solution of these problems with a sincere desire to give the people the most efficient administration possible in every particular, every person in Pittsburgh should get behind him and give him undivided and wholehearted support.

SHOULD WORK TOGETHER

"We should lay aside our personal difference, forget political animosities and petty differences, and join with the Mayor in an united effort to make Pittsburgh the best city in the world in which to live, in which to work and in which to play.

"Let us give him unstinted praise when he accomplishes anything worth while just as freely as we would criticise him if we felt that he were wrong. And if we must criticise, let our criticism be always of a constructive nature.

"I understand that the Mayor has a plan of progressive legislation in mind; may I assure him here and now that if he has a constructive program, which will result in the advancement of the best interests of Pittsburgh, it will be a great pleasure for me to give my most enthusiastic and energetic support to any measures of this character he may propose."

MACKRELL LAUDS KLINE

Register of Wills Mackrell came as a third surprise speaker. He said:

"This was a pleasant invitation to receive. I was very glad to accept. It is rare that a one-time opponent is called upon to stand before a multitude of friends of the victor, to tell him how glad he is that he arrived home safely."

Mackrell added that when Schooley described Kline as "kindly," he was right, telling earnestly of a personal favor that had saved him some embarrassment, as he expressed it. His tribute was:

"Mayor Kline is a hard and vigorous fighter and a kindly and tolerant victor."

The Mayor was described as friendly, co-operative, a brave man and one of vision by Director Lang. Answering, the Mayor thanked everyone. He said:

"I did not know how well I was liked until I went to Europe. I never knew I had so many friends."

UNCERTAIN OF FUTURE

The Mayor did not deny that he had told a Sun-Telegraph reporter aboard his ship as it docked that he intended to retire at the end of his term.

Jovially he said, however:

"The people may rise and insist that I run for a third term. If they do, I may have to bow to their will."

This speech the mayor made with a smile, interrupted frequently with applause, especially when he referred to another term. Then the Rev. F. De Francesco pronounced the benediction.

NOTABLES AT TABLES

Old Highland Hall Destroyed by Fire

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed Highland Hall, a landmark near Springboro, 15 miles north of here, last night. The loss is estimated at $10,000, with $3,000 covered by insurance, according to Mrs. M. Moore, the owner.

Highland Hall, erected more than 50 years ago as a residence, was of frame construction.

Mrs. Moore had converted it into a summer hotel. It was vacant, she having decided not to open it for business last spring.

Smoot Sees Sugar Saved by Tariff

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—United States Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, arrived here from Honolulu on the Malolo yesterday with his bride, the former Mrs. Alice Sheets, of Salt Lake City. Senator Smoot, co-author of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff bill, said he noticed beneficial results of the new measure while in the islands. He said:

"We have virtually saved the sugar industry in Hawaii and the Philippines."

FIGHT CLOSING OF ROAD

Closing of a public road leading to the home of Jacob Hamilton in Franklin Township three miles from Ellwood City by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, brought out some forgotten history of the road before the Public Service Commission.

It is alleged that the railroad shifted the Pine Hill and Wallers Mill roadway without authority and otherwise interfered with the free and uninterrupted right to four grade crossing without authority.

Attorney Philip E. Hamilton of Beaver Falls says that many years ago when the Pittsburgh and Western was built which road is now operated by the Baltimore and Ohio the former road squatted on land along the Connoquenessing and later the B. & O. tore out four crossings without authority.

Nearly 15,000 persons were admitted to the new Avalon swimming pool from July 4 when it was opened until Labor Day when it was closed for the season, according to Capt. J. N. Arthur, borough manager. Receipts were equal to operation cost. The borough authorities have decided against using the pool for skating this winter.

Accused of Love's unpardonable sin...

FRANTICALLY Anne struggled to free herself from Jasper's embrace. She had loved him, had longed for just this moment. But now she realized that Jasper, too, was a fraud—a liar!

"Let me alone," she cried. "How could you trick me so? Why didn't you tell me who you really are?"

She had met him under desperate circumstances; helped him at the risk of her own honor; shielded him when others were ready to condemn. And now he had repaid her love—with deceit!

"I hid the truth from you because I had learned to care," he whispered—but even as he spoke, he realized how false his words must sound.

"What a mockery you've made of love," she cried. "You—the man I trusted—a cheat, a liar! Oh, I hate you—I hate all men!"

If only she could hurt him as he had hurt her! A daring plan flashed through her mind. It might wreck her own chances for happiness, but it would bring revenge.

How did she square accounts with the man who had tricked her? What is love's one unpardonable sin? Should any woman forfeit true romance because the man she loves has made one mistake? Read "Part of His Heart" by Cynthia Dare in this week's Love Story Magazine. It is a complete novelette, filled with vivid personalities and intriguing situations.

Many glowing stories of Love in the Sept. 13th Issue

Does marriage destroy love? Ellen had to choose between the man she married—and the man she thought she loved. "Her Husband's Love" solves the perplexing love tangle.

One mad escapade threatened to ruin the life of Glen Calthorp and the girl he loved. Dare he admit the folly of his youth—or should he try to hide the darkened past? "Through the Darkness" by Madge Fenton is a powerful narrative of one man's struggle against temptation.

You'll enjoy "Interfering With Cupid", "The Land Of Romance", "The Daring Of Adell", "A Girl's Face", "Lonely Years", and two fascinating serial novels, "The Street Of False Steps", and "The Woman Pays". Get your copy of Love Story Magazine today.

What are your Love problems?

Suppose you fell in love with a man and later found out he was married—what would you do? Suppose your sweetheart left you—how could you win him back? These are the kind of problems that Laura Alston Brown answers every week in her helpful department—"The Friend in Need." Whatever problems are worrying you—Mrs. Brown is ready to aid you at all times.

GREEN PRAISES BAN ON ALIENS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has sent a telegram to President Hoover praising the action of the State Department to curtail immigration while unemployment is acute.

He said the decision of the State Department was heartily indorsed by the executive council of the federation at a conference yesterday.

Mr. Green said he had conferred with Secretary of Labor Davis about the need of shutting out immigration during the unemployment period by refusing to issue visas and believed the action of the State Department would resolve the problem.

LOOT SMALL, DRUGGIST SLAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A murder as heartless and unprovoked as police can recall over a long period was committed late last night in the drug store of Willis Fiddelke 40. Fiddelke was shot dead as he lay face down on the floor.

"You've only got $15 and that ain't enough."

That is what the killer said as he jabbed the muzzle of his pistol into the druggist's back between the shoulders and pulled the trigger.

Two customers held at bay in another room by an accomplice of the gunman heard him say:

"I croaked him all right. Let's get out of here."

HEMPHILL GETS SUPPORT OF CRUSADERS

Anti-Dry Group Here to Support Democrat; Many Republicans in Its Ranks

The Crusaders, anti-prohibitionists, whose membership includes many Republicans, late yesterday announced they had endorsed the Democratic nominee for governor, John M. Hemphill, because of his stand against the Volstead Act. The Philadelphia Crusaders also have indorsed him.

The resolution of indorsement was offered by Maj. Arthur M. Scully, one of the leading workers in the organization and also president of the Allegheny County Bar Association. In presenting the resolution, Mr. Scully told of Hemphill's war record and his attitude on prohibition.

BUSINESS LEADERS

Among the indorsers of Mr. Hemphill are business and industrial leaders, prominent representatives of various civic groups throughout the city and men prominent in the social register.

The meeting was presided over by Attorney Simon T. Patterson, executive commander of the Pittsburgh unit, who announced that plans were being shaped for a membership drive throughout this end of the state for the purpose of setting up an effective campaign organization which would function in a manner similar to that of the Republican and Democratic organizations. Patterson said:

MANY INDORSERS

"Ward workers will be enlisted, men and women who will help get out the vote of Mr. Hemphill and any other candidate, whatever his party affiliations, who adopts the attitude Mr. Hemphill has, that of opposition unalterably to law such as the Eighteenth Amendment."

Others who addressed the gathering yesterday included Attorney Charles A. Fagan, Jr., treasurer of the Pittsburgh organization, and Vice Commander Wilson S. McClintock. Among those present who declared their intention of participating in the membership drive, only three of whom are Democrats, were:

Ex-Employe Seized In Factory, Fined

John Popinchak, 22, of 55 McClure avenue, former employe of the Pittsburgh Stove and Range Company, Preble and Superior avenues, was caught lugging a motor to a broken window in the plant last night. Fred Birx, watchman, testified in North Side police court today. The accused man said he had been out of work for six months. He was fined $25 with the option of 30 days in the workhouse, by Magistrate Ray Schneider.

U. S. Ice Cream Diet Shows Big Increase

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—The American people consume three gallons of ice cream annually per capita, according to returns received today by the Department of Agriculture.

The figures show that ice cream production continued to increase last year and reached a grand total of 365,448,000 gallons, as compared with 348,046,000 gallons in 1928. Ten years ago the per capita consumption was a little more than two gallons.

HOUSEWIVES HAVE CHANCE TO PUT UP FRUIT AT A PROFIT

Home-Canned Fruits Far Cheaper Than Those Bought Next Winter

Of all money-saving activities a housewife can engage in right now, putting up fruit promises most satisfactory returns. No special equipment is necessary and pure cane sugar and fruit are so low in price that a large quantity can be purchased without upsetting the weekly food budget.

When winter comes, the value of a cupboard well stocked with jellies, jams and preserves will be most apparent. Every glass or jar that you select for your table will be already paid for. What is more, you have a delicious home-made product that wins the praise of everybody.

Canned fruit belongs in the balanced diet. Most of them are rich in vitamins and decidedly appropriate for children.

Menu-planning, especially the dessert problem, is simplified when there are plenty of preserves within reach. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

U.S. Army Officers Study Spanish By Radio

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Several hundred Army officers unable to converse in Spanish are to take a daily course by radio.

Quarters of all officers now serving as two year students in the command and general staff school here have been fitted with radio loud speakers. The speakers are connected with a central receiving set.

Each day an instructor will give a half hour Spanish lesson over the hook-up. Student officers have been ordered to listen in.

7 BRITISH RAIL CHIEFS HERE

Seven executives of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway are in Pittsburgh on their tour of American railroad. They are guests of Pennsylvania railroad officials during their stay here.

This morning the group left the Pennsylvania station in an open-air observation car over the Panhandle division to study the signal system between Pittsburgh and Burgettstown.

This afternoon they were to observe the car retarder at the Pitcairn yards, and inspect the steel car repair shop.

Tonight they will be the guests of the Union Switch and Signal Company at dinner in the Duquesne Club. Tomorrow morning's program will include visits to the Edgewater steel plant and to Carnegie Tech. They will leave tomorrow afternoon for Altoona.

Capital 'Padlocks' Involve $1,309,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Efforts to enforce prohibition here have resulted in padlock proceedings, pending or completed, against property valued at $1,309,000.

This was shown in data prepared by real estate interests in co-operation with the District authorities. Property owners have been warned to guard against activities by their tenants for which they may suffer.

Boy, 10, Drowned As Raft Overturns

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—James Hatfield, 10, of this city, was drowned in the Susquehanna River when a raft overturned. Thomas Layden, 13, and James Layden, 11, companions, were able to swim 15 feet to shore.

BIGGEST BLIMP UNDER WAY

AKRON, O., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Construction of the envelope and control surfaces for the largest non-rigid airship in America has been commenced at the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation factory here, it was announced today.

The airship will be used by the United States Navy in experiments to determine the possibility of using fuel gas instead of gasoline as a source of motive power.

Two engines of 200 horsepower each will be used to drive the craft. They will be fed through fuel lines from a large bag within the envelope in which the gas will be carried. Gasoline will be carried as a reserve fuel supply.

The envelope will be 220 feet long, 54 feet in diameter, and will contain 320,800 cubic feet of lifting gas. The car for the blimp, which will accommodate a crew of six men, is being built at the naval air craft factory at Philadelphia.

Postmaster Named For Indianola

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Jules C. Luyten has been appointed postmaster at Indianola, Allegheny County.

VOTING APATHY STIRS CHIEFS

Political leaders, alarmed at the light registration last Thursday, are considering methods of inducing about 450,000 taxables in Allegheny County to pay the poll tax as a requisite for voting.

The record, revealed in an audit by Walter J. Christy, county delinquent tax collector, shows only 31,000 residents have paid the separate poll tax, which would made the county's possible voting strength approximate 490,000.

Pittsburgh's tally shows 264,464 as the number assessed, and 16,092 as the number that paid the poll tax. The largest registration in Pittsburgh was about 190,000.

Totals for third-class cities are: Duquesne, assessed, 6,184, paid tax, 385; Clairton, assessed, 5,060, paid tax, 409; McKeesport, assessed, 16,54, paid tax, 2,687.

Totals for boroughs are: Assessed, 119,230, paid tax, 11,443. Totals for townships are: Assessed, 56,362, paid tax, 5,852.

Senator Allen's Condition Better

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas who underwent a major operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital yesterday, passed a good night and is making favorable progress, it was stated today.

HOSE LAID TWO MILES AT FIRE

Volunteer firemen from seven towns late yesterday fought a blaze in the Laberto garbage dump, Penn Township, which for a time threatened to spread to four houses nearby.

Lack of water thwarted firemen in their fight. It was necessary to lay a line of hose from the dump to North Bessemer, a distance of more than two miles.

Companies responding to the alarm were from Rosedale, Lincoln Park, North Bessemer, Unity, Thaddeus Stevens, Point Breeze and Oakmont. Some of them made a run of more than 10 miles.

Call to Colors

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—All American composers under 35 continue to dip their pens in the indigo bottle. None, however, is able to reap the reward that attended the M. Gershwin first in the field to fall upon the title "Rhapsody in Blue," just as no historian of the small town can hope to compete financially with Sinclair Lewis the first to seize upon the name Main Street.

"Rhapsody in Blue" is one of the happiest of titles. Gershwin must have had it in mind when he sat down to write a special jazz composition for Paul Whiteman's invasion of New York's classically sacred halls. It must have played its part in inspiring him to capture so completely in its melody and rhythm the spirit of the town. Today it is heard oftener than all other jazz works that have had the label "high brow" sewed upon them.

It deserves a rest from its microphonic activity, though when it is scheduled by a first-class band I can invariably be found up front in the rush to the over-stuffed divan.

First-Class Fiddlers Play 'Rhapsody in Blue'

Recently it figured conspicuously in a concert by the Philharmonic with the composer at the piano. Its baffling notes were never aired with greater vividness and vitality. The symphonic fiddlers extracted every ounce of its exotic flavor. Extracting it, they demonstrated in the same program how superior the "Rhapsody" is to Gershwin's later compositions, especially his "American in Paris." Though the latter has its unusual moments, mostly concerned with the confusion of French taxicabs, it is not to be mentioned in the same breath with the "Rhapsody" any more than a Yale football march is to be mentioned in the same breath with the "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Of the three most melodious classical strains given most often to the loudspeakers, the "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser," the "Moonnight Sonata" of Beethoven and the "Liebestraum" of Liszt, I prefer, should advisers to the lovelorn be interested, the last named if only because it gives me the more enduring picture of the charm and beauty of romance.

I have become convinced that radio, more than any other single agency, has helped to remove pathos and banality from the ballads of the day, just as it has helped to remove the bunk and bombasity from the oratory of public speakers.

No broadcast can furnish quite as much confused excitement as that concerned with the landing of trans-Atlantic fliers . . . I would rather hear Reinald Werrenrath warble "Danny Deever" than anyone this side of the Jordan . . . I have made the acquaintance only once on the radio of Jack Johnson and his orchestra. It failed to move me to roll up the rugs. There was no punch in Johnson's baton . . .

The old-fashioned phrase, "tickling the ivories," seems to me best examplified when Senor Lopez seats himself at the piano . . . A program of college songs, it seems to me, is the most accurate test today of a listener's endurance.

Jazz Luring Men From Honored Professions

More and more persons are renouncing the time-honored professions of law and medicine to lead jazz orchestras, which proves, if anything, that there is more money in crooning "A Song to the Stars" than even in writing prescriptions or addressing the gentlemen of the jury.

Press agents continue to write of a "genuine Stradivarius" in connection with the recitals of violinists. Is there not one imitation of Stradivarius in the land?

Every Senator whose name appears regularly on the front pages has faced the microphone this year with the exception of the Hon. J. Thomas Heflin.

Only twice have Amos 'n' Andy been crowded off the air—once by an SOS and once by the French aviator, Dieudonne Coste.

The researchers of the radio have tracked down the songs of the hill-billies, but no effort has as yet been made to unearth the tunes of the carpet-baggers.

Of all the old-time airs "The Old Oaken Bucket" trembles least out of the loudspeakers. It is just as well.

The past year will be chiefly remembered by the emperors of jazz as that in which ceaseless lyric tribute was paid to the species of love known as vagabond.

'Dixie' Best Tune to Call Youth to Colors

Were we asked by the general staff of the army to choose the selections best suited to calling the youth of the country to the colors we would not hesitate in naming "Dixie," "Stars and Stripes Forever," "Washington Post" and "John Brown's Body" in the order named.

Duke of Santa Cruz	Walter Preston
Yvonne	Marion Wilson
Dolores	Elizabeth Lennox

NBC Light Opera Chorus.

The main office of the Royal Madrid Engineering Association is situated near a haunted castle in the mountains of Spain. The castle belongs to the Duke of Santa Cruz, a Spanish grandee with a charming ward, Dolores. It is the Duke's purpose to keep an audience at a distance particularly distasteful, but one of the Madrid Opera Co. has succeeded the young lady with a serenade.

The second act has its scene in the gardens of the Monastery of St. Gertrude, adjoining the Colegio School of St. Luis Isadora is placed in this convent and Alvarado lives in the monastery to avoid the conditions. The new lustrous soprano is taught by the monks who sing in a choir. The school girls in the adjoining garden echo it, and the unmasked patron has realized it, too.

In the third act the Duke still haunted by the serenade and cheated of Dolores, is about to take a terrible vengeance when the whole castle is captured by the brigands headed by the bandit, Alvarado. Everyone is pardoned and the usual matrimonial finishing follow as the opera ends.

Attractive Morning Dress
Pattern 2016
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Service

BY ANNE ADAMS

Most of us neglect our fall frocks during the warm weather and now is a good time to replenish our supply since smocks are at their best as fashion is as important as at any other time. The dress sketched today is particularly attractive with its square yoke, turned back cuffs and pocket trimming of contrasting fabric. The ruffling which may be omitted, adds a dainty touch.

Pattern 2016 is practical made of gingham, percale, broadcloth, rayon, wash silk or chintz as they launder well and may be bought at your favorite counter. Both light and dark shades are popular this season for house dresses. White piqué is nice for the trimming.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch fabric.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size and simple exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

BEAUTY 'AGENT' OF GANG HELD

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The exhaustive search for the slayer of Louis Bart, after he had attempted to interest a beauty specialist in a National Association, ended today (Thursday) when Bart confessed naming Louis Wanzl, known as a racketeer, as his superior.

Alvin DeMar, the beauty shop owner, said Bart approached him recently and sought to force him into the National Beauty Parlor Association. DeMar quoted Bart as saying:

"It'll cost you $25 to join and there will be monthly dues. We'll let you know how much it will be. You'd better make up your mind in a hurry. I'll be back in the morning for the $25. If you are not right you will get what some other shops have been getting."

DeMar told of that Bart returned to the three beauty shop holdings of the past week.

Court Rules Violin Teaching Legal

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Law of the violin teaching here without a license is O. K. from now on.

Magistrate Porter in dismissing charges against four men who were arrested under an ancient law for teaching violin without a license announced he would decline to enforce the ordinance. He expressed the opinion it dated back to the era when Evanston was noted with a consciousness of sin.

German Fliers Sail; Feted by Lindbergh

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(INS)—Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau, German trans-Atlantic flier, and his three companions sailed early today for Germany by steamer. Their flying boat accompanied them packed in crates.

Capt. Von Gronau was the guest of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at dinner last night.

Mrs. Lindbergh, the German flier said, was "charming" and "fragile like a wild flower."

CARBONA
POWDER
REMOVES GREASE SPOTS WITHOUT LEAVING A "RING"
Most silks are now "weighted" or "loaded" with foreign substances to make them appear of better quality. Liquid cleaners dissolve this "weighting" or "loading," and thus causes "rings" on Silks. We have therefore created Carbona Grease Absorbent Powder for use on Silks only. This Powder will not affect "weighting" or "loading" in any way—it absorbs Grease Spots instead of dissolving them, and no "rings" can result from its use on Silks.
For all other Fabrics use Carbona Cleaning Fluid

TOO TIRED!

Too tired to eat.
Too tired to work.
Too tired to sleep.
Yet a simple thing, neglected, may be the cause.

YOU never can tell—maybe all this "grogginess" and "knocked out" tiredness you've been suffering from, is nothing more than temporary constipation, not properly taken care of. Certainly, the following sincere offer made TO YOU PARTICULARLY by all our druggists, should be welcomed.

We, the druggists of this city, offer you a large economical bottle of Flaxolyn, on the written guarantee that if it does not benefit you, we hand you back your deposit without question. Greek Women Go on Strike To End Great War In 'Lysistrata'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 11

THEY ARE PLAYING the most indecent comedy in the world in the Forty-fourth Street Theater. Should it be suppressed? Certainly not! It is uplifting the New York stage. There is so much indecency without intelligence that the "Lysistrata" of Aristophanes becomes moral and edifying.

For one thing, the indecencies of this play are obvious only to learned professors of Greek. And it is a known fact of natural history that professors of Greek are pale of mind and cannot be corrupted by a few pornographic puns. Besides, Lysistrata is a Greek who made the adaptation. Harvard-trained, coached and refined away some of the broadest of the indecencies.

George Seibel

Enough of the real Aristophanes remains to show him as the supreme comic genius of all ages. Rabelais and Swift, Shakespeare and Moliere have learned from him.

His influence was not always for good. It is quite likely that his caricature caused the condemnation and execution of Socrates. Just as Shakespeare's play has caused one of the best kings of old England, Richard III, to be regarded as a deformed monster.

PLAY OFTEN REVIVED

Gilbert Seldes has not done anything startling either by reviving this old comedy. Maurice Donnay, one of the French Immortals, did it in 1892. It has been done twice in Paris. There have been three German versions, one of them by Paul Lindau, in which the people of Old Vienna would, it is said, have recognized themselves.

Seldes probably got his idea from the masterful version of Jules Romains. Volpone, produced by Stefan Zweig and the Theater Guild. If Volpone, why not Lysistrata?

He was not looking for the point of view of the Greek professor. He was thinking of the Greeks of today, who would be so offended by the broad jokes because they are broad. They would not be offended by the indecencies. They say Lysistrata when they should say Lysistrata with the accent on the first, in the second syllable.

And they use modern slang like "You're all wet," which would not have been allowed at the Lenaean Festival in Athens where this comedy was first played in January, 411 B. C.

And the play deals with a matter of real interest: War and Militarism. Its story is simple. The women of Greece go on a strike against their husbands and lovers to end war. They are tired of seeing their sweethearts and their sons butchered because of the greed and stupidity of government.

A RADICAL CONSERVATIVE

Aristophanes is usually regarded as a conservative but in this play he is a radical. People forget that there are two kinds of radicals and two kinds of conservatives. There are radicals who are for something new because it is good, and radicals who are for something bad because it is new. There are conservatives who are for something bad because it is old, and conservatives who are for something old because it is good.

Radical or conservative, Aristophanes has made one of the world's richest comedies in "Lysistrata." Brutally frank, it is uproariously funny. It is beautifully staged in a modernistic adaptation of the Greek style.

Violet Kemble Cooper is the heroine, and no one else could wear the helmet of Pallas Athene with such grace or preach peace more persuasively. But the real star of the play is Nydia Westman as Kalonika with her blonde innocence and baby stare. She looks as if she had walked off some Greek vase made before morals were invented. She could stop any war or start one.

Alleged Fake Cousin On Trial for Fraud

GREENSBURG, Sept. 11

Samuel B. Sklar, Minneapolis, is on trial in criminal court here, charged with false pretense in two transactions in which he is alleged to have fleeced Samuel Miller, banker-merchant, out of $2,000 by representing himself as a cousin of Miller.

Miller testified that Sklar came here in March, 1929, claiming he controlled laboratories in Minneapolis which he expected to move to Western Pennsylvania. He obtained the money by telling Miller he was a cousin and supported his claims by discussing Miller's relatives in Europe, the banker testified.

Notorious!

Billie Dove comes to the Harris talk screen Saturday as the important lady in "A Notorious Affair."

ATTRACTIONS LISTED FOR NEW BILLS IN THEATERS

Dixiana comes to the Stanley screen today with Bebe Daniels in the starring role. On the stage, Joe E. Brown, the goofy star of "Hold Everything" and "Top Speed," will appear in person in Gene Morgan's revue "Laff-O-Mania."

It would seem that Bob Fiske, erstwhile villain of the George Sharp Players, is getting away from that type of role. In "The Bachelor Father," next week in the Pitt, it will be Fiske in the role of Sir Basil's physician who suggest to him the plan of gathering his children about him in his declining years, the situation upon which the play is based.

Gene Bettins, the "psychic wonder girl" who scored such a tremendous hit during the past two weeks at Loew's Aldine, is being held over for a third week, beginning tomorrow. The screen feature will be "Animal Crackers," starring the Four Marx Brothers.

RUTH CHATTERTON FILM

The screen attraction opening tomorrow in the Penn is "Anybody's Woman," featuring Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook. Other players are Paul Lukas, Huntley Gordon, Betty Compton and Tom Patricola.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., comes to the Enright tomorrow in "The Way of All Men." Noah Beery and Dorothy Revier are included in the supporting cast. On the stage, Dick Powell will offer "Roof Garden Nights."

Billie Dove's latest starring production, "A Notorious Affair," comes to the Harris Saturday. The supporting cast includes Kay Francis, Kenneth Thomson and Basil Rathbone.

DRAMA ON RIVER

"Call of the Woods," heralded as a stirring melodrama of the great outdoors, will be next week's presentation on Capt. Menke's Golden Rod Showboat at Monessen, just above Aspinwall. This week the attraction is "Sweetest Girl in Dixie," a romance of the Old South.

Old Wallace Reid Picture May Be Star Vehicle For Fairbanks, Jr.

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.

STARDOM, the ultimate goal of all film players, has been reached by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

During next year he will appear in but four pictures for First National, all of them stellar vehicles.

It may surprise you to know that First National is trying to buy "The Affairs of Anatole" for Doug's initial picture under his new contract. This is the Schnitzer novel that Wallace Reid once appeared in. Paramount owns the silent picture rights, but if a deal can be arranged, they will be transferred to First National. Then the studio will have to buy the talkie rights direct.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

The old "Affairs of Anatole" was directed by Cecil B. De Mille, and all the stars on the Paramount lot appeared in it. Unless memory deceives me, they included Gloria Swanson, Theodore Roberts, Julia Faye, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Kosloff, Elliott Dexter and many others.

This picture was shown here last year in a revival of screen classics sponsored by Marion Davies.

BETTY'S LUCK

It's an ill wind, as they say, that blows nobody any good. Over at Tiffany, Phil Goldstone wanted to see a picture in which Ivan Lebedoff appeared. He sent to R. K. O. for "Street Girl" and "Midnight Rose." After looking at the two pictures, he decided that Lebedoff wasn't the type he wanted, but was so impressed by Betty Compson's work that he promptly hired her for a feminine lead.

TOO THOROUGH

Sue Carol and Nick Stuart recently had their Norman-French home redecorated in period. When the painters had gone, Sue sent the house girl upstairs to clean up. In her thoroughness, the girl washed down the walls, completely removing the expensive antique glaze. No, she wasn't fired.

MORE AIR STUFF

Richard Barthelmess is back in town but leaves shortly for New York to enjoy a further vacation.

Richard Barthelmess

In the meanwhile, First National officials are trying to persuade him to make another air picture in November. Howard Hawks and John Monk Saunders, who were responsible for "The Dawn Patrol," are writing the story.

Dick hasn't made any decision as yet. His contract calls for only two pictures a year, and he hadn't intended to follow up so closely.

ED LOWE RECOVERS

After three days at home recovering from steam scalds, Edmund Lowe is back at work on "Scotland Yard." Ed got too close to a steam exhaust in a ship's engine room.

MORE VACATIONS

With "Her Man" completed, Tay Garnett, Pathe director, will go to Mexico City on a vacation. Patsy Ruth Miller, who is Mrs. Garnett, will accompany him on the trip, which comes under the head of a rest prescribed by a physician.

Tay is threatened with a breakdown from overwork.

Incidentally, "Her Man" is going to be a sensation. I saw it at a preview, and it is one of the year's finest pictures. Watch out for young Philpps Holmes after this film is released. Also Ricardo Cortez, who makes a splendid comeback.

WALTER WINCHELL -:- On Broadway

Blab Boy Broadcasting

Nalco Herb Brown, the noted songwriter, was observed under a theater canopy the other night praying that the thunder, lightning and heavy rainstorm would not harm him. Brown, in case you have forgotten, is the writer of "Singing in the Rain."

Peggy Joyce and Valentino's ex-wife, Jean Acker, are dwelling together at Peggy's place at Cape Dial, France . . . Mrs. Carrington, over whom the Carrington Brothers caned each other once, has been married three times, and the other week-end she had her first, second and third husbands at her Westchester home for dinner at the same time. Just one big happy family.

Dorothy Martin, once in the "Little Jessie James" chorus, is now Mrs. Graham Smith. Her husband is a Chicago broker. She was formerly Mrs. Edward Hillman, the Chicago department store owner's son, who is now the groom of Marion Nixon, the chin-ema ingenue . . . Most of us thought Dorothy was going to ankle up an altar with Jim Busch, of the Equitable Trust and the Madison Sq. Garden Corp . . . But he had too much money, it appears, and women who have minds certainly are privileged to change them.

Bill Leeds, Jr., who was divorced sometime ago, and Olive Hamilton are that way, which isn't news any more. What I started out to report, however, was how they met . . . Miss Hamilton is a young and shapely thing with two good reasons for wearing opera-lengths (there I go repeating myself).

Leeds met her while buying ciggies at the Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, cigar stand, where Olive was the ciggie girl . . . He fell for her like leaves fall in October and by way of conversation Leeds told her he placed a bet on a horse for her . . . Well, the gee-gee came in first as Hoover did, and Olive was gifted with $7,000. . . . They have been Romeo-and-Julieting it since.

I learn, too, that Leeds, who has a mess of what-it-takes, anyhow, has put six million smackers in trust for her. Which is a lotta smackers to get hit with, even if you don't mind my ending sentences with prepositions . . . He did so, he has told intimates, in case he dies—or they break off—because "she has been such a good pal" . . . Love, indeed, is a beautiful and costly toy.

Here's what they call making scoopee: Nina Wilcox Putnam was secretly sealed recently at Monte Carlo to a Britisher whose name I've misplaced.

It is too bad about one of Chicago's most beautiful blondes, who is drinking herself out of $2,000 a month pin money. Some phrails never know when they are well off and risk losing their good providers.

Take the case of the couple who just sued each other for legal phfffting . . . They were Broadway well-knowns . . . He suspected that she was not on "the up and up," so when she was alcoholidaying on her yacht off Norwalk he had detectives, disguised as sailors, shadow her . . . Their observations won the case for the husband.

For a few months, while the case was pending, she was awarded $200 weekly yellimony. . . . She had asked for two grand . . . Within a fortnight the $200 blood dough will cease by order of court, and how she is going to keep up her fancy apartment and her other luxuries is something she is now worrying about.

To make matters more aggravating, her two gigolos have deserted her since learning that her income is lower than a columnist's opinion of his rivals.

Elizabeth Arden, the beauty oracle, has a new mansion in New England adjacent to Elsabeth Marbury's place . . . Arden's interior desecrating is very patriotic, the color scheme being red, white and blue . . . And to make you laugh louder her butler is a dead ringer for Uncle Sam . . . Hip Hip Hooey ! ! !

Right now there are several radio beach parties at Long Beach near the Lido and the Atlantic Beach Club . . . They have tuned in on this program and I hope that their lifted faces are not getting too red.

From the Pathfinder I learn those newsreels of the President and the First Lady of the Land especially posing for the cameramen were Mr. Hoover's answer to a mag article that he was hard to photograph.

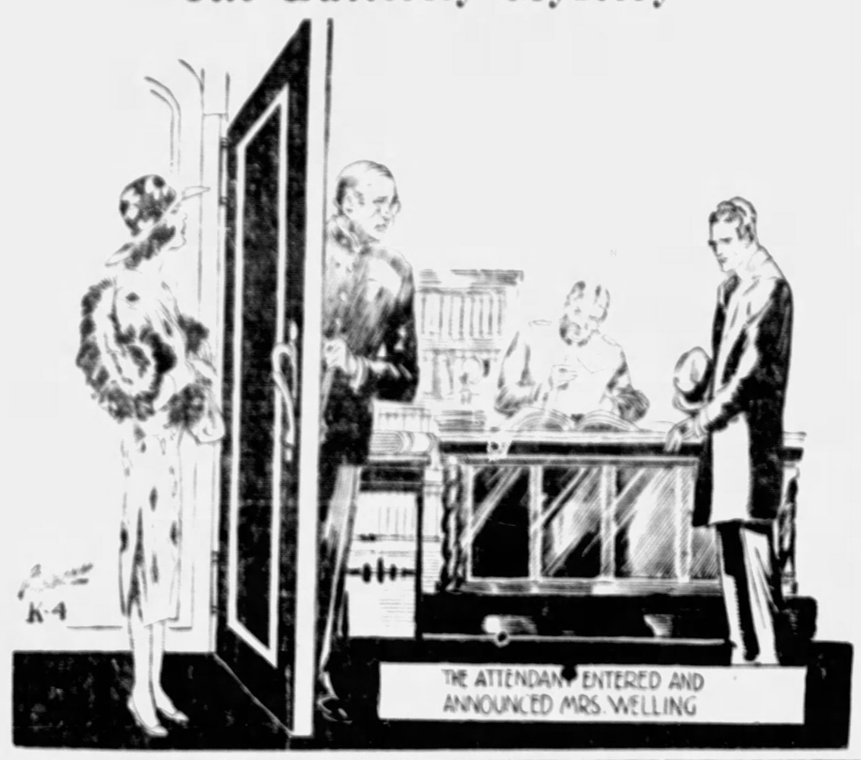
Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

The Butterfly Mystery



WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Zelma Shaw, a chorus girl is found in her apartment dead, by arsenic poisoning. Oscar Welling, her recently-divorced paramour, has been shot to death. The apartment is locked and bolted on the inside. All windows are barred. The hallboy had broken open the door at eight in the morning and found the bodies. Robin Dale finds a card in the apartment signed "M. W." It is a box of chocolates. The night boy tells of three callers the night of the murders. A prints are found on the knob of Welling's door. Are there any prints on the chocolate box, the poison which killed Zelma Shaw? The small pasteboard boxes are found in a waste basket. They contain no candy.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER IV

Robin Dale laid the newspaper story on Robert Bailey's desk. The city editor read it and his forehead wrinkled.

"What in blazes kind of a newspaper story is this, Dale?"

"An alibi, Mr. Bailey, a most acute alibi," Dale answered in a provoking tone. "When they learn that it wasn't murder and suicide you can wave this red-cheeked rag of yours and exclaim in a loud sonorous voice: 'I told you so!'"

The city editor smiled. He was acquainted with Robin Dale's idiosyncrasies.

"Well, let 'er ride, Dale, but I still say it's a heck of a newspaper story—a cross between a sob-sister blurb and an essay by a nut psychoanalyst. At that I think there's a little bit of both in you."

"A guy has to be a little nutty to work on a newspaper. If he isn't he gets that way. Have you got a cigaret, Mr. Bailey?"

Robin Dale spent that evening alone at home. He always liked to battle out problems with the aid of a little Scotch and a lo' of easy-chair.

If, as the case progressed, his anticipations failed to materialize he decided that his original hypothesis must have been incorrect. And in the scope that gradually uncovered facts differed from assumptions he was able in like ratio to alter the original hypothesis.

What would be likely to happen next? The telephone brought him the answer unexpectedly. It was Capt. Blake.

"We've located Mrs. Welling, Gregory Brandeis and Billy Treat. They're coming to headquarters tomorrow—thought you'd like to know. Mrs. Welling first, at eleven."

"Who was the mysterious lady who called on Zelma at nine?"

"No trace of her yet, but Jardin's on the job."

"See you at eleven, captain. Thanks for calling."

Robin Dale settled back in the easy chair. Here was something to anticipate. Why had Mrs. Welling sent a box of chocolates to the woman who had just robbed her of a husband? To poison her? That would have been ridiculous in view of the card and the signature? Why then?

A knock came on the door. Sergt. Jardin walked in when Dale opened the door.

"Welcome to the bungalow, sergeant . . . you're just in time for a beverage innoculation."

"I haven't been able to get stuff like this for a long time, Dale," and Jardin pursed his lips. "Say—I dropped in at the Sycamore tonight." It was coming.

"Had another little chat with that night-boy. There's one thing he forgot to tell us in the excitement this morning. About eleven-thirty Brandeis came back to the apartment. Walked right by the board and knocked at Zelma Shaw's door. Kept at it for about five minutes and then Abraham told him that she had company inside and probably didn't want to be disturbed.

"Then at seven thirty this morning Brandeis called on the telephone and asked to be connected with Zelma's apartment. I got that out of Jackson after I left the Sycamore . . . Jackson told Brandeis he had orders never to disturb Miss Shaw for any reason until she had given word that she was awake."

"What do you make out of it, Sergeant?"

"That Brandeis didn't know she was dead."

"Or that he was framing an unassailable alibi, sarg."

Jardin seemed a little dubious.

"He'll be at headquarters tomorrow?"

"Three in the afternoon."

Robin Dale was at Capt. Blake's office well before 11 the following morning. He was anxious to learn what Dr. Wattles' reports had brought forth.

"Every chocolate in the box was free from poison," Capt. Blake told him, "but you'll remember there had been one taken from the box and apparently eaten. The compounds in the little paper envelopes and in the capsules were ordinary bromides in common use as a relief from headache and upset nerves."

"Anything new on the mysterious lady?"

"Not a thing, probably just some friend that dropped in."

The attendant entered and announced Mrs. Welling.

KAUFMANN'S

ALIENIST SPURS MOONEY PLEA

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Impetus was added today to the fight of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings for freedom with the filing of an affidavit in the California Supreme Court by Dr. Howard C. Naffziger, brain specialist, characterizing John MacDonald as a "very sick individual" in 1916 when he was the government's star witness against Mooney and Billings in the Preparedness Day bombing trial.

In his affidavit, filed at the request of Supreme Court justices, Dr. Naffziger declares he operated on MacDonald twice and that the patient was a person "to whose opinion I could not personally lend any great weight."

MacDonald recently came here from Baltimore to "right a wrong" by refuting the testimony he gave in 1916 which largely was responsible for sending Mooney and Billings to prison for life.

One Dead, One Dying In Factory Quarrel

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—One youth was dead today and another believed dying following a shooting at the Majestic Radio Corporation plant here last night when the men, William, 22, and Baptiste Federicia, 26, went to the factory to "right" a fancied wrong. The younger one was fatally wounded.

They blamed J. H. Webb, a foreman, who had discharged them recently, and an argument followed. The pair resisted the efforts of Albert Marth, a watchman, to drive them from the grounds and the shooting followed.

Perry, in 'Solitary' 25 Years, Dies at 64

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Charles Curtis Perry, once notorious train robber and for 25 years in solitary confinement in the state hospital here, is dead at 64. He was violently insane.

WATSON LAUDS HOOVER REGIME

LINTON, Ind., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—United States Senator James E. Watson, in a speech prepared for delivery at the opening of the Republican fall campaign in Indiana here today, declared that President Hoover and his party have redeemed every pledge and promise made to the voters in 1928.

He defended the present tariff act at length, and asserted that the administration had done much toward bringing relief to farmers. In addition, Senator Watson said, the party had dealt quickly and successfully with the stock market collapse of last October, the wheat surplus and the drought. He said:

"We can neither foresee nor legislate against a collapse in the price of stocks, or a widespread and disastrous drought, or an economic depression that embraces the whole earth, and, but for such sudden, unexpected and inescapable catastrophes, we would be enjoying our customary degree of prosperity."

Henry Ford and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, were criticized by Watson for engaging in manufacturing in foreign countries.

Test Sanity of Man Threatening Nurse

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(INS.)—Howard Carson, who held police at bay for two hours while he threatened Miss Annie D. Jennings, a nurse, with a pistol as she refused his attentions, was taken to the Gallinger Hospital today for mental observation.

Carson, crazed by liquor and love, and who, police say, has admitted being paroled on a narcotic charge in New York, was subdued when a rookie policeman, Earl Baker, crossed an areaway on an ironing board and, leaping into the locked room where Carson stood over the girl with his gun, beat him into submission with his fists.

25,000 VOTES HINGE ON COURT RULING

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Jimmy McKay was twisting the dial of the radio in the Amen Corner, trying to locate some tunes of the 1890's, when we interrupted him. You've probably heard of him. He's 70, looks 50 and dresses 40. Mentally he is as alive and quick as ever he was. He has been county detective, millhand, saloonkeeper and politician. Now he is more or less retired and spends most of his time telling stories. He is a good story teller, mixing in just the amount of blarney a particular story requires.

"You know," he said, abandoning the radio in disgust, "what the country's coming to I don't know. Take that girl that sat on the flag pole on the hotel—and that reminds me; I never kin think of the Fort Pitt Hotel that I don't think of young Pat O'Malley's father.

"There was a strike in the mills at the time, so we all got work on the Fort Pitt they was building then. It used to be Graham's brick plant. Well, the foreman was forever calling the rooms by names—the Georgie Anne room, the blue room and what-not, and that was all new to us. He would say to O'Malley, 'O'Malley, take this to the blue room and take this to the red room,' and the like.

"One day he sez to O'Malley, 'O'Malley, take that pile of boards to the roof.'

"And O'Malley sez, 'Yes, sir!'

"The foreman came around again in 15 minutes and there was the lumber still there.

"'O'Malley,' he says, 'haven't I told you to take the boards to the roof?'

"'Yes, sir!' O'Malley sez.

"And when the foreman takes his leave O'Malley turns to Tim and sez, 'Tim, tell me, what room is the roof?'

"In those days we used to hold parties. I was working in the Crescent rolling mill in Soho—Soho was from the dam out Second avenue in those days—and I remember Bridget Keenan's party. Bridget asked me to come and I took my friend Pat, who was a big greenhorn working alongside me. We wore the paper collars then because them that wore the linen was considered dudes.

"At those parties we used to dance to 'Turkey in the Straw' and we'd called the figgers. And the party would never be over until the fiddler got too drunk to play any more.

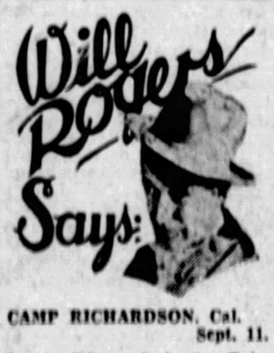
"As I was saying, Pat was a greenhorn. He was coarser than the rest of us, and we were coarse. Well, Bridget didn't want him to come, but I put a paper collar on him and we took him. I made him buy a box of the paper ones—a dozen for a dime, and you could just throw one away when it got dirty and put on another.

"The party was a great success and it didn't end until 2 o'clock. Casey, the fiddler, fell off the table, so we all put on our hats and departed. And on the way home Sam Bennett, that ran the saloon in Second avenue, handed me a pint and said, 'It's for when you wake up, Jimmy.'

"Well, my friend Pat and I were living up in Calico Hill, and I looks at Pat and sez, 'Pat, shall we walk it?' and Pat sez, 'Sure!' so up we go. Up a piece we were when I hit a nice green spot and I sez to Pat, 'Pat, shall we have one?' and Pat sez, 'Sure!' so we had a nip.

"And then we lay down on the green and we go to sleep. And I'm sleeping until the sun shines in my face and wakens me. And I look over at my coarse friend Pat and there's Jim Mulvihill's goat—the one that's in the assessor's office now—eating my coarse friend Pat's paper collar. We all had goats in them days."

Will Rogers Says:



CAMP RICHARDSON, Cal. Sept. 11.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

We've got a funny situation here. We brought up about dozen girls to play the "divorcees" in the hotel scene in "Lightnin'" and here every day watching us shoot are a hundred real "divorcees" from Reno, all dying to get into pictures while they are serving their time. If any woman is missing from your community and you don't know where she is, she is here. The most popular charge here lately as grounds for divorce is snoring, and husbands staying out late playing miniature golf. They put in all spare time making their trousseau.

WILL ROGERS.

THREE FIREMEN AND WOMAN INJURED

Bakery Flames Spread to Houses; Alarms Call All Apparatus of District Out

While officials were making a final check to determine their losses in a fire which late yesterday swept the Duquesne Baking Company plant, 223 to 231 Auburn street, East Liberty, resulting in the injury to four persons, police and fire officials today were trying to determine the cause.

The injured were Firemen Frank Stockley and George McElroth, of No. 8 Engine Company; Capt. Charles Frank, of Engine No. 38, and Mrs. Julia Harris, 27, a Negro, of 233 Auburn street, whose home was in the path of the flames. The firemen were treated at the scene, and the woman was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, suffering from shock.

ALL EQUIPMENT CALLED

When firemen arrived on the first alarm they found the building a mass of flames, and a "three deuce" alarm was sounded, followed a few minutes later by another alarm. All fire equipment in the East Liberty and East End area was rushed to the scene.

The flames spread to several houses adjoining the plant. Mrs. Harris, who was ill in her home, leaped from a second story window to the street. Her injuries were slight, police said, but she suffered from shock.

Twenty-five men were at work in the bakery when an explosion occurred, police said.

FINDS SMALL BLAZE

J. D. Williamson, president and manager of the bakery, told police he discovered a small fire in a frame structure adjoining the plant garage and went for an extinguisher. When he returned, the garage was in flames.

Before he could get away from the fire, the explosion occurred. He estimated loss of the buildings and machinery at $200,000. Police said nearby buildings were damaged $12,000.

Lieut. William Fullerton reported that while searching a dwelling at 221 Auburn street he found a still of 150-gallon capacity on the third floor. Occupants of the house had fled, and he could not ascertain the name of the owner of the still.

ROBBERS SLASH MAN IN FIGHT

Slashed with a penknife when he refused to turn over his two weeks' pay to two robbers, Alexander White, 60, of 1508 Brinton avenue, North Braddock, today was recovering from wounds of the neck and forehead, according to a police report.

White was attacked as he sat in a chair in the kitchen of his home, police said, shortly after returning from the Edgar Thomson Steel Works at Braddock, where he is employed.

The prowlers, according to police, forced an entry to the White home by crawling through a transom. White struggled with them, but they escaped after taking about $10 in change, he told police.

Harry Stewart, 26, of Larimer avenue, North Braddock, was arrested later and held in connection with the attack, police said.

$176,125 CITY CONTRACTS AWARDED

Bowling Green to Be Built In Schenley Park; Street Improvements Included

Contracts for improvements to cost $176,125, including the city's first bowling green, were awarded today by Public Works Director E. G. Lang.

The bowling green will be built in Schenley Park by the Welsh Construction Company at its bid of $1,460.

STREET PROJECTS

Street, park and sewer improvements comprise the remainder of the contracts. Lang notified property owners along Grant street from the Boulevard of the Allies to Water street that the city soon would ask bids on the widening of that block.

CONTRACTS LET

Street contracts awarded included the following:

Essen street, M. O'Herron Company, $13,218; Diamond street, East of Ross, M. O'Herron Company, $12,296; Bruce street, from Forty-second to Forty-fourth, $5,707; Childs street, from Swinburne to Parkview, $11,344; Snowden street, from Calhoun to Brushton, $5,982; Warren street, from Catoma to Jay, $5,724; Forest way, from North Braddock to Collier, $7,435; Berry street, $1,776; Crosby avenue, East of Pauling, $3,333; Federal street, from North to Alpine, $8,744; Montour way, from Sixth avenue to Strawberry way, $1,194; North Euclid avenue, Bunker Hill to Callow Hill, $11,436.

GROCER, THIEF IN GUN DUEL

North Side police today were seeking a thug who escaped from a grocer during a running gun battle in Allegheny avenue, late last night.

The robber entered the grocery store of Carl Lange, at 820 Allegheny avenue, and, at pistol point, looted the cash register of $30, police said. Ordering Lange to remain quiet, the thug fled through the front door. Lange seized a revolver from beneath the counter and pursued the man down Allegheny avenue.

The grocer opened fire in the chase and the thug answered with several shots. Lange believed one of his bullets took effect because the man staggered after the storekeeper had fired the last shot.

Engineers to Visit Springdale Plant

An inspection of the West Penn Power Company plant at Springdale will be made Tuesday night by members of the Pittsburgh section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the electrical section of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania. The trip will take the place of the monthly joint meeting of the two organizations.

Boy, 3, Badly Hurt In Fall From Slide

Three-year-old Edward Vecchio, of 600 Watson street, Hays, today was in the Homestead Hospital with a fractured skull suffered last night when he fell 12 feet from a slide in a playground in Carter street, Hays. The child climbed to the top and was about to slide down when he lost his balance and fell. His condition was regarded as serious.

Armstrong Asks Campaign Literature of Martin

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Allegheny County Republican Committee, has written to Republican State Chairman Edward Martin in Harrisburg for campaign literature to be used prior to the November election.

Armstrong said the Allegheny County Committee has obtained rooms in the Hotel Henry for headquarters and that numerous inquiries are being received as to when the campaign would open. Armstrong wrote:

"We are ready on a minute's notice to do that which I understand you are interested in us doing, namely, open up a headquarters for the state Republican ticket."

Martin recently forwarded to Armstrong a letter saying Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor, would come to Pittsburgh Saturday for a three-day visit and requesting that Armstrong arrange for local committee members to meet the nominee.

All the Republican state nominees except E. C. Shannon, for lieutenant governor, will be here at the same time.

Ungracious, New Relatives Make Cathie Angry

CHAPTER XVI.

Cathie finished dressing with fingers that were all thumbs. She felt that she ought to go right down to welcome Chester and his bride. But who was she to welcome a son returning to his own home? And suppose Mr. Farnsworth hadn't got in touch with him, and he didn't even know his father was married . . . he'd wonder who in the world she was . . . No, she couldn't go down. Not until Mr. Farnsworth came and got her.

She wished that Marguerite had stayed to help her. Perhaps she was doing something for the other Mrs. Farnsworth.

Cathie opened the door a crack and listened. No one upstairs. Everything was quiet. Then someone must have opened a door downstairs, for she heard voices . . . Mr. Farnsworth's . . . She couldn't be sure.

She went back to her dressing table and sat there, buffing her finger nails, adding more lip rouge, wiping it off again. If Mr. Farnsworth was downstairs, why didn't he come up, for her?

She was wearing a moire dinner dress, of bright watermelon pink. Chester's wife would be in traveling things. She'd look conspicuous and silly in that bright pink.

Excited
Is Nervous When She Meets Relatives

With damp, clumsy fingers, she tore off the pink dress, struggled into a long-sleeved, dark blue georgette. Now whatever made her choose that? The little lace collar and cuffs made her look like a neat school teacher . . . worse yet, one of those old-fashioned governesses or paid companions . . .

Her hands were already on the fastenings.

"Catherine! Catherine, my dear!" Mr. Farnsworth was calling her from downstairs.

She opened the door wider. Yes, Alfred?"

"It's Chester, Catherine. Catherine, Ches and Enid are here!"

"Coming!" Cathie called.

No time to change her dress again. She must come as she was. Not that it mattered particularly, Alfred always thought she looked nice, and the son and his wife wouldn't like her, no matter what she wore.

Relaxes
Begins to Study New Family

She could hear a woman's fluted, affected laughter, and a man's voice—like Mr. Farnsworth's only lighter, less kindly. Her feet dragged on the stairs. But she lifted her head, so that the beautiful line of her throat showed strongly, and with a very good imitation of her own natural, charming smile, she went in to greet Mr. Farnsworth's son and his wife.

"How do you do?" the wife murmured, fixing Cathie with large glassy eyes.

"Charmed, I'm sure," the son said. He cocked his head on one side, and stared.

Mr. Farnsworth helped Cathie. He was so genial and happy. He took it for granted that they were all going to be friends. He spoke of the trip he and Cathie had had in the south, then began asking Chester and Enid questions about their trip. "Catherine and I will be going over some time before very long," he said.

Cathie relaxed a little. She began to study her new family. Chester was a tall, rather stoop-shouldered young man with a sallow complexion that contrasted strangely with his father's fresh, florid countenance. Already he was a little bald, with thin, light brown hair combed carefully over the bald spot, and small, shrewd brown eyes, of the shoe-button variety, behind thick, horn-rimmed glasses.

Resentment
Cathie Is Angered by Chester's Wife

Enid was tall, and languid. She had a wealth of black hair that she wore in a knot gathered with artful carelessness at the back of her head. Her brows were narrow and finely drawn, and her sunburnt skin, which she accentuated with ochre powder, was startling, in contrast with her brilliantly rouged lips. She made Cathie, curly headed, faintly freckled and short of statue, feel like an improperly dressed small girl.

"It's going to be a frightful bore, being back," she said. "After the sort of time we've had abroad. There's no one interesting in San Francisco any more."

"Why Enid!" Mr. Farnsworth chided, laughing.

"No one young, I mean—except Chester of course!"

"And Catherine, Catherine's young!"

"Oh yes, one must include Catherine," she drawled.

Cathie's nervousness came back now. The men were talking together now and she couldn't think of anything to say to Enid. After a few languid questions about Cathie's people . . . who they were, where they lived, what school Cathie had gone to, what sorority, Enid ceased talking. She answered

TAX RECEIPT DECISION TUESDAY

Eligibility Opinion Will Have Effect on November Poll; Hold Assessors Erred

About 25,000 Pittsburgh residents who have been denied the voting privilege since last year by a dubious interpretation of the ruling of three judges may be made eligible to take part in the November election as the result of a case pending in court.

The outcome depends on a court requiring the county tax board to show cause next Tuesday why two clients of Attorney Ralph H. Frank should not be added to the list of residents of eligible to vote November 4.

The clients, Mrs. Charlotte Ryan, of 27 Wabash avenue, and Mrs. Eva N. Stauffer, of 425 Boulevard of the Allies, were among the number, estimated at 20,000, stricken from the eligible list of voters after a hearing before Judges Frank P. Patterson, James H. Gray and George Von B. Moore.

ERROR CHARGED

The appellants in that case argued the assessors erred in submitting the so-called "B to Z" books to the county delinquent tax collector for the issuance of tax receipts without the books first passing through tax offices of the county controller and county treasurer.

The judges restrained Walter J. Christy, delinquent tax collector, from issuing the tax receipts to persons listed in those books and as a result they were denied a vote in last September's primary election.

For many years it had been the custom for the tax assessors to add to the books names submitted by political leaders, of residents who had been omitted by the subordinate assessors in their house-to-house canvas, and who otherwise could not have paid taxes or voted.

VOTERS LOSE OUT

After the judges' ruling last fall concerning the "B to Z" books, the assessors decided it was illegal to add names to their books after the field men had completed the annual canvass. As a result, a resident thus omitted in the house-to-house canvas in a given year could not qualify as a voter until a year after he was entered on the books. In this way it is estimated that 5,000 votes were lost in addition to the 20,000 stricken from the books.

It is understood Attorney Frank believes the Board of Assessors misinterpreted the judges' intention and the pending case will test his judgment.

Frank was represented as contending that the field assessors are required by law to carry with them, when making the annual canvass, the books used in the field in making the previous triennial assessment.

The law provides, it was said, that the only change the field assessors are permitted to make is to add to the books the names of persons who had moved into a given district and strike therefrom the names of those who had moved away.

WOULD BE ELIGIBLE

Following that premise, residents on the books in the triennial year of 1928 should remain eligible to vote in 1929 and 1930.

Thousands of voters stricken from the assessors' books last fall are watching the progress of Attorney Frank's suit in the confident expectation of regaining the right to vote.

SEEK SIGNALS ON NEW ROAD

As a result of complaints received by the Pittsburgh Motor Club since the opening of the Perry highway several weeks ago, reflex warning signals will be placed at entrances to earth detours for bridge construction jobs on the highway between Pittsburgh and Mercer. Bridges are at Muddy Creek, Slippery Rock Township, and Slippery Rock Creek, Scott Township.

L. L. Roth, touring bureau manager of the club, said he had been told that lack of warnings at these places had resulted in several serious accidents. He has been assured by F. C. Frame, in charge of the highway department of Franklin County, that warnings will be erected immediately.

Extension Sought For Express Line

Application was made before the Public Service Commission by the Lightning Package Express Company for permission to take over the route operated by J. F. Gilmore. Approval would give the former right to operate motor vehicles for the transportation of freight and merchandise between Pittsburgh, Aspinwall, Millvale, West Etna, Etna and Sharpsburg, thus extending the service of the Lightning concern.

FILM ACTRESS HOSTESS TO GROUP

One Goes From Pittsburgh, But Five Will Be Given Delightful Bermuda Tour

Here's for the girl that's Paris bound!

Gloria Swanson sends a message today for the girls of Pittsburgh. It comes from Culver City, Cal., addressed to the Paris Tours Editor of the Sun-Telegraph and says:

"I am happy that Pittsburgh is to be represented at Paris when the various American girls go there as my guests in December, and I want the lucky girl who gets the trip to feel that she is to travel quite informally and without any thought in mind other than enjoying the trip. Everything possible will be to make it congenial for her."

Paris for a week! One of the real joys of some girl's life—a trip long to be remembered.

Here's for the five girls that sail for sunny Bermuda!

When Gloria Swanson disclosed her plan to give one of the girl readers of the Sun-Telegraph a free de luxe trip to Paris, all expenses paid and extra money to spend, the Sun-Telegraph decided to amplify the idea by offering five additional trips to Bermuda to girls who live in Pittsburgh or vicinity. These trips are to be made on the same de luxe plan as the Paris tour. The girls will sail on one of the palatial Munson line steamships and will be registered at one of the leading hotels at glorious Bermuda. These islands are only two days out on the Atlantic but they offer magnificent scenery, historic environment, balmy climate—everything that one could ask for a mid-winter vacation.

REVEAL PLANS SOON

The plan for awarding these Paris and Bermuda tours will not be disclosed until early next week. The initial requirements for eligibility are set down later in this column. Nomination blanks are coming in very fast. If you have not sent in yours, clip it from this page and mail it today. So many persons have asked for information as to the manner of making the awards that the Paris-Bermuda Tours Editor will say at this time that it is absolutely not a beauty contest. Details, however, will be disclosed early next week.

Incidentally, Gloria Swanson is giving her Paris trip on account of the fact that she has just completed her new picture, "What a Widow," which has a Paris background. This picture comes to Loew's Penn Theater later this month.

For the purpose of a fair distribution in the award of these free de luxe trips, the classes of workers to whom the awards will eventually be made have been divided into five groups. There is to be one girl more fortunate than all the others in these five groups. She will get the Gloria Swanson trip to Paris. The trips to Bermuda, however, will be awarded so that one trip, all expenses paid, will be awarded to each group. This means that when the winning candidate for the Paris trip is announced, another girl in the same group wil also be given a trip to Bermuda.

GROUPS CLASSIFIED

The groups have been arranged as follows:

Group 1—Telephone operators in the employ of the telephone company or operators in charge of private switchboards at hotels, clubs, mercantile houses and industrial plants. This group is limited in its entirety to telephone operators.

Group 2—Office workers, bookkeepers and clerical help; stenographers; private secretaries.

Group 3—Cashiers, restaurant employes, grocery store, chain store, etc., employes and workers in industrial plants other than the classification in the preceding groups.

Group 4—Department store and women's specialty shop employes.

Group 5—Home girls, students and school teachers.

The awards are open to every unmarried girl (excepting professional beauties, such as stage girls or artists' models, and excepting employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their families), who is a citizen of the United States and who is or will be at least 21 years of age at the time the awards are to be made, November 15, and who now lives and has a permanent residence within the territory where the Sun-Telegraph is in daily distribution.

NOMINATION BLANKS

Nomination entering a girl in the contest may be sent in by the girl herself, by members of her family, or by a friend, addressed to the Paris-Bermuda Tours Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh.

Any girl who lives in Pittsburgh or in the reading area where the Sun-Telegraph is sold, and who is eligible according to the requirements, may fill in and mail the nomination blank on this page and thus become one of the candidates to be considered when the magnificent Paris-Bermuda trips are awarded.

Upon receipt of the nomination blank, the candidate will be notified in detail of the further requirements in the matter of securing one of the trips.

QUIZ CONTINUES IN RIVER DEATH

Deputy coroners and homicide detectives today continued to investigate the death of Steve Zugec, 65, of 716 Eighteenth street, Ambridge, whose body, with a paving block tied to its neck, was found in the Ohio River near the foot of South Main street, late yesterday.

The body was identified last night by Mrs. Katherine Zugec, of 2616 Larkins way, the victim's sister-in-law. She told Deputy Coroner R. D. Newman she understood that Zugec, out of work for six weeks, had threatened to kill himself if he did not soon find a job. He came to her home Saturday but disappeared Monday, according to Mrs. Zugec.

The paving block, weighing eight pounds, was fastened to the man's neck with a lace taken from one of his shoes.

Camera Question Box

Today's question: What, in your opinion, is the most important task that Mayor Kline must take up on his return to Pittsburgh?

MISS DOROTHY WILLIAMS, North Side—I think the Mayor's first task should be to do something to help the great number of people who are out of work. That number has increased and something ought to be done about it soon.

Miss Williams

CHARLES McKINNEY, salesman, North Side—In my opinion the unemployment situation needs the most attention. If the Mayor will get something done about that, then I think the other things, such as the numbers lottery, will be cleared up automatically.

Charles McKinney

R. J. SORACCO, automobile dealer, Brookline—If enough jobs could be opened up in the city so that some of these men who are unemployed could get some kind of work to do, that would be one of the best things that have happened yet.

R. J. Soracco

MISS BESSIE KERNATS, waitress, North Side—The thing the city needs the most right now is to have some sort of construction work started so that more men can get work. I think the Mayor should take that up immediately.

Miss Kernats

MISS STELLA F. CARROLL, cashier, Pittsburgh—I think this numbers racket ought to be cleared up, and if the Mayor would try to do something about that his most important task would be finished.

Miss Carroll

RICHARD MURTHA, sergeant, New Brighton—My idea of getting something done for the good of Pittsburgh would be to begin on some public work in order to give some sort of relief to the men out of jobs. There are so many more of them now and they need help badly.

Richard Murtha

FAIR FEATURES MARKET WEEK

A "Merchandise Fair," in which 22 manufacturers are exhibiting their products, is one of the features of Market Week, marking the eighty-eighth anniversary of the Arbuthnot-Stephenson Company, Eighth street and Penn avenue.

More than 2,000 retail drygoods merchants have visited the exhibition, which includes actual demonstrations of the manufacture of dry goods.

Among the features of the fair are moving pictures showing the processes of manufacturing elastics; a knitting machine actually turning out lingerie tape; a knitting machine for the manufacture of ladies' hosiery; a sewing demonstration showing how bed spreads may be made in the home; and a step-by-step exhibit showing the processes in the manufacture of rugs.

"Through these exhibits and dealer helps, as well as sales promotion plans, manufacturers are aiding us in creating a closer relationship with our customers," said W. S. Arbuthnot, president. "This clearly indicates the desire of manufacturers and wholesalers to work hand in hand as maker and distributor, each respecting the function of the other."

LUCKY GIRL

only in monosyllables, yawning occasionally, studying her own slender, beautifully manicured hands.

Cathie's face burned with bitter resentment, resentment against this ungracious, disagreeable girl, and above all, resentment against herself . . . that she should care, that it should matter to her that she couldn't boast of a fashionable address, of a sorority, of all the other things that Enid had had . . . "I'm prouder of ma and all she did for us than if she had been a grand-duchess with nothing to do but hire nurses for us," she thought fiercely.

Nervous Tension
Duration of Visit Is Not Pleasant

But she knew that she didn't want Enid to know how things had been . . . If she should ever find out about Ma's soft shoes, and apron in the brown paper parcel, about those days of working out . . . Cathie shut her eyes in agony . . . Suppose Enid knew some of those women that Ma used to work for? Suppose Enid's own mother . . . That was morbid. There wasn't a chance in a million! Still, she couldn't stop worrying, and she couldn't get over disliking Enid.

They stayed a week. A week that was tight with nervous tension for Cathie. She tried desperately to be the perfect hostess, to maintain her place as Alfred Farnsworth's wife. Cheong and the servants gave her the same grave, respectful attention they always had, but when Farnsworth was away, during the day, the two young Farnsworths roamed the house trailing cigarette ashes behind them, ordering highballs and Martini cocktails, giving countless instructions to the Chinese boys, utterly ignoring Cathie. So far as they were concerned, they told her silently, she did not exist.

But when Farnsworth Senior was home, of course, Chester presented the perfect picture of filial devotion. Devotion that included not only his father, but twice, and some day—"

"Don't be absurd, duckie!"

Cathie knew what he meant—that some day when Mr. Farnsworth died, there would be more money. She colored, and so did Chester. Enid looked at them, and then at Mr. Farnsworth reading in a far his father's new wife. He even snubbed his wife when she made some slurring remark about the pretentious old house.

"I may not be a rich man as far as big money and world affairs go," he said angrily, "but I notice I didn't have to ask you corner of the library, and laughed.

The only person who enjoyed the week was Mr. Farnsworth. He looked from his son, to his wife and back again, smiling half to himself as if to say, "Am I not fortunate? Having you two to love me? Isn't it splendid that we all admire each other? Aren't we the happy family, we four together!"

And then something happened. Something that took Cathie's mind off her own troubles for a while, and filled her with strange forebodings of disaster.

She was on her way up to the third story to insist that Marguerite, the maid, either get up and do her work, or see a doctor. The woman had lain in bed, with all the windows closed, for nearly a week now, getting neither better nor worse. She claimed she had a cold.

"She's just stalling, for some reason or other," Cathie thought, on the stairs.

The murmur of voices came to her from Marguerite's room.

"Not another nickel!" A man's voice, that sounded like Chester Farnsworth's.

"I must have it!" Marguerite's voice was muffled with emotion.

"You damn blackmailer! You dirty little—"

The man's voice stopped suddenly. They had heard Cathie's footsteps on the uncarpeted stairs.

"Shh!"

Cathie went up doggedly. She couldn't turn back now, much as she would have liked to.

PRIEST HEADS CHINA SCHOOL

By E. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 11.—The new chancellor of the Catholic University in Peiping, China, has been appointed by Pope Pius XI and he is Dom Francis Clougherty, O. S. B., who used to play baseball in the back lots of Braddock and Swissvale.

Dom Francis' appointment was contained in a cable to Archabbot Alfred Koch of St. Vincent Archabbey, who made the announcement today. The office has been vacant since the death of Archabbot Aurelius Stehle, who formerly held it, as well as the directorship of St. Vincent's.

NEW COLLEGE FOUNDED

Dom Francis said he would make his headquarters for the time being at St. Vincent's. He announced also the foundation of a new college to be called the Women's Catholic College of Peiping. He said:

"I've just returned from arranging for six outstanding nuns of the Benedictine order to leave for China. They sailed from Vancouver, B. C., September 4. This will be in connection with the Catholic University, which was founded in 1924, and which this term will have around 800 students and a faculty of 80 or more. We hope to expand."

YOUNGEST HEAD

Dom Francis becomes, probably, the youngest head of a Catholic university in the world. Born in Braddock 35 years ago, he attended St. Thomas' grade and high school. His mother, Mrs. Mary Clougherty, a sister, Mrs. M. Gorham, and a brother, C. W. Clougherty, live in Swissvale. A brother, the Rev. Joseph A. Clougherty, is an assistant pastor of St. Kieran's Church, Lawrenceville.

Group Opens Season at Congress

Modern geography is a matter of mental attitudes and unless it gives pupils an attitude of world-mindedness, school boards are paying too much for their teaching, Miss Erna Grassmuck told an audience at the Congress of Clubs first departmental luncheon of the season yesterday.

It was the educational department's auspicious opening at which the chairman, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, presided and introduced, besides Miss Grassmuck, two other special guests, Frank Ramaley, assistant superintendent of county schools, and Miss Myra Sawhill, Pittsburgh author, and the musicians, Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, and her accompanist, Frank Kennedy, both favorites with all Congress audiences.

Miss Grassmuck is head of the geography department, State Teachers' College; president of the Geography Club of Western Pennsylvania; chairman of the educational relations committee, National Council of Geography Teachers; a member of the international relations committee, National Educational Association, and chairman of the geography section, World Federation of Education Associations.

Her talk, which she illustrated with folk songs, effectively sung, and many colored slides, gave an enlightening idea of what the changes in the map have meant to some of the European peoples. Geography, she said, is no longer a matter of pointing to little dots on a map or of memorizing lists of names. Today it is vitalized and is no mere memorization of facts; it brings an understanding appreciation of why some people both far and near do things differently from ourselves. There is a field ahead in commerce and industry for the child who is well trained in geography, just as there is for the one who is trained in science, she stated.

Changes Made

Several notable changes have been made in the Dormont New Century Club plans for this season. For one thing there is to be but one meeting a month and for each of these a committee from the very large hospitality and social committees has been appointed, in this way apportioning responsibility throughout the entire group. The president's reception will be held October 3 and Judge Sara Soffel will be the speaker.

Miss Alice McGirr, of Carnegie Library, will give a book talk and musical readings at the November meeting. In December the Junior Auxiliary will present a program of song and dance. January's speaker will be Mrs. Adolph Schmidt, president of the county federation. In January will also be held the annual guest night; February brings a round table luncheon and March a talk on "Doing Something About the Weather" by Miss Margaret Ingels, of Carrier-Lyle Corporation. The annual card party in March, an April program by the music and drama department, a talk by Dr. Florence M. Teagarden, of Pitt, and the annual luncheon with a program and bridge will finish the year.

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The bridge that unites the late afternoon with the evening hours is made of shimmering lame. For this lovely fabric has been found to be ideal for the frock which is to be worn at a smart afternoon gathering and still be attractive and appropriate enough to grace an evening function that does not demand formality. And the woman to whom time is the essence of the contract has been alert to recognize the useful attributes and the infinite possibilities of such a frock. In many instances the lame frock is simply made and unobtrusively styled, for the fabric itself is rich enough to supply the necessary elaboration for an important frock. The new weaves are frequently very delicate and supple and a frock of black and gold or blue and silver will be found to be a valuable adjunct to the wardrobe, whether it be a comprehensive or a simple one. The lame frock is glamorous without being gaudy, that is of course, if the frock is devoid of all but essential details and worn with simple but effective accessories.

THE LAME FROCK from Lucile Paray, sketched here is the type of frock that is equally good for formal afternoon and informal evening wear. An all-over design in gold on a black ground is set off by an all-gold facing in the wide cape-like sleeves and the swinging front drapery on the skirt. The frock buttons in front and there is a set-in belt at the natural waistline. The skirt is quite long, reaching mid-way between knee and ankle.

TRUST TO A JABOT to do its share towards lightening the outlook of a dull black frock. Chantal uses a jabot of pink and white pleaded georgette to brighten a frock of dull surfaced black woolen material. There is a slight widening at the top of the sleeve and seams run vertically from shoulder to wrist. The close-fitting bodice has a yoke cut out in points and is buttoned in front. The belt is of black leather. Flaring pleated panels at the side are topped with nice little pockets on the skirt.

The marriage of Miss Helen M. Doak to the Rev. John Earl Reed, of Oberlein, Pa., was solemnized at noon yesterday in Trinity Lutheran Church, with the Rev. Alonzo J. Turkle, pastor, officiating. The Rev. Reed is a former assistant pastor of the church.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe embroidered with pearls and sequins and carried Ward roses. Her only attendant was Mrs. Paul J. Keller, of Nittany, Pa., who wore old rose crepe and egg-shell lace and carried pink roses. The Rev. Paul J. Keller, of Nittany, a former classmate of the bridegroom, was the best man. The church was decorated with palms and autumn flowers, and Mrs. J. R. MacGregor played the wedding music.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception for the families and immediate friends was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacFadden, of Davis avenue.

Members of the Carrick Mothers' Club had an interesting time at their initial meeting yesterday in the clubhouse. It was a sort of pace setting meeting for the part the club is to take in the art-in-industry contest sponsored by the State Federation's home department. An exhibit of tapestries included a Gobelin piece a century old and a coverlet that was hand-made more than 125 years ago. Irwin D. Wolf gave an informal talk on art in industry and Mrs. Arthur B. Lynn on the history of Gobelin work. Both decorations and refreshments represented the work of the women's hands, for the flowers came from the gardens of Mrs. John H. Nusser, the cakes were made by the hostess committee in the club kitchen and the Carrick punch was a concoction of fruit from neighborhood trees and vines.

Also on exhibition were 17 small copies of famous masterpieces which the club will place in as many tenement homes for a month's visual enjoyment. These will be returned to Dream House, the little settlement center which the home department of the federation created last fall, and exchanged for others. Later a prize will be offered for the best essay on the pictures.

October 3 will see the beginning of another year for the Oakland Women's Club. Outstanding among the regular semi-monthly meetings are the president's reception on October 17, the annual visit to the International Art Exhibit in November; the annual Christmas and Toy Mission meeting; the reception for new members and the June outing.

Dexter Attempts to End Life by Drowning

CHAPTER I.

Late on a June morning Raquel sat in a garden dawdling over her coffee and rolls, and gossiping with Greta, who had just returned from a visit to New York.

She was in Paris. Or in Neuilly, to be more exact—a suburb of the Capital of Beauty and of Fashion.

Above [illegible] a flowering tree shook its [illegible] pink and green skirts in the sunshine. The gravel had been freshly raked in the paths, and all around the air was scented with the scent of [illegible] and the ardent sun.

"Do you adore Greta Raquel said, flashing delicately pointed fingers by way of enumeration. "I've been away from home America that is more than two years."

"I was wondering when you'd be ready to be shipped with a tag labeled 'U. S. A.' said Greta, crinkling her shell blue eyes quizzically.

"I was thinking of that," Raquel said blissfully.

"Why," asked Greta, "are you pretty little bourgeoise, right here? Three floors, one of em with a glass front, your own ballroom, a studio big enough for a skating rink, a flock of baths and a retinue. Five servants is a retinue—eh, wot?"

"I haven't thought about going back, since we took the house. It's more like home than I have ever had. I was sort of restless though, this last time you went over. You said you'd stay only two months and you stayed four."

Dislikes Name

"But Alphonse did the trip in six weeks flat."

"Yes." Raquel's eyes wandered to where a rose-vine clung gracefully to a high brick wall.

Greta eyed her sharply.

"You seem to do fairly well without us," she said. "What's this I hear about some young English blood burning to make you Lady Somebody or other?"

"Eric Stafford?"

"That's the blokie. And what a name! Talk about your Limehouse nights."

"Eric is—he's charming," said Raquel, defensively.

"Of course, he is," Greta agreed. "You don't think I see the least of the boulevards—le lis noir—barging about with a dead one, do you?"

"Please don't call me that—le lis noir—Greta. I hate it."

"Why?" sagely. "It's a swell moniker. The Black Lily. With a name like that a girl ought to be able to wangle most anything she wants."

"It sounds—unhealthy."

"So do orchids. But plenty of us are willing to take a chance and wear 'em. I'll admit the blokie who tagged you with the moniker that night in Montmartre was an awful egg but he had a howl of an idea. All Paris has taken it up. To Paris you're le lis noir."

"I saw Bertie Adams in New York."

Raquel's blank eyes sought Greta's blue ones with interest. "Did you?" she asked.

Speak of Dexters

"Yes. He told me you gave him a hard wallop. But the patient will recover. He's engaged to some little doll who rides to the hounds on Long Island. A debutante, if you know what I mean."

"I'm glad," said Raquel with the wraith of a smile. "Bertie deserves the best."

"Then he ought to have got you," said Greta loyally.

"By the way," Greta chuckled, "I saw your rival at Ciro's last night."

"Rival? Who?" Raquel wanted to know.

"Mrs. Dexter. Next to you, she's the hot choice of the judges for the Queen's Cup. She certainly is a fast worker, that one. There was a cloud of men buzzing around her, too. And the rest of the entries in the international beauty race that goes on in this burg without—"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Woman's Seven Pet Abominations

Verily, verily, my son, in the Rosebud Garden of Bachelors, a man of subtility and understanding shall be known as "Prize Winner." And he that heedeth my words shall find all women easier to play upon than a midget golf course.

Behold, there be seven types of men who delight the soul of woman.

A man that can sit beside her in a taxicab and refrain from gallantry and embraces; a silent man that permitteth his eyes to adore her; a man who can order a dinner without noise or "fussiness," a man who can LISTEN while she talketh, without letting his eyes wander or planning his next wise-crack; a man that "starreth" the woman he is with and forgetteth all others; a man that deferreth the first kiss until the appropriate moment; and a man that is tender but not importunate.

Likewise, there are Seven Pet Abominations which NO woman can endure in any man.

A bald head may be "clean-looking," and horn-rimmed spectacles may be "intellectual." But long hair at the back of the neck and a marcelled forelock, who can bear them?

A close-cropped mustache lendeth distinction. But a beard smiteth the eyes and spoileth the scenery; and a misplaced eyebrow upon the upper lip is an unspoken insolence.

A caveman may be put down and laughed to shame; but an insinuating manner and an amorous hand that squeezeth the arm surreptitiously are as sugar upon oysters, which must be swallowed and ignored, however sickening.

A wholesale flatterer may offend the intelligence. But he that seeketh to "improve" a woman is as castor oil and aloes, wholesome but NOT welcome.

Glittering cynicism may be supportable; but a cheap wit is as pepper in the eyes, and constant wise-cracking is as a pebble in the shoe that presseth upon a nerve, exceedingly painful.

A clattering tongue causeth boredom. But assumed world-weariness in a callow youth causes secret mirth; and bubbling "boyishness" in a man past 40 causeth a woman to blush for him.

An uninvited kiss is not ALWAYS unwelcome. But a man who cannot discriminate, and airly assumeth that ALL women expect to be kissed at all times is as an ant-hill at a picnic luncheon, irritating to the many and odious to the fastidious.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, September 12

A lively and eventful day may be presaged from the very interesting planetary configurations. There may be a welcome breaking away of old crystallized conditions making way for the successful launching of new projects, these involving advantageous change and cherished opportunities for energetic work. While the employment is not well fortified, yet there is promise of much recognition and assistance from friends, with personal popularity and the assurance of highly stimulated courage and abilities.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of high enterprise and progress, following the removal of old obstacles and congestions. Splendid opportunities and new projects are forecast, with assistance of friends and the fine stimulus of personal energy and initiative, although discretion is enjoined in dealing with those in places of authority.

A child born on this day may be finely endowed with qualities and abilities for a successful and happy career.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Bride's Thank-You Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When writing the little thank-you notes that the young bride sends thanking friends for gifts, how should she begin them?

2. Should the husband's name also be included in the note?

3. And should the bride in the body of the note ask the friend to visit her? A. H.

1. Begin your notes with an expression of appreciation of the "thoughtfulness" of your friend who sent the gift; or of "the characteristic kindness" or the "goodness and friendliness," or something that suggests that you appreciate first the thought that is behind the gift. Then talk about the gift itself, just as if you were talking with the person.

2. In the body of your note bring in the fact that "John" also appreciates deeply the kindness of the friend, and how enthusiastic you have both been about its beauty, its usefulness, and the joy you have had discussing where you would place it in your new home.

3. Yes, this is always the kind and thoughtful thing to do.

In Lieu of Regulation Bread And Butter Service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a chicken salad, for instance, is served, and an ordinary long-handled knife is brought to butter rolls or bread and a small butter plate just large enough to hold the butter is served, where is the knife placed after buttering—with the tip of it resting on the butter plate or the whole of it resting on the salad plate? J. W.

In this case the luncheon knife rests on the salad plate, both the blade and the handle touching the rim of the plate. That is, the handle should not be allowed to rest on the tablecloth.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Nature As a Protector of Health

Nature defends the body in many mysterious ways. Hippocrates said, "Nature is the curer of diseases." Since his day science has done much to reveal some of the mysteries of the body and how to help the body overcome diseases. But even today our knowledge of the way in which the body defends itself is only fragmentary.

DR. COPELAND

Resistance to diseases is a strange thing. Individual resistance to disease differs widely. There are those who go through a long life and seldom have a serious illness. Others pass from one infection to another.

The causes that are most likely to lessen one's resistance to infection are many. They include insufficient or unsuitable food, lack of proper sleep and rest, spending time in a vitiated atmosphere, exposure to wet and cold, fatigue, worry and excesses of every sort.

If your body is weakened by wrong living by any or all of those factors just named, then it is that the germs of disease gain the upper hand of Nature's defenses. Those who live wisely and harden their bodies by vigorous exercise are helping build up defenses. The body can then more readily destroy the millions of germs everywhere present.

Chilling of the body has various effects on the body. It may lead to colds, pneumonia and even greater harm.

Persons are much more susceptible to draughts if they are used to still, warm air. Draughts are seldom noticed by persons in good physical tone. Those who are susceptible to them, elderly persons and infants must beware of them.

Another factor responsible for weakening naturally strong bodies is mistaken methods of feeding. The state of nutrition has a great deal to do with resistance to infection.

Infection by the germs of tuberculosis is widespread. But its active development in an individual is almost always due to lowered bodily resistance through impaired nutrition.

Self-poisoning from constipation is another alarming tendency among people of today and one which weakens the entire structure and all the organs of the body. It lowers man's efficiency tremendously.

Probably the greatest natural incubator of microbes in the world is the intestinal canal. It is said that from the alimentary tract 30 trillion bacteria are expected daily by a normal, healthy adult. No one can afford to be neglectful of the excretory organs.

It is the person with a naturally strong body, made so by right living, who has the power to resist disease.

Should Ladies Be Slapped? Or Don't They Really Deserve Any Slaps?

Does the question startle you? Well, blame Loretta Brown. She started it. Loretta, if you remember, was the young spitfire whose husband did slap her . . . and lock her in the closet to "cool off," when she flew into a tantrum and called him names—mean, fighting names that any man would have slugged another for using.

She brought the story to us . . . and a sad sad story it was. Plumb full of tears 'n' sobs 'n' self pity.

And we told her that we couldn't see any reason why a girl shouldn't be slapped if she asked for it. Then we waited for the storm.

It came. And you'd be surprised, how much of it was for our side. "Oh, the men would be!" you snort. But you're wrong, sister. Most of 'em were not men! We've only got room for two of them today, but they'll show the way the wind blows. We'll let Anna May tell it first.

Deary Sally—

I'm sorry for Loretta Brown, because she doesn't realize how lucky she is to have a husband like her Bob.

I used to be exactly like her, and it has taken me five precious years of married life to finally see that the trouble was right in my own tongue.

Granted that I had a slight grievance to start with. . . . My Bob was no angel, but then neither was I. . . . I'd start on a tirade that would leave us both sick and disgusted. Sally, I almost ruined one of the finest dispositions I ever knew in a man, before I woke up and got some sense in my head.

If my Bob had only slapped me a few times, it would have taken some of the pestiness out of me and it wouldn't have taken all this time for me to appreciate what a great fellow he really is.

We're happy now, only because I finally realized I was making a sap of myself and acting anything but my 28 years.

In trying to figure out what caused my tongue to act that way, I came to the conclusion that two things contributed to it. First, that I was pampered before my baby came, till I thought I ought to have the earth with a fence around it; and second, that I had to stay in alone with the baby so much that I created my own excitement in the form of these silly periodic battles.

Loretta had better wake up before it's too late. If she does not, she'll find some day that she's completely ruined her own happiness. She'd better stop her foolishness and stick to her Bob . . . or she'll realize some day that she is her own worst enemy.

Naturally, I'm not cheering for Brutal Husbands, but I do think that when a woman does something that calls for a smack, she should get it. A man would. Why not a woman? Why should we expect to be carried on a pink pillow, and never take the consequences of what we do?

Wake up, Loretta! Quit blaming Bob for your troubles.

ANNA MAY.

Straight from the shoulder, isn't it? But how mad it will make some of the sisters.

Then here's Peter. Ordinarily, Peter's strong for chivalry, but he too, thinks Loretta got what was coming to her.

Dear Miss Martin:

I've just read your answer to Loretta Brown, and I want to tell you that I stick with you on it.

Of course I don't believe that a man should beat up a woman because most of 'em aren't big enough and strong enough to defend themselves. And I can't see the idea of a man coming home steamed up and beating up his wife when she hasn't done a thing but stand for his nonsense. But I do think that if a woman invites a slap by acting like a sap and starting trouble, she should get it.

You are right when you say that women are no better than men, and that they should be willing to stand the consequences of what they do.

Why should they expect to get away with murder just because they're women? But a lot of them do. Bum sports! They want to be independent and to act and be treated like People . . . except when the consequences are being handed out. Then they want to duck! And yell, "You can't hit a woman!"

I'm for you, Sally. And for every other woman who has fair and square ideas. Here's wishing you luck. And hoping that Loretta gets next to herself before she gets into Regular Trouble and loses her husband.

PETER.

How about it, Marian, Josie, Helen? Do you agree that ladies should get what's coming to them?

Or do you think that Females should be exempt from Consequences?

Speak up! We're listening!

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Grove Not Near Record. • Yacht-Racing Lingo.
Polo Reign Continues. Tennis Title to Stay.
Pennant-Winning Pilot. Diegel Joins Fallen.

MACK ACE CAN'T REACH WOOD'S MARK

THOUGH LEFTY GROVE has all but clinched the major league pitching leadership for 1930, he still stands such a long distance away from the modern record that it will be practically impossible for him to equal it in the short time that remains. The best modern record for one season in point of percentage by a pitcher who worked in 25 or more games is held by Smoky Joe Wood, former Red Sox star, who in 1912 won 34 games and lost only 5 for a mark of .872, and then topped it off by beating the Giants three times in the world series.

Joe Wood

Grove's record up to date is 26 victories and 5 defeats, a percentage of .839. To equal Wood's figures, therefore, it would be necessary for the Mackian left hander to win eight games more without a defeat between now and the finish, and, as the season will have only 17 days to go following this afternoon's contests, that contract would require Grove practically to pitch and win a game every second day all the way to the tape. As that isn't being done in these times, Wood's mark may be expected to stand.

THERE IS A reasonable possibility that Grove may reach one other height, however. It is that of winning more games than any other big league pitcher has won in a single campaign in the last decade. The highest notch in that respect was attained in 1924 by Dazzy Vance, of the Robins, who rolled up 28 victories against only 6 defeats. The only others to surpass Grove's present total in that period were Adolfo Luque with 27 in 1923 and George Uhle with the same number in 1926.

Grove must also be conceded a fair chance to break into the small circle of flingers who have won 30 games in a year. That select set hasn't taken in a new member since 1920, when Jim Bagby captured 31 decisions for the Indians against 12 defeats. The latest man to do it in the National League was Grover Alexander, who turned in 31 in 1915, 33 in 1916 and 30 in 1917. The only other pitcher to win 30 or more per season for three consecutive years was Christy Mathewson, who landed 30 for the Giants in 1903, 33 in 1904 and 31 in 1905.

JACK CHESBRO, one-time Pirate, still tops all the moderns for games won in a season. He hung up 41 victories against 13 defeats for the Yankees in 1904, only to lose the pennant by making a wild pitch in the last inning of the final game of the year against the Red Sox.

Jack Chesbro

Another record that still stands was set by Chesbro that season in pitching 48 complete games, beating the total of 44 which Joe McGinnity had set as a Giant in 1903. The closest approach to Chesbro's 41 wins was Ed Walsh's total of 40 for the White Sox in 1908. Walsh's defeats that year ran to 15.

CHALK UP ANOTHER victory for your Uncle Samuel in a big year of international competition. The polo championship and the cup that goes with it, held here since 1921, are safe for another twelve-month, at least, as a result of the American team's second victory over the British four at Meadow Brook by a 14-to-9 count, clinching the series and rendering unnecessary the third game that had been scheduled for Saturday. The triumph is none the less gratifying because of the fact that comparisons of the contending teams on paper had led to its being confidently anticipated.*

IT IS FURTHER evidence of this country's world supremacy in polo, a supremacy so marked that in the last six cup matches four against Great Britain and two against the Argentine, the first two games have sufficed to settle the argument on five occasions.

Only a single game has been lost in a total of 13 played in those six matches. The only time a match went the limit of three games was in 1928 against the Argentinians. In ten matches since 1909 the American team has been defeated for the cup only once, that time by Great Britain in 1914.

ELMER S. (DOC) BENNETT, manager of the McCook Club in the Nebraska State League, is being called the champion flag pole sitter of the minors. He never advanced beyond the Florida State League as a player, but as a manager he has done nothing but win pennants.

Ted Heard

Bennett has finished first each year since he was made pilot of the McCook Generals three seasons ago. The directors thought they had him stopped this year when they split the season, but Doc just turned in and won both halves. A call to higher company, probably the Western League, for 1931 is in prospect. It was Bennett who developed Pitcher Andy Bednar and sold him to the Pirates.

HERE ARE SOME yachting-term definitions that may help to keep you from wondering what it's all about when the big cup races get under way tomorrow and Skipper Ernest (Ted) Heard starts on the huge job of trying to lift the America's trophy with Shamrock V: TACK—To turn the boat against the wind so that the breeze will strike her sails from the other side. ABOUT—To change from one tack to the other. PORT—Left side, looking forward. STARBOARD—Right side, looking forward. LEE—Side opposite to the wind. WEATHER—The windward side. WINDWARD—Direction from which the wind comes. AFT—Near, toward or in the stern of the vessel. BEAM—Width of the boat. REACH—To slant off the wind when it is aft of the beam. REEF—To reduce the size of the sail. RUN—To sail before the wind. TRIM—Sheet in the sails so that they will draw. LUFF—Forward part of sail; to head boat up into the wind. BEAT—To go against the wind by alternate tacks. HAUL—To close up on the wind. JIBE—To turn boat with wind astern so that the mainsail swings from one side to the other. HEEL—To lean to one side. YAW—To go off the course. WING AND WING—To run with mainsail and spinnaker. SPINNAKER—Light sail used on side opposite mainsail when running before the wind.*

THAT LIST REPRESENTS only a few of them. More follow: JIB—Triangular lower headsail nearest bow. JIBTOPSAIL—Triangular sail above jib. BALLOON JIB—Large headsail used off the wind. BOOM—Spar used to extend the sail. SPAR—General term for mast and booms. GEAR—General term for rigging. BACKSTAYS—Rigging running from mast to deck slanting aft. SHEETS—Ropes used to haul in and trim sails. LEECH—Aft edge of sail. BATTENS—Strips of wood placed in leech of mainsail to keep it from flapping. FOOT—Lower end of mast or sail. HEAD—Top of mast or sail. HEADSAILS—Those forward of the mast. HALYARDS—Ropes or wire cables used for hoisting sails. CLEW—Point of sail where it is trimmed in. GENOA JIB—Large headsail clewed far aft. SCUPPERS—Holes along rail for water to run through from deck.

And you might add the following: CLOSE HAULED—Sailing as close to the wind as possible. STAY—Wire cable supporting mast. STAYS—Point between one tack and another when boat is headed up into the wind. STAYSAIL—Triangular sail between jib and mast. FLAT—When a sail is trimmed in close. STEM—Forward end of boat from bow down to keel. LEEWAY—Drifting to leeward. SHROUDS—Wire stays from mast down to sides. SPREADER—Arm extending out from mast through which shrouds run. STRUT—Small

TILDEN, DOEG, HUNTER COP NET TILTS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—Frank Shields, the New York boy with the build and strokes of a champion, provided the big thrill of the fourth day of the National tennis singles championship by upsetting Wilmer Allison in a great five-set match decided by scores of 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3, yesterday.

TILDEN COPS

G. Lyttleton Rogers, 6-foot, 7-inch Davis Cup ace, made a valiant stab at victory when he faced Bill Tilden, but was outclassed in the last two sets. Bill won as he pleased, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, and was more than ever the wizard of the racquet, befuddling the Irish titleholder with a dazzling mixture of sizzling shots and soft ping pong strokes.

Harold G. N. Lee, rated as the best of the Englishmen, was beaten by Johnny Doeg, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. John Olliff lost to Manglin, 6-3, 6-3, 10-8, and Frederick Perry took a set from Van Ryn before the former Princeton captain finished him off, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The veteran Frank Hunter kept pace with his famous pal by turning back another old campaigner, Richard N. Williams, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4.

BELL ELIMINATED

In another memorable five-set struggle, Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, downed Berkeley Bell, from Texas, by scores of 7-9, 6-4, 6-1, 2-6, 8-6.

A third youngster, Sidney B. Wood, of New York, came through with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 win over Samuel B. Gilpin II, of Philadelphia.

U. S. POLOISTS KEEP CUP

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—With a surging rush as impetuous as anything the famous Light Brigade ever put on the Big Four of American polo, galloped out of the ruck yesterday and put to rout the finest British challenge mustered since the war.

Trailing after five periods of hard-fought, sensational polo, Capt. Tommy Hitchcock's white-clad riders staged a come-back that broke up the Anglo attack, produced a free-scoring barrage in which Eric Pedley shot goals from all parts of the field, and clinched the match by the decisive score of 14 to 9.

It was the second straight triumph of the United States and clinched possession of the classic International Cup, emblem of world polo supremacy, for the fourth successive time since the war. The Americans won the first match by 10 to 5 last Saturday and settled the issue yesterday in spectacular fashion without the necessity of a third contest.

Hill Is Recalled By St. Louis Cards

The recalled players are Pitchers Carmen Hill, now with Minneapolis, and Ralph Judd, with Houston; Infielder Eddie Delker, from Rochester, and Outfielders Pepper Martin, from Rochester, and Wattie Holm, Joel Hunt and Homer Peel, Houston.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 11.—Johnstown trimmed the Clarksburg Generals to cop the Middle-Atlantic League championship here last night in the most brilliant diamond spectacle ever seen in Johnstown. The score was 9 to 3. The game was the seventh and final of the series as both clubs had registered three victories to date.

The game set a new league attendance record for a single game and also proved a big factor in shattering the record for a series. There were 7,265 paid last evening, which boosted the grand total for the series close to the 22,000 mark. The score:

Pirates, Out of Charmed Circle, Watch Leaders

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 11.—The Pirate family today, or the first time this year, left its own circle to dwell upon the fortunes of the neighbors; practically every member of the Pittsburgh team has pushed aside his personal baseball interest and is talking warmly of one of the greatest pennant races baseball has ever known. The present mixup of the Cubs, Cardinals, Robins and Giants has taken the Buccos' mind off themselves and the camp is full of discussions with considerable difference of opinion, although all agree that any of the four clubs involved might step in and win the big prize.

Not since 1908, when the Cubs, Giants and Pirates were almost in a deadlock in the last couple of days of the race, has the famous National League experienced such a tangle.

EVEN CHANCES

Manager Jewel Ens, of the Pirates, appears to believe the Robins have better than a good chance to cop, but Ens thinks the whole thing is pretty even. The Pirate boss figures Uncle Robbie to have a better schedule than his three rivals.

"I think the Giants will have to win today's game if they are to have a good chance to finish ahead," said Ens, who figures the McGrawmen will have to take the rubber contest with the Redbirds.

Up to today the Priates reckoned they had a fair chance to reach one of the money positions, but after getting trimmed yesterday the Freebooters have just about reconciled themselves to the fate of missing the charmed circle. The Ensmen will contest every inch to make a fine finish, but they have only 17 more games to play and realize they would have to establish and hold a furious pace to get over the boundary and into the first tier.

So, while the Buccos are battling the Braves in the present series, they are watching the scoreboards and the news from the Manhattan and Long Island front.

That the Cardinals are extremely dangerous, now that they have found themselves, is the opinion of many of the Pirates. No club in the league has an edge on the Redbirds when it is living up to its capabilities, and Gabby Street appears to have found the secret at last.

Skipper Ens stated today he would not be surprised if there would be a pennant bearing on the four games scheduled between the Pirates and Cards in St. Louis in the last four days of the season. In fact, Ens rather expects that these contests will have pennant significance, so close is the competition.

The failure of the Cubs to score a single run as they took two defeats in the Flatbush has caused a lot of comment in camp. But the Bears have their supporters in the Pittsburgh ranks. The Buccos have an admiration for the manner in which the Chicago players fight and hustle.

Ervin Brame will oppose the Braves this afternoon when the Pirates attempt to square the match. Manager McKechnie is likely to call upon Bill Sherdel or Bob Smith for slab duty.

BUCS BLANKED

Tom Zachary held the Buccos to four hits as the Braves won a 5-to-0 victory over the invaders in the first game of the series. The erstwhile American League southpaw did not allow a hit until the sixth when Lloyd Waner nicked him for a scratch single.

Remy Kremer held the Braves to seven hits in seven rounds, but Frenchy didn't have much chance to achieve that twentieth triumph.

Carnegie to Open Against Homestead

Taylor Allderdice has been supplanted by Homestead High as the opening-game opponent of the Carnegie High football team, it was announced today. Carnegie and Homestead will clash at Carnegie on Saturday, September 20.

RUSH REPORTS AT W. & J.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 11.—Maury Rush, brilliant halfback of 1929, who was stricken by malarial fever in Los Angeles a few weeks ago, reported to Head Coach Bill Amos yesterday afternoon. He is six pounds shy as a result of his illness, but otherwise is in good condition.

Mike Green, 195-pound tackle of Grantown, W. Va., is the first casualty in the Washington and Jefferson College football camp, suffering a dislocated elbow in scrimmage. He will be out for several weeks.

Arrival of Rush completes the Washington and Jefferson squad. The first scrimmage of the year between the varsity candidates and the freshmen is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, and it promises to be a lively skirmish with the yearlings the heaviest in years.

CUBS, CARDS, GIANTS IN REAL JAM

Associated Press.

A squadron of traffic police is needed along the road to the National League pennant. All the efforts of the trams from Chicago, St. Louis, Brooklyn and New York to get to the championship only have resulted in one of the greatest jams that highway ever has seen.

Yesterday's contests brought the Brooklyn Robins and St. Louis Cardinals a game closer to Chicago's league-leading Cubs. The New York Giants, in fourth place, remained only three games behind the top. With Adolfo Luque shutting out the National League champions with five hits, the Robins made it two straight over the Cubs, by a 6-to-0 count. St. Louis retained its one-point grip on second place as Jim Bottomley's eight-inning home run gave the Cards a 5-to-3 victory over the Giants. The standing:

	Won	Lost	Pct.	Games To Be Played
Chicago	80	54	.769	16
St. Louis	78	59	.569	17
Brooklyn	75	60	.556	15
New York	73	61	.545	14

ROOT OUSTED

The Robins ran out of their dugout yesterday to greet Charley Root, and promptly started running around the bases. Five men faced Root and all of them hit. Then Jess Petty came to the rescue and allowed one more blow which brought Brooklyn's first inning total up to five runs before he cast a spell over the Robins that lasted until he left the game in the eighth inning. Then they scored their sixth run off Lynn Nelson.

The Giants and Cardinals started out for a second pitchers' battle with Fred Fitzsimmons opposed to Sylvester Johnson. The Giants forged ahead slowly, getting one run in the first, which St. Louis equaled in the third and two more in the sixth when Frank Hogan clouted a home run with one mate on base. But the eighth inning overcame all their labor. High's single and Adams' double accounted for one tally. Then Frisch hit, and Bottomley smacked the ball against the upper deck of the stand for a home run and the ball game.

NATS, A'S LOSE

Tom Zachary's four-hit pitching and Wally Berger's thirty-fourth home run gave the Boston Braves a 5-to-0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Phillies defeated Cincinnati.

Washington failed to take advantage of an opportunity to tighten up the American League pennant chase. It lost to St. Louis, 3 to 2, although Alvin Crowder gave his former mates only four hits. Washington remained 6½ games behind the Philadelphia Athletics, who were not successful with their four blows off Vic Sorrell. They failed to score, while the Detroit Tigers bunched a good part of their five hits off Shores and Walberg for four runs in the fourth inning and won by that margin. A home run with two aboard by Recruit Frank Doljack, furnished most of the scoring.

Danny MacFayden, of Boston was not far behind in the day's hurling feats, as he gave the Chicago White Sox only six hits while the Red Sox hammered out a 6-to-2 victory. Henry Johnson of New York, had the honor of outpitching Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland's young ace, to give the Yankees their second straight triumph over the Indians, 7 to 2.

SAMPSON BEATS DIEGEL IN P. G. A. PLAY

LEO TRIPPED IN PROLONGED MATCH

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Harold Sampson, a tall Californian, who cannot hit a golf ball very far, but is very, very straight, had his hour of golf glory yesterday when he removed the champion from the Professional Golfers' Association championship in the second round.

Sampson defeated Leo Diegel, 1 up, although he had to go 38 holes to turn the trick. The 35-year-old pro of the Burlingame Country Club sent a 12-foot putt spinning home for a birdie 3 at the second extra hole and the man who has been champion for two years and always a threat in this classic competition, was eliminated.

Today's play will array Sampson against Lacey, Armour against Farrell, Sarazen against Espinosa and Kirkwood against Smith.

Yesterday's results:

Charles Lacey, Philadelphia, defeated Al Watrous, Detroit, 3 and 4; Harold Sampson, Burlingame Ca., defeated Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mex., 1 up, 38 holes; Tommy Armour, Detroit, defeated Bob Shave, Cleveland, 7 and 5; Johnny Farrell, New York, defeated Densmore Shute, Columbus, O., 3 up; Gene Sarazen, New York, defeated Bob Cruickshank, Marblehead, Mass., 1 up; Al Espinosa, Chicago, defeated Harry Cooper, Chicago, 4 and 3; Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia, defeated Joca Cuenta, Dayton, O., 1 up, 37 holes.

DUKES HOLD CORN ROAST

The Night Riders of Duquesne University may not be from the wide open spaces, but they are corn-fed gridders just the same. That is temporarily and after last night.

A corn roast was held on the campus, with a roaring fire lighting up the face of three score and 10 football candidates and the huge Pittsburgh skyline forming a background. Some 400 ears of corn were on hand, plenty of butter and coffee and dancing, singing, etc., thrown in to boot.

Pep speeches were made by a number of notables, while Walt Mahler, the warbling Mt. Lebanon Minstrel of Duquesne, sang school songs. Trainer Brue Jackson and his Keystone Jubilee singers put on a song and dance act, and the men used upper and lower plates on the sun-kissed ears.

SCRIMMAGE TODAY

Scrimmage in a big way is on the books for the Duquesne University gridders today. Head Coach Elmer Layden will pitt his Night Riders against the band of husky freshmen who are seeking yearling berths on the Bluff under Coach Buff Donnelli.

The Duke squad is very unsatisfactory to Layden at present and he has impressed them with the fact that the time is growing short, the opening of the season being almost upon them. Just seven more days separate the Dukes from the Mountaineers.

PITT SLUGGISH

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 11.—More scrimmage was on the program today after a day of light workouts in the camp of the Pitt Panthers. The squad was a little sluggish yesterday after a week of scrimmage sessions and a change in training routine was deemed advisable.

There likely will be scrimmaging the rest of the week and about three days next week, at the end of which time Coach Sutherland should have a pretty fair idea of what his starting lineup will be.

Outside of the possibility of Francis Seigel, sophomore guard, breaking in, the forwards are practically set now with MacMurdo and Collins at the ends, Tully and Quatse at the tackles, H. Morris and Milligan at the guards and Daugherty, center.

TECH GETS LETUP

Continuing their policy of alternate days of hard scrimmage and light workouts, Carnegie Tech's coaches today were planning another letup for all the varsity men. The players are now so close to playing form that the directors do not wish to run the risk of their going stale. Consequently, today was expected to be perhaps the lightest one since camp opened on August 28.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 10.

Van Voorhees, of Columbia, receives Cornell's kickoff and then fumbles the ball, which goes out of bounds, the ball crossing the sidelines on his own 36-yard line. What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

Another new 1930 rule covers this case. The referee awards the ball to Columbia at the point where it is brought back into the field of play 15 yards. Under the old rules it belonged to the team whose player last touched it at the point where this occurred on the field of play.

Fight Results

At Kenton, O.—Joe Lohman defeated Frankie Wine, 10 rounds; Jack Rose and K. O. Pitts drew, 10 rounds.

At Poughkeepsie—Jack Renault defeated Salvatore Ruggerillo, 10 rounds; Oreste Colognate knocked out Jack Goodwin, 4 rounds.

At White Plains, N. Y.—Patsy Buffalo knocked out Georgie Balduc, 4 rounds.

RUTH HONORS KREMER

By BABE RUTH,

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

"Why not pick an all-star team from each league?" writes a fan from Cincinnati. "And after you pick them, tell us which you consider the stronger group."

Babe Ruth

I've done that, but somebody else will have to figure if one is stronger than the other. It brings up an argument that has been raging among the fans for years and years. Some say the National League is faster than the American, and others take the opposite side. I have always believed that the two big leagues are about even in playing strength, much more even than the world series might indicate.

By that I mean that a league can be well balanced in strength and its pennant winner can look bad in the big series because the other league has a standout team. Take the 1917 White Sox, or the 1927 Yankees, or the 1929 Mackmen. They surely stood out, and still the National League in those years might have had more playing strength as a whole than the American.

That's why I wouldn't predict that an all-star team from our league could beat an all-National team, or that the all-Nationals should win. But it brings up an interesting discussion for the fans.

Here are my choices for the best teams of each league:

American—Grove and Ferrell, pitchers; Cochrane, catcher; Gehrig, first base; Gehringer, second base; Cronin, shortstop; McManus, third base; Sam Rice, rightfield; Averill, centerfield; Simmons, leftfield.

National—Malone and Kremer, pitchers; Hartnett, catcher; Terry, first base; Frisch, second base; Jackson, shortstop; Lindstrom, third base; Klein, rightfield; Wilson, centerfield; O'Doul, leftfield.

Of course, these teams can never meet, so your guess is as good as mine. If I ever get to be a big league manager I won't kick if I have a team that is even close to ineither of these in all-around strength.

COUNTY NET CARD FULL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Extensive schedule of play makes up this afternoon's program for the Allegheny County tennis championships, in progress since last Saturday on the courts of the Carnegie Library Club at Duquesne, Pa. Men's singles and doubles and women's singles will feature the contesting, the masculine events being continuations of competition already under way, while the feminine affair is a fresh number.

The lone tussle accounted for on the Library lot yesterday was a doubles joust in which the fourth seeded team of John Brown and Frank Broida measured off Austin Lamarias and George Kaufmann, College Avenue top due, in a ripping battle, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

The man-to-man semi-final card, originally slated for Duquesne this afternoon, was rudely jolted when Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. contender, and Frank Smith, Edgewood captain, with the reluctantly-granted permission of Chairman Sam Keller, betook themselves into the seclusion of the Winged Head inclosure and settled their differences privately. The precise wherefore of this remarkable departure from tournament custom remains unexplained. At any rate, the thing was the subject of not a little adverse comment at the tourney scene last evening, and our guess is that henceforth all matches will be staged either at the Library or not at all. O'Loughlin, by the way, won, 6-3, 6-3.

This afternoon's bill calls for first round women's milling at 1:30 o'clock. Miriam Sullivan and Betty Wattles, P. A. A. racquetresses, are seeded one and two respectively in this division, with Miss Sullivan opposing Lillian Mullooly in the opener and Miss Wattles taking on Elsie Schink. At 2:30, Jack Beatty, husky Stanton Heights ace, will attempt conclusions with Billy O'Loughlin, Winged Head youngster of the dynamite forehand, in the lower half of the men's singles semi-finals for the right to fight it out with John O'Loughlin in the finale Saturday. Men's doubles will be in order from 3 o'clock till dusk, with short shrift to be accorded late-comers, for the defaulter's ax is sharpened and ready.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 11.—Expecting tomorrow to mark the start of the influx of drivers from other cities for the 100-mile gasoline grind to be staged on the local fair grounds' track Saturday afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock Standard time, a group of workmen has been working sealously getting the course in shape for their return.

Starter Jack Hayes has been here all week directing the operations at the oval, as he wishes the pilots to get in much of their practice activities as early as possible in order that he may be able to commence the eliminations at 10 o'clock Saturday morning for the event, which was postponed from last Saturday, due to heavy rainfall.

C. O. L. (Colonel) Hamilton and W. F. Theilman, this city's two aspirants for honors and purses, have been on the alert at all times to put their mounts through their paces when Starter Hayes would call a halt to the maneuvers of the track crew and give his permission for them to do so.

UPSETS MARK WEST PENN TOURNEY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Following a series of upsets in yesterday's quarter-final round in which the medalist and defending champion and two former title-holders were eliminated the pair of penultimate round matches in the championship flight of the annual fight for the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania throne proceeded over the beautiful fairways of the Westmoreland Country Club this morning.

Mrs. Frank E. Campbell Station Heights star was encountering the veteran Oakmonter Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth while in the lower bracket lithe little Betty Abernathy also of Oakmont and still carrying her lucky horseshoe on her golf bag was combating the tourney dark-horse Mrs. H. I. Banghart a newcomer to local circles who hails from Warren, Pa.

Yesterday Mrs. Campbell eliminated Emilie Roseburgh the defending titlist and medalist 1 up. Mrs. Wadsworth disposed of the former champion Antoinette Hunter of Oakmont 2 and 1 shooting 80-golf to do it. Miss Abernathy easily put out Mrs. J. Raymond Price the first person to hold the gonfalon 4 and 3 while Mrs. Banghart surprised with her 20-hole victory over Mrs. J. A. Ellen, Pittsburgh Field Club.

Tomorrow morning a new champion will be crowned after the 18-hole final is played. An exceptionally large mixed foursome tourney tomorrow afternoon will wind up the championship which has been conducted in a splendid smooth manner by Mrs. Sloan of Edgewood, president and her associates.

R. A. Coleman while playing with A. B. McGrew, Jr., Dr. T. B. McCullough and Frank E. Campbell, scored an ace on the 251-yard sixth hole at the Highland Country Club yesterday.

which has been so elusive. The best Kremer could have expected was a scoreless tie in view of the mastery which the lefthander exercised over the Pittsburghers. The Pirates have been suckers for more than one southpaw this summer and Skipper Bill had Big Tom all primed for them.

Walter Berger put the game on the ice for the Braves in the first inning when he walloped a homer into the center field seats with Rabbit Maranville on base. The Rabbit drove in Johnny Neun just before Berger came through with his thirty-fourth round-tripper of the season.

The snappy contest was reeled off in one hour and 13 minutes, the action being exceptionally fast and smooth until the eighth when the Bucos kicked in with a couple of errors that delayed the festivities somewhat.

ANOTHER TITLE SAFE: In the United States is the men's national tennis championship in singles. Betty Nuthall took the women's championship across the seas for the first time, but the men's crown is now certain to be won by an American.

That's the result of the elimination of the last of the foreign entrants in yesterday's play at Forest Hills when Lyttleton Rogers, of Ireland, and Frederick Perry, Harold G. N. Lee and John Olliff, of England, went down to defeat.

Bill Tilden

The present situation makes Bill Tilden a stronger favorite than ever to retain the title, but even though Berkeley Bell, conqueror of Jean Borotra, has been eliminated by Clifford Sutter, big Bill may find one of the other young Americans a stumbling block, notably Sidney Wood. Tilden would not be the first champion to fall this week, as Leo Diegel, national professional golf king of 1928 and 1929, was beaten in the second round of the Flushing tournament by Harold Samson, of Burlingame, Cal., who for four years had not even attempted to qualify for the annual P. G. A. tourney.

THE PASSING OF another day finds the National League pennant race in a dizzier state than ever. The Cubs' second defeat in Brooklyn and the Cards' victory over the Giants yesterday made the going closer than ever in the thrilling fight for the flag.

The Cubs in first place are only a game and a half ahead of the Cards and Robins in second and third places, respectively, and only one point separates the latter two teams, with the Giants, in the fourth hole, only three games from the top. A headache is the only possible result of any attempt to figure it out.

BALDUC STOPPED

Sports Editor.

Boxing fans have much to occupy their attention, tonight.

Shows are scheduled at Hickey Park, Millvale, and in the Palisades roller rink, McKeesport, where the indoor season in the Pittsburgh district gets under way.

Nationally, Al Singer, world lightweight champion, meets Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin in a 10-round non-title bout at the Yankee Stadium, New York, and Billy Petrolle and Tony Canzoneri top off an all-star card for the benefit of the daughter of the late Paddy Harmon in the Chicago Stadium which Harmon helped to be built.

DATTO MEETS THOMAS

Johnny Datto, Filipino featherweight socker of Cleveland, frustrated in several attempts to box Jackie Rodgers here, tackles Joey Thomas, rangy Chicagoan, in the windup at Hickey Park, where Thomas recently defeated Johnny Datto of New Kensington in his local debut. Tom Malco of Soho meets Billy Rose, Cincinnati welterweight, in the windup at McKeesport.

Supporting the Hickey Park feature is an eight-round semi-final between Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, and Al Becker, of Sheraden, welterweight rivals, and two six-round bouts involving Anastasio Vacquerio, of Panama, against Young Ketchel, of Steubenville, and Mose Butch, Oakland southpaw bantamweight, against Jackie Wilson, East End Negro.

BOUTS AT M'KEESPORT

Allen Beatty, Negro welter, of McKeesport, and Jimmy McGraw, of Wheeling, box the eight-round semi-final at McKeesport, with Sol Lippo, of Philadelphia, meeting Marty Gornick, clever former amateur, of McKeesport, in the second bout and Carl Rinsko, of Monessen, boxing Jeff Palmore, Wilmerding Negro, in the six-round opener.

Between Rounds

Bolger is the favorite to defeat McLarnin in their battle. It was figured when this match was made that Bolger was taking a great risk in giving away weight to such a hefty puncher as McLarnin, but confidence in his ability to successfully cope with Baby Face since has grown steadily. Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion, meets Ben Jeby in an eight-round bout to follow the windup and Armando Aguilar is paired with Lew Feigen and Ned Taborski with Jimmy Slavin in other eight-round battles on this bill.

Otto Von Porat meets Joe Lohman and King Levinsky battles Leo Lomski in 10-round bouts on the Canzoneri-Petrolle card in Chicago, with Harry Fiorito boxing Eddie Peters in an eight-round tilt.

Ray Foutts, of East Liverpool, O., wants to know why his Ted Yahoos of Monaca can't get more fights around here when he has won 29 consecutive battles in the little more than a year that he has been a professional. Incidentally, Ray now is the manager of Charley Clarke's Wells, Rochester, Pa., middleweight, who is ready to battle in these parts again.

Freddie Edwards, Huntington, W. Va., welterweight, of Fouts stable, boxes Young Rudy, of Charleroi, at East Liverpool, O., next Monday night and meets Dimmo Metrogan, of Wheeling, at Steubenville on September 26. Rudy holds two wins over Edwards and is one of only three opponents ever to beat Freddie, who has stopped the other two in return bouts.

Johnny Dunn wants to fight the winner of tonight's Thomas-Datto fight. He took on Thomas on three days' notice when he lost to him recently at Hickey Park.

Next Monday night's card at the Meyers Bowl is complete with the signing of Young Nanni, of Sutersville, and Fatty Severo, of Meadville, for the second bout. Baby Joe Gans, boxes Harry (Kid) Brown in the main bout and Black Bill meets Marty Gold in the other 10-rounder, making up a double windup bill. Joe Gandy, of McKeesport, and Steve Semich, of Homestead, will box the opener.

Roxy Rocaire, of Cleveland, and Art Weigand, of Buffalo, box the main bout of a show at Erie tomorrow night.

Battling Glory has matches in the making at Hickey Park next Thursday night and against Chet Smallwood in the main event of the opening show at Lambo Meyers' Monessen Temple arena on Friday night, September 26.

Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight has a bad right hand and will not be able to box again for a few weeks.

Phil Goldstein, Hill lightweight, is back in training and will box Jerry Edwards in a 10-round bout at Springfield, Mass., next Thursday night.

REFEREE STOPS BOXER

CHANCHAN, Wash., Sept. 11. (AP.)—Jimmy Downie, boxer was having difficulty in outboxing with his opponent's chin here last night, so he shot his eyes and whanged away hopefully. None of the potential haymakers landed on the opponent, Cotton Fryant, but one of them caught Referee Gene Tuttle in the mouth. Tuttle forgot all about refereeing and sent a stinging left to Jimmy's chin and a neat right cross to top it off. Jimmy went down for the count.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 4.

Umpire Tilden was destined to have a great influence on my career. No sooner had he called the third strike that ended the game than he turned to me and warmly congratulated me on my catching, particularly on my steadying of Pitcher Hogan in the final inning, when North Brookfield had a chance to win.

Connie Mack

I had some sizzling pitches to handle when he fanned the final two hitters, but managed to hold on to them and they stuck in my glove like burrs. He then asked me if I intended to take up the career of a professional ballplayer.

"If you do," he went on, "I will be pleased to recommend you."

Tilden was a young, fine looking and well-built man and his words sank deep. His kindly suggestion caused me for the first time to want to go out and play professional ball. I decided right then and there that I would.

I worked at the shoe factory that winter until March, 1884, when it closed down and went out of business. Here was another silent suggestion that I should follow a professional career. The only factory where I could make decent wages was out of the business and now it became almost imperative for me to try my luck on the professional diamond.

APPLIES FOR JOB

At the time I had been reading in Boston newspapers that a Connecticut State League was in process of formation. I wrote to the managers of several clubs, but when I received no replies I decided to visit them personally.

It was still March and cold and bleak when I visited Willimantic. I met the manager and formally applied for a position. I told him I had my mitt with me and was prepared to show him what I could do in the left of some big building. He laughed at my youthful enthusiasm, but said it wasn't necessary and that he would consider my application and let me know by mail whether he would take me.

I also visited the owners of clubs in New Britain and Hartford. I received some encouragement, but returned to East Brookfield with a heavy heart. Nobody had asked for my name on the dotted line. I then wrote to Frank Selee, later famous manager of the Boston champions, for a place on his team at Waltham, Mass.

Time went on and Connecticut State League teams were beginning to report and start training while I still was looking for a place. I wondered whether luck was against me and I would not see my desire realized to enter the professional ranks that season.

It happened that William Hogan, the pitcher, who was my battery mate with East Brookfield the previous year, had been signed by the Meriden (Conn.) team.

Meriden had just ordered its players to report and Hogan duly went there, with his tall catcher, much saddened and depressed, left behind.

HIS FIRST TELEGRAM

On arrival in Meriden, Hogan found that one of the two catchers obtained by the club had decided not to play and he immediately recommended me. So the manager sent me a wire that was the first I ever received in my life. My fingers twitched nervously as I tore open the yellow envelope and started to speculate if it had any good news for me. It did for it read:

"Come on at once,
"BOARDMAN,
"Meriden B. B. Club."

That same day, after packing hastily, I was in a train bound for the Nutmeg State. I met the manager, but he didn't speak of terms and said he would look me over for a day or two.

On the second day after my arrival we were booked to play an exhibition game with the Yale Freshmen. We dressed in a hotel and went to the grounds in a bus. I had just jumped in and took a seat beside the manager when the bell boy hopped on the step in the rear, and, holding up two telegrams, asked if there were a Connie Mack on the team. I grabbed the envelopes, and, as I started to read them, I purposely spread them out so my manager could eavesdrop and read the contents. One was from Frank Selee at Waltham offering me $12 a week. The other was from the New Britain team accepting my terms of $60 a month and board.

TWO OFFERS BY WIRE

Before we reached the grounds, the manager turned to me and said that he thought it was time to talk business. I had a hunch that I could not lose anything by waiting a little longer, so I replied:

"Suppose we let it go until after the game?"

It so happened that Hogan was in exceptionally good form in that game for he fanned 21 out of the 27 Yale men who faced him. That made his catcher look good and the Meriden manager lost no time "talking turkey" as he phrased it. He offered me $90 a month, without board, and I immediately accepted. Board was cheap in those days and paying it out of $90 a month was no hardship. It was a good salary at that time and I was the second highest paid on the team. Hogan received $100. But the others received from $40 to $50.

Ninety dollars a month looked like a fortune to me. I received only $15 a week in the shoe shop and had long hours to serve and no end of arduous toil to earn it.

Hogan, the pitcher, whose recommendation gave me my chance, had the misfortune to contract tuberculosis. After an illness of a month, he died in mid-season. It was a great blow to me, for I caught Hogan in East Brookfield, and we fully had planned to advance in baseball together and keep the home town battery intact.

Jack Campano, nephew of "Old Sport" Campano, famous heel-and-toe pedestrian, and Mickey Walsh, were signed to strengthen the pitching staff after Hogan's death.

I also had the distinction of catching a few games associated with Jumping Jack Jones, who won a big reputation in pitching at Yale, but who turned professional and won the deciding game that gave Louisville the pennant in 1883. Jones was one of the first college players to turn professional, and Yale resented it for a long time. Meriden paid Jones $50 a game to pitch a few of the more important games, and it proved a good investment. He was a pitcher of the highest rank and a fine gentleman, and he never fails to look me up today when the Athletics chance to be near him.

Why Not Stock Up At Current Cheap Prices?

—By B. C. FORBES—

THIS COLUMN is to direct attention to the opportunities now available to stock up at extraordinarily low prices.

It is inconceivable that these prices can go much lower, whereas there is every likelihood even certainly that they will by and by go distinctly higher. The turn in some of them may come so suddenly and drastically that those caught bare of supplies may find themselves seriously handicapped in competing with rivals exercising better judgment.

Mr. Forbes

CERTAIN COMMODITIES are actually selling at less than one-half their price of a year ago—raw sugar, rubber, coffee, for example.

WHEAT IS DOWN 38 per cent from this time last year. Cotton is down almost 41 per cent. Rye is down 43 per cent. Be is down almost 50 per cent. Flour 21½ per cent, cocoa 43 per cent. Butter and eggs likewise are cheaper.

Silk has fallen 42 per cent. Hides are down 28 per cent. Flaxseed is down 36 per cent.

Copper has tumbled no less than 38 per cent. Tin is down 34 per cent, zinc 36 per cent. Even steel billets have weakened almost 11½ per cent.

This table shows at a glance prices current this week as compared with one year ago:

	This Week	Year Ago	Change

IN THE DAYS when the common rule was for a business concern to be largely owned and run by one man, fortunes often were made by exercising foresight in contracting heavily for future deliveries of raw materials or finished goods when prices were abnormally low. Certain manufacturers and merchants, indeed, became famous for their ability to read the price outlook in their line of business.

As corporations took the place of firms, this practice of trying to gauge the future of prices became less common. Those who did not choose to anticipate dubbed the action of others as "gambling." More recently so-called buying from hand-to-mouth has become a generally-accepted policy.

IF CERTAIN of our old time individualists, men who proved extraordinarily successful, were at the helm today, one cannot imagine them being afraid to place generous contracts for future requirements at the bargain prices now ruling in various raw materials and other commodities. Whenever a commodity sinks below the cost of producing it, little risk is involved in stocking-up for future requirements. That many things are today bringing less than the average cost of creating them is not disputed.

SUCH OPPORTUNITIES as exist today for buying cheap do not come very often in a lifetime. The question each manufacturer, jobber, merchant trader, speculator should ask himself is:

"Do the chances strongly favor my making money by stocking-up now?"

Often inaction born of timidity proves less profitable than courageous action.

Nick Altrock Says:

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—The St. Louis baseball fans must be on the road with the Cards. Yesterday customers were so scarce in the stands that a good ghost story would have scared us. Greater New York is certainly the Belleau Woods of this year's pennant race. When the Cubs and Cards pull out of Brooklyn and the Bronx, they will know whether they are going home in a chariot or a hearse. The way the Cards have been shooting ahead lately, Gabby Street is a one-way thoroughfare. If he ever brings that pennant into St. Louis they will play to enormous crowds, because the St. Louis fans have certainly been saving their money all season.

HURLS NO-HIT GAME

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 11 (Special).—Sparks Braid, leading pitcher of the Clearfield City League, hurled the ball of fame by pitching a no-hit game against the New York Central team, winning, 6 to 0, yesterday.

Sport Vignettes

Cam Henderson, of Davis & Elkins, and Dike Beede, of Westminster, are the only college football coaches in this section who will work sans assistants this fall . . . Both believe that an assistant coach is in the way in handling a small college squad.

Huskies who competed in the recent A. A. U. meet at the Stadium, lost much poundage in the tough Decathlon event . . . Wilson Charles, the Indian, who won the championship, shed 12 pounds, and Harlow Rothert, Stanford giant, dropped 15 . . . Lou Persyni, the Westminster College entry, and Fred Pusch, of Grove City, knocked off 10 pounds each and hefty Jim Stewart, of the Los Angeles A. C., reduced from 187 to 175, losing most of his excess avoirdupois in the harrowing 1500-meter run, the final event.

Joe LaMark of Coraopolis, is slated to be the varsity quarterback for Chick Meehan's New York University Violet eleven this fall . . . He is a sophomore . . . A brother, Herman LaMark, a veteran on the squad, is another backfield candidate . . . Joe is a triple-threat man and the attack likely will be built around him . . . Lubs DiMeolo, Pitt's captain last year, is one of Meehan's coaching assistants.

Johnny Datto, the Filipino featherweight, of Cleveland, who boxes Joey Thomas at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight, is one of the hardest hitters in the division . . . He holds a one-round knockout victory over Cecil Payne, who recently defeated Battling Battalino, the world featherweight champion, twice in non-title bouts . . . Datto defeated Andre Routis shortly before the latter lost his crown to Battalino, and also has boxed, among others, Benny Bass, the junior-lightweight champion; Ernie Mandell, Phil Verde, Lew Massey, Tommy Paul, Chuck Feldman, Steve Nugent, Andy Martin, Johnny Helstein, Midget Mike O'Dowd, Billy Kowalik and Benny Gershe, most of whom he has flattened.

The Filipino was born in the Philippines in 1905 and began boxing 'round Los Angeles in 1925. His manager, Mose Donley, is a former lightweight boxer out of Cleveland.

Thomas himself is no slouch . . . He has met the best of them and holds a victory over Andy Martin, who made matters tough for Datto in a bout at Motor Square Garden a few seasons ago.—HARRY KECK.

Asks to Serve on Railroad Board

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—J. R. Nutt of Cleveland, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to serve as a director of the Cleveland and Youngstown Railroad, while holding a similar position on other Van Sweringen controlled railroads.

At the same time the commission received applications from O. P. Van Sweringen, Alva Bradley, Leonard P. Ayres and others for permission to serve as directors on the Trans-Mississippi Terminal Company's board.

Upward Trend in Electric Output

Production of electricity by electric light and power industry of the U. S. during the week ended September 6 was 1,623,531,000 kwh., according to National Electric Light Association. This is 2½ per cent lower than the like week of 1929, but about 9 per cent better than 1928. While last week's figures were a continuation of the decline of recent weeks, they represented the lowest percentage of decrease in the last month.

Railroad Places Equipment Orders

The Lehigh and New England Railroad has ordered 300 box cars and five caboose cars from Magor Car Company, six auxiliary locomotives from Bethlehem Steel Corporation and 3 heavy switching locomotives from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, according to Iron Age.

DROUGHT CUTS CROPS OF U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—AP—A prospective crop yield of 82.8 per cent of the average maintained between 1919 and 1928 is indicated in the Department of Agriculture's September forecast. This represented an 11.1 per cent reduction from the August 1 forecast.

The deterioration during August was credited to the drought by crop experts of the department.

Only 16 states are expected to yield crops above the 10-year average. New Jersey and New England, the report indicated, had sufficient rainfall to permit normal or increased crops.

Michigan with a percentage decrease of 13.6 per cent registered the greatest deterioration. Kentucky was second with 11.8 per cent, followed by Maryland with 11.5 per cent. Pennsylvania was fourth in highest deterioration.

Crops throughout the country were estimated as 12 per cent below the average for the last 10 years.

Union Carbide Buys Int. Auction Assets

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Officials of the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation today revealed that the company has acquired the assets, business and good will of the International Auction Company and affiliated companies, with producing plants at Newark, N. J., Verona, Pa., Parkville, Conn., Toledo, O., and Buffalo, N. Y.

The acquisition of these plants, the officials said, is in pursuance of the Carbide Corporation's policy of expediting delivery and reducing distribution by locating additional production facilities at growing points of consumption.

Boston Reserve Rate Unchanged

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Following a meeting of Federal Reserve Bank of Boston directors, no announcement was made regarding the rediscount rate, which is 3 per cent.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Ease — Local Trading Light

STOCK PRICES EASE, SALES FALL OFF

Sporadic Bidding Gives List Spotty Appearance; Operators Get Bearings

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—The still convalescent stock market required a breathing spell today, after the strenuous bullish efforts of the first half of the week had finally lifted the general level of prices over the rough places which wrecked the bull movement of July.

Although the market closed yesterday only a fraction above the peak of July 28 as measured by the index of 90 issues much liquidation had to be absorbed on the way and pool operators were anxious to get their bearings before starting further ambitious undertakings. Trading slumped and prices generally eased although sporadic bidding up of specialties gave the market a spotty appearance.

Such stocks as U. S. Steel American Can American Telephone General Electric New York Central Air Reduction and Johns Manville lost a point or more. Shares losing 2 to more than 5 included American Water Works Pacific Lighting Stone and Webster Gulf States Steel U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Allied Chemical. Case dropped more than 5. On the other hand Vanadium Foster Wheeler Gillette National Steel Coca Cola Safeway and Shattuck rose 2 to 3.

GRAINS AID SAG

The decline was probably influenced in part by the sag in the grain markets in response to the government's September 1 crop estimates. The corn crop estimate placed the crop at the lowest in years, but was about 50,000,000 bushels higher than several private estimates had indicated. The further slight rise in the estimate of wheat production sent most positions to around the lowest prices of the season. Selling of grains nevertheless was not in large volume, and as it failed to gain headway stocks manifested a better tone. Bears in stocks appeared none too sure of themselves.

Corporate news was on the whole mixed and inconclusive. Southern Railway after showing a heavy tone for a while, rallied briskly on declaration of the regular dividend. No reduction in the dividend was expected in informed quarters at this time, however, as it has been the road's practice to provide for dividends one year ahead, so the real uncertainty is over payment of dividends next year.

FAILURE DISCOUNTED

The failure of St. Paul Railroad to meet the full half yearly interest on its adjustments bonds was disappointing, but not unexpected. A payment of 1½ per cent. in place of 2½ per cent. has been largely discounted by the market for these liens. Several dividend omissions or reductions were announced. Calumet and Hecla decided to forego its quarterly payment altogether, after the recent reductions.

The money market indicated an increasing supply of funds. Call money renewed at 2½ per cent, but was soon available in the outside market at 2. Wall street has been intensely interested of late over possible changes in the program of the Federal Reserve System under the recently appointed chairman, Eugene Meyer, Jr. While nothing new in the way of official comment has been available, some observers in Wall street are expecting efforts to improve the market for real estate mortgages in hope of reviving building activity, still a decided sore spot in the business situation.

U. S.-CANADIAN TRADE LARGE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(AP.)—Canada led the world in foreign trade with the United States in July.

The commerce department announced today that United States exports to Canada for that month were $55,058,428 compared with $79,569,037 for July, 1929. Imports from Canada were $30,265,116 against $44,101,233.

The United Kingdom was second in exports and third in imports, with Japan taking second place in imports.

The following comparative figures were announced by the commerce department showing July exports compared with the same month last year and imports for the same period:

United Kingdom exports $40,627,631 against $56,891,334; imports $13,901,424 against $27,965,345.

Revenue Freight Loadings Report Reveals Third Consecutive Gain

This week's report on revenue freight loadings not only revealed the third consecutive increase but what was more important showed the total at a new peak for the year. The movement of freight over the country's railways in the week ended August 31 was the heaviest since last autumn. The total of cars loaded stood at 984,504, an increase of 45,993 cars over the previous week and 41,000 cars ahead of the previous peak figure for the year reached in the week ended May 3 at 943,000 cars. The current total is of course still 177,596 cars under the same week last year when the peak of the 1929 freight movement was being recorded. But it is interesting to note that miscellaneous freight loadings showed a gain of 17,762 cars over the week before supporting the belief that business is feeling its way out of the depths of the summer slump.

Experienced commodity observers in Wall Street were moved to take strong exception to figures appearing during the day placing the loss to corn growers due to drought damage as high as $1,500,000,0000. One commentator sought to prove the foregoing estimate far-fetched by citing statistics. A normal average corn crop he placed at 2,700,000,000 bushels. Then taking the meanest of the current low private estimates at 1,900,000,000 bushels, he fixed the indicated drop at 800,000,000 bushels, which, if valued at the recent high of close to a $1 a bushel, would indicate a loss of around $800,000,000. But nor, mally with wheat ruling around $1 a bushel, he fixed 75 cents as a fair value for corn, which would indicate a loss ranging around $600,000,000.

Naturally blue chip stocks are not as numerous on the list as last year, when peak prices were being reached. Stocks now selling above $200 a share include Allied Chemical and Dye American Tobacco B, American Telephone and Telegraph, Atchison, Diamond Match, Eastman, Ingersall Rand, Peoples Gas and Union Pacific. Some say a stock is in the blue chip class between $100 and $150 a share and in the white chip class when selling below $100 a share.

Various moves have been made recently by several of the large corporations to stimulate trade. If they are followed in other lines, material benefit in the coming months will result. Preparations have been made for expanding activities in October and November in a number of industries. One result will be a reduction in unemployment. It is realized that supplying work for as many persons as possible is one of the best ways to bring about a better demand from the ultimate consumer. Increased retail sales eventually must be reflected in the wholesale and manufacturing lines.

The market may pass through a critical period in October. Reports for the third quarter will be coming to hand and will be unsatisfactory in most instances because of the abnormal dullness in industry during the summer months. Of course should the market be moving ahead as a result of more encouraging business advices at that time, the earnings for the third quarter will be considered "water over the dam" and may not have as much influence as many now predict. Frequently the market has ignored news developments when a definite trend in either direction was on.

Strength in the copper stocks yesterday was ascribed to the disposition of traders to even up against anything in the nature of a surprise in the monthly statistics due to appear in the next few days. Gossip now has it that there is a possibility that the compilation may show a small drop in surplus refined stocks as of the end of August, which would be the first in more than a year. But it is believed blister stocks would show an offsetting gain. Last month blister stocks were slightly smaller, while refined stocks on hand were up moderately. Anaconda and Kennecott were the strong spots in the group.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The bulls lost some of their fervor on the curb market today. A resumption of yesterday's profit taking at the opening carried through the forenoon. Rallies but there was some encouragement for the cause of higher prices in the fact that trading turned dull on the decline.

REAL BUSINESS TREND HELD UPWARD

'High Levels of Last Few Years Will Be Dwarfed in Near Future'—Macauley

By MERRYLE S RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Sept. 10

Violent recent fluctuations in prices of securities have emphasized the unsuitability of common stocks for short term investment. Advocates of the purchase of stocks for investment, as opposed to speculation, stress the time element insisting that commitments be made for LONG terms.

Mr Rukeyser.

As the outstanding practitioner of investment in common shares T. B. Macaulay vice-president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is capable of ignoring the stock ticker. Unlike the savants in Wall Street he does not consider a good stock unattractive merely because it can be bought more cheaply than before.

In the face of the existing alternations of optimism and pessimism Mr. Macaulay who as head of Sun Life is the largest buyer of American common stocks, has gallantly stuck to his story that the outstanding corporations of the North American David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, says the business outlook of the company for the last half of 1930 is considerably improved over the earlier months of the year.

D. S. Dunn, president of the Pedlar & Ryan Works of Detroit, Mich., said that so far as we can judge from the orders and inquiries received, conditions in this country appear to have reached the extreme low during the month of July and that it is now headed upward. He said the company had a fair increase in sales business in August and a further increase so far in September.

Roy Carroll, Jr., president of the Carroll-Porter Investment Company, has returned from a business trip through the Middle West. He reported that business in the territory visited by him was showing a steady improvement.

Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler Corporation, has returned from a business trip to the Pacific Coast. He reported that business conditions in the territory visited by him were showing a steady improvement.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, has returned from a business trip to the Pacific Coast. He reported that business conditions in the territory visited by him were showing a steady improvement.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has returned from a business trip to the Pacific Coast. He reported that business conditions in the territory visited by him were showing a steady improvement.

Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., has returned from a business trip to the Pacific Coast. He reported that business conditions in the territory visited by him were showing a steady improvement.

Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Business Machines Corporation, has returned from a business trip to the Pacific Coast. He reported that business conditions in the territory visited by him were showing a steady improvement.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, has returned from a business trip to the Pacific Coast. He reported that business conditions in the territory visited by him were showing a steady improvement.

PROSPERITY SEEN

He said:

"It is possible to exaggerate the importance of the present so-called depression and in thinking of the immediate present to fail to realize the real trend of developments. A study of the censuses which have been taken during the last few decades would show that there has been a great increase in population, wealth and business that creates prosperity. During every one of these decades there have been depressions.

"People talk depressions because their vision is too narrow. If they will take a broader vision, they will appreciate the stupendous rise that is truly amazing. The movement upward has not stopped. It is going to continue and in the not very distant future. Even the great level of the last few years will seem low in the not distant future. The trend is upward and we must have a vision of what is really happening. The fluctuations that we must go through have no more relation to real prosperity than have the tides to the great depths of the ocean. The underlying principles of prosperity—the real prosperity of the continent—is apparent to all who will think."

Mr. Macaulay described the future of economic America as being like the teeth of a saw, but insisted that the saw must be pointed upward.

Lest the marginal trader misunderstand Mr. Macaulay's viewpoint, it should be explained that Mr. Macaulay's investment philosophy, not unlike George F. Baker's, is to buy good securities and never sell. On the other hand, the marginal speculator, not especially concerned with the long pull, is forced to sell whenever temporary dips weaken his equity in a marginal account.

FOUNDATION LAID

Mr. Macaulay:

"Undue and unreasoned optimism brought about the great speculation of last year and in consequence prices rose to abnormal heights and caused the present reaction. Reasoned optimism will give us real confidence and there are already indications that this reasoned optimism is waiting to burst through. The present period is merely a breathing spell and the foundation is being laid for the future."

Mr. Macaulay asked what caused fluctuations and answered:

"They are home-made, psychological and caused by unreasoning optimism and unreasoning pessimism."

Coming to the stock market, Mr. Macaulay alluded to the alleged truism that the public buys at the top and sells at the bottom. As an instance, he pointed out that, during the last two years people were buying public utility stocks on margin and were glad to pay any price for them. Today, he said, the same stocks are just as good as ever, but the public refuses to buy them. In his opinion, the present is the time to buy, but not to speculate.

Having last year invested more than half the resources of the life insurance company in selected high grade stocks, Mr. Macaulay has built up an organization for scientifically appraising common stock values. He has proven an outstanding investor, though he has not been infallible. His merit lies in the fact that he does his own thinking, and does not blindly follow the crowd, whose capricious views are daily reflected on the stock ticker.

Oklahoma Oil Proration Plan Under Attack

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 11.—A generous stream of oil continued to flow today through the single menacing leak in the Mid-Continent's conservation structure while justices of the Oklahoma Supreme Court pondered what their ruling will be in a case attacking the state's right to compel proration—the mutual agreement of producers not to produce.

Arguments pro and con were laid before the court by attorney for the state and for the C. C. Julian Oil and Royalties Company. The Julian concern, which only recently entered the Oklahoma City gusher field from the Pacific Coast, sought to have made permanent a temporary writ of prohibition obtained two weeks ago, preventing the State Corporation Commission from interfering with the company's new found gushers.

Pending a formal ruling, the temporary writ remains in force, the court decided. Final decision is likely at the end of two weeks.

So, Julian, who contends proration is price fixing, out of the domain of the corporation commission's authority to prevent waste, produced his wells "on the line" while prorating operators on nearby leases waited and wondered apprehensively.

Oil Men Apprehensive

How seriously the matter is regarded was pointed out at the hearing by a conservation authority, C. B. Ames, Texas Company counsel, who assisted the state's attorney general in pleading for immediate dissolution of the temporary writ. Ames said that if the commission's right to enforce proration orders will be found invalid, the ruling would wreck the entire proration program in the United States, which Oklahoma inaugurated.

At the same time, he said, the flood of oil resulting from wide open production here and in other pools would destroy the already shaky crude market.

The argument that the commission is exceeding its authority in issuing and enforcing proration orders came from John Head, Julian counsel in chief. Head went even further and charged the Oklahoma conservation act is unconstitutional. He said the commission "has no right to tell me how I shall handle my private property or how much I shall get for it."

Charges Plan is Unfair

Head said the whole scheme was unfair to independent operators, that it resulted in price fixing, and that pools were prorated in uneven fashion.

The commission's authority was defended by state and associated counsel "so that no man will get more than his share out of a common pool." W. T. Z. Terman, Skelly Oil Company counsel, said that "if the state is powerless to prorate production it is powerless to prevent physical waste."

"If one operator has 50 wells producing 10,000 barrels each and has facilities for piping the oil, it would not be fair to allow him to produce the oil from the common pool while the other operators could not."

One of the chief Julian contentions is that the company is exempt from proration agreements because it has its own pipe line, refinery and retail marketing structure. Proration percentages largely are based on the capacity of pipelines and market conditions.

Public Interest Questioned

A dismal picture of what would happen in the Oklahoma City "wonder pool" should it be opened wide was put into words by W. L. Murphy, assistant state's attorney general. Murphy said great waste would result because there wouldn't be land enough to build storage.

Oil men estimate the gusher pool here has a potential production far greater than the total output at present of all fields in Oklahoma.

Julian's counsel told the court that the commission used "preventing economic waste" as a ruse for something not within its legal power to regulate. He argued that the masses would benefit most from the low prices that would follow open flow from flush oil fields—if there is a public interest in oil production.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'As Shakespeare Says'

Joe Perkins came hurriedly around the corner of the club house, passing between the big elm and the stone embankment, when Nick Weymouth thrust out his foot and Joe tripped.

He fell to one knee and left a green stain on his white flannels.

The half dozen lounging under the elm laughed heartily.

"What's the idea, Nick?" Perk asked.

"My error, Perk," as Shakespeare says. Merely a foot pass." There was more laughter as Perk hurried on to the lockers.

Perk was sore. Nick Weymouth was considered to be the life of every party as well as the local wit and general wise-cracking fair-haired boy of their group.

Perk couldn't very well pick a fight. Nick could protest that it was all an accident and it would make him look even worse in the eyes of Della Haynes.

Perk gritted his teeth. The way he had sprawled on one knee had caused Della to laugh with the others—it had made him seem to be an awkward boob and it added one more grain of reputation to Nick's genius as a jolly fun-maker.

Both Joe Perkins and Nick Weymouth knew well enough that all of their friends—especially the members of their country club were well aware that there seemed to be a race between them for the hand of Della Haynes.

Some of the more shrewd ones had put up a few bets. These mostly favored Nick because he was one of those easy-going, amusing chaps always at home in any place, always ready for a bright answer and forever playing little jokes that brought laughs.

Joe Perkins was slower, more sedate and not very quick at making snappy comebacks to anything that might be said. More than that, Joe's real estate business seemed to be slow and old-fashioned. It was still in the musty old offices where his grandfather had established it.

Nick Weymouth had opened up a flashy ground floor office with classy split-reed furniture, cheerful little house models, interesting framed photographs and plenty of new development maps.

Mean Trick

"Della," said one of her friends, "would be silly to marry such a dead one as Joe when she can have Nick by just crooking her little finger. He's smart and he'll be a rich man before long."

"Depends on how Della feels about it," another friend commented. "No telling what a girl thinks about a young man."

But whatever Della thought about it she kept to herself. Neither Joe nor Nick was at all sure of himself. Joe hoped he'd win her. Nick, who had a great bump of ego, believed that she couldn't really resist him.

At the weekly hop that night Della came with her married sister because Joe and Nick had happened to ask her at the same time that afternoon on the tennis court to go.

If Della could decide which invitation to accept she preferred not to let them know that she could.

Around the punch bowl, which contained just enough "kick" in the grape juice to make it interesting, Nick pretended that someone had jogged his elbow. He spilled a glass of the purple liquid over Joe's white silk shirt and white doeskin trousers.

"Sorry—sorry and all that sort of rot, Joe," Nick said, hurriedly. "some awkward cuss bumped into me," he pretended to try to wipe out the stain with a handkerchief. "As Shakespeare says, 'Out, damned spot!'"

"Why didn't you sock him one, Joe?" his friend Barton asked.

"It would have made matters worse. I knew he did it purposely, but he could claim it was an accident and Doc Frisbee was there, he's chairman of the membership committee and could have fired me out of the club for starting a fight."

"You think of everything, Joe—I'd have socked him first."

Just before the 12 o'clock good night dance Joe asked Della if she would go along home in his car.

"Why—er—"

Nick stepped around from back of the screen that hid the punch bowl.

Leaves Dance

"To late, Perky, too late—Dell is going home with me—you had a swell idea all right but, as Shakespeare says, your forethought comes hindmost!"

Nick said it loud enough for a number of their friends to hear. There was more laughter.

Joe was so sore that he went out and drove home. Della would have the last dance with Nick, naturally, since he was to take her home.

And so it had been going, for nearly a year.

Joe wasn't the only victim of Nick's wise-cracks, but because he was a rival for Della, he was the butt of most of Nick's more or less practical jokes, and usually at a moment when Della could see Joe's confusion and Nick's ready wit.

There was the time that Nick had a fake message sent to Joe that took him speeding over to the next town on a fool's errand.

While he was over there Nick met John Jerrold at the train and before Joe could get back Nick had sold Jerrold the old Swaine site for the town's new movie palace. Nick had wired Jerrold that a rival was coming next day. Jerrold had really been Joe's customer for that lot.

At Sill's pool room that night Nick told about it with great gusto.

Well, well—too bad you couldn't have been home, Joe, when Jerrold came. Of course, with you gone I had to take care of him—and the twenty-five hundred commission isn't going to make me bust out crying," Nick boasted.

Joe scowled at him.

You should stick to business, Joe," during business hours," Nick went on, "for, as Shakespeare says, A stitch in time gathers no moss."

Nick put a big sign out on this lot he had sold, announcing that he had sold it, and calling himself

"The only live-wire realtor."

Della had promised Joe to go with him to the club's mid-Summer costume ball, and he was counting on it. He was also determined to keep his eyes on Nick Weymouth and not let him get within reaching distance of him to play his silly pranks.

A crowd of the club members were watching the finals in some tennis practice when Nick arrived and found Joe sitting beside Della.

Buys More Land

After about ten minutes Nick began to get nervous. He wanted the spot light, as usual.

"Hey, Joe," he called. "I hear that old Mose Wentworth sold you his marshland and dumps down by the freight tracks."

"Your ears are not ornamental but they're all right to hear with," Joe retorted. It was seldom he went so far as that in repartee, but he was feeling pretty good just then.

"Well sir, old Mose made you pay cash, I hear."

Joe didn't answer. Nick laughed derisively.

"Know what? Old Mose offered to give it to me if I'd pay up the back taxes on it but I told him to be himself—he must have taken me for the sucker, well Joe, as Shakespeare says, if it wasn't for you suckers we wise lads would have to go to work."

Joe was looking forward to the mid-summer costume ball, with Della.

Nick was sore but never let on. To a few friends he intimated that he would be the fair-haired lad to take Della.

They were doing card tricks and other stunts in the back room of Sill's pool room late on the Saturday before the big event at the club. Joe hadn't been over at the club that afternoon, he had been extremely busy, but he dropped in at Sill's place just in time to hear Nick doing some boasting.

"I think," he was saying, "that since Joe was such a sucker as to buy that bog and dump from old Mos, I can sell him the adjoining 10 acres that was wished on me in a trade. It isn't fit for gardening, it has no lumber, it's wet and away off and not worth a penny—looks like Joe is just the sort of sap to gobble it up."

"I am," Joe said, surprising the bunch in the back room.

Nick never turned a hair.

"All right, I'll let you have the 10 acres at $10 an acre, Joe," he said.

"I'm paying five an acre for that land down there," Joe said.

"You've bought it—right now," Nick cried, giving everyone a wink. Joe gave him the $50 and took a witnessed receipt for the land.

Nick Gets Angry

Later they got to doing more tricks and Nick was showing how magicians got out of being roped to a chair. It looked easy as he did it. One of the boys, secretly tipped by Nick, let Joe try it. They then walked away, one by one, and left him.

Nick drove over and got Della.

"Joe just made a real estate deal, Della, and he's tied up, no telling when he'll be able to get away," he explained.

So Nick took Della over. He took pains to tell all his friends that it was his big day, as he had unloaded some punk real estate on Joe, tied him up, and taken his girl.

They were having a great laugh at intermission when Joe appeared. He was dressed as a Friar. Nick was in white satin as a cavalier.

"Hello, my dear friend," Joe cried, slapping Nick on the back and leaving a handful of black oil running down his back, "have a drink on me," and he pulled a wide-mouthed bottle from under his robe and accidentally spilled red ink down the front of Nick.

"Shake, old pal," Joe went on.

Nick began to see red as the crowd roared and he let swing at Joe. Joe ducked and socked him on the jaw. When Nick got to his feet Joe handcuffed him to the rail of the verenda.

"By the way, folks," Joe said, "the Trueward Auto Company is putting it's plant up in our town, they'll employ six thousand workmen. I've sold them the land for their factory—land I bought from Mose Wentworth and Mr. Smart-Aleck Nick Weymouth here, who is really too-tied up to enjoy the rest of the party."

Joe turned to Della.

"Come on," he said, "we've got to dance and celebrate the thirty-five thousand dollar profit I just made."

Joe turned to Nick again.

"Sorry" he said, "so sorry and all that sort of rot, you know. As Shakespeare says, there's no fool like a fair-haired village cut-up."

A condemned murderer has asked the Governor for a pardon in a 10,000-word petition written in verse.

It might be a good idea to pardon him for the murder, but hang him for the poetry.

Said company, according to Brassiere, caused him great humiliation, acute apoplexy and chronic hysteria by publicly suing him for plagiarism.

Jails Are Unfit Places For Cases of Insanity

An investigation of insane asylums in Western Pennsylvania, made by the Sun-Telegraph several months ago, disclosed one in which patients were sleeping in corridors and another in which they were herded together in double-deck beds in dormitories as closely as if they were sheep instead of human beings.

But Dr. William C. Sandy, director of the Bureau of Mental Health, State Department of Welfare, calls attention to an even worse condition. He reports that in some parts of Pennsylvania facilities for taking care of mental cases are so poor that patients are temporarily confined in jails. This smacks of the days when sufferers from insanity were thought to be possessed by devils and to need punishment.

Dr. Sandy, deploring the practice, suggests that general hospitals set aside sections or beds for the temporary care of mental patients pending their commitment to asylums or for their treatment if they do not require commitment. This would not only be a good thing for the patients, but would afford a needed opportunity for the training of internes and nurses in the field of mental health.

The Legislature at its session next winter should consider the needs of Pennsylvania's psychopathic sufferers. Many voters disapproved the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue for the enlargement of Pennsylvania's system of welfare institutions only because they were given to understand that such needs could be met from current revenues. They will be disappointed to learn that conditions are still so bad. Revelations concerning the deficiency of accommodations for mental patients indicate the need for prompt legislative action.

Jurors Should Remember They Have Taken an Oath

Those who advocate the abandonment of the jury system of trying criminals will be strengthened in their position by the action of a jury in Criminal Court Tuesday who acquitted a man accused of maintaining a gambling machine. According to Judge W. H. McNaugher, the defendant was clearly guilty and on the witness stand had admitted his guilt.

Such cases emphasize the necessity of impressing on jurors that they have taken an oath to find a verdict according to the law and the evidence, not according to their sympathies and prejudices. Jurors are not concerned with the punishment that is meted out to convicted criminals.

A citizen opposed to the death penalty might, with clear conscience, find a verdict of guilty in a case in which the punishment would be execution; for the responsibility for the punishment would not be his—all that he was asked to do was to answer whether or not the defendant was guilty as charged in the indictment. For him to let his feelings influence his answer to this question might with justice render him liable to the charge that he had been false to his oath.

It is hardly too much to say that jurors who acquit defendants whom they know to be guilty, or vice versa, are forsworn.

Grange in Rebellion Against Prohibition

The Pennsylvania Grange has been as dry as the W. C. T. U. Again and again this secret society of farmers and their wives has shown itself uncompromisingly in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act. The revolt of the Cambria County Pomona Grange is therefore deeply significant. It probably is a straw showing how the wind is blowing in the rural regions in respect to prohibition.

The Cambria County Grange passed a resolution calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Thereupon it was warned that it was courting trouble with the state organization and given an opportunity to reconsider. A motion to rescind was presented at a meeting Monday night, but defeated by a vote of more than five to one. In consequence E. B. Dorsett, master of the State Grange, has suspended the Cambria County Grange's charter.

Well aware of the opposition to Volsteadism in the cities, the drys have counted on the rural regions for support for their enforcement program. If the farmers turn against the Eighteenth Amendment, the jig is up, and prohibition doomed.

Free Transportation For School Children

The Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg released today a report that is of special interest at this time because of the strike of certain school children in Allegheny County who are absenting themselves from their classes in protest, among other things, against the distance they are compelled to walk to school. The report deals with the money expended during the last school year in providing free transportation for Pennsylvania's rural school children.

In Allegheny County $95,184 was spent for this purpose. There was only one other county (Bradford) in which the expenditure was larger.

By providing buses and horse-drawn vehicles or by paying the pupils' railroad or trolley fare the school authorities are making it possible to do away with the little one-room country schools and establish large, centrally located, consolidated schools. Free transportation is provided in many cases for pupils whose homes are two miles or more from the nearest school in the district.

When these advantages are considered, and then thought is given to the country school children of a generation or two ago, who trudged miles to school every day in every sort of weather, without thought of complaining, there is less tendency to sympathize with the pupils who are on strike.

Time to Get Back to Work -:- By Nelson Harding

We think Prosperity has had
An overlong vacation,
And should be getting back to work
Without much hesitation.

For several months it's loafed around
And lapsed into stagnation,
But now it's time to hurry back
With renewed animation.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

All living individuals are being thus tested in every moment of their lives by little trials that may or may not put them aside among the "rejects" of life.

With man, mouse, cat or bacterium, goes so much distinctive germ-plasm to pull through or to be wiped off forever from the possibility of further development, according to their individual reactions.

H. G. Wells

Drosophila keeps on throwing mutations with striking effects; often the same one is repeated again and again, yet they are scarcely ever found in nature—the reduced vigor which they entail leads to their automatic elimination. They fail at the Natural Selection entrance tests.

Per contra, the absence of selection will allow types to persist and spread which normally are kept down to a minimum. Black rabbits and their black color is due to a single recessive mutation are not uncommon, as a natural "sport." In most places but few are found. They arrest the gunners' interest, and are easier marks; as a result their numbers are kept down to a low level.

But in some parks in England where no shooting is allowed, black rabbits are unusually numerous. Since the larger birds and beasts of prey have been exterminated in England, the gun is the main agent of selection; and this is here absent. Again, the imported rabbits which were turned out or escaped in New Zealand were of all possible coat colors; and these survive in the large wild warrens which they have established, giving them a strange appearance. New Zealand possesses no land mammals to prey upon rabbits, and very few enemies of any other type.

Rabbits are killed off as vermin by poison and other wholesale methods. It is safe to prophesy that if such a parti-colored population were turned out in Europe, the percentage of greys in it would rapidly increase; it is the absence of any selective need for a coat of invisibility which allows the other types to persist in New Zealand.

On the Galapagos Islands the traveler, so Beebe assures us, can tell without any trouble which birds are resident and which are migrants; the migrants are all as shy as are the run of birds in inhabited countries, while the residents have no fear of man.

If the migrants had no fear of man, they would (alas for human nature!) have been exterminated in the inhabited countries. Thus favorable and unfavorable are often relative terms. What is favorable enough on a desert island would not pass muster elsewhere.

The preservation of "unfavorable" varieties is seen most obviously in domestic animals and plants. It tickles our fancy to conserve hairless lapdogs and pouter pigeons, albino rabbits and double-tailed goldfish; it pays us to breed impossibly large bulls and pigs that can scarcely wabble; it delights us to have double flowers, even though they be sterile.

We alter the incidence of selection, we pet what the natural process destroys, and these types, which could not for a generation hold their own in nature, are made to abound and multiply.

As an illuminating example of the way in which mutation and selection co-operate we may consider the feet of water-birds.

The Dipper is a water-bird, but with no special adaptations of structure to aquatic life. It is kept a water-bird by its instincts. However, if a mutation for webbing or lobing of the toes were to appear in the dipper stock, it is difficult to believe that it would not be fixed there by selection.

This indeed seems to have happened among the wading birds (Limicolae). Most of these can swim, though without a trace of webbed feet; and this faculty must often serve them well in getting across deep channels or securing a tit-bit otherwise out of reach.

The Phalaropes are birds of this sub-order, but in them broad lobes are developed on the toes, making it possible for them to swim much more efficiently, and indeed to pass whole months on the open ocean. In them, the needed mutations have cropped up. Incipient webbing has also repeatedly appeared as a mutation in domestic fowls and pigeons.

But as they do not normally swim, it is of no use to them; whereas as waders were already in the habit of swimming, webbing or lobing could be at once seized upon by selection.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Snoopers

A school for prohibition agents has been dedicated and launched in Washington, a city that is the root of all amendments.

Bugs Baer.

The boys will study hard and stagger only during recess.

There is plenty of hoochbooting in the District of Coslumberia. The boys used to patter in and out of the little rum resorts operated freely and openly under government license.

But now, the convivial scouts must roll their own in the crannies and nooks of the hospitable Blue Ridge. And they do so with a dexterity born of long practice.

A drink of Virginia or Maryland moonshine is powerful enough to shatter the glass in a thousand lorgnettes.

The agents in the school of prohibition fandangoes are instructed to read Sherlock Holmes and other great detectives who couldn't find a crate of hens in a telephone booth and who couldn't get a drink of milk if the cow had the chimes of Normandy around her neck.

They couldn't detect a mule in a mortar bed nor find the footprints of an army of flatfooted veterans marching across a parade ground paved with lemon meringue pies.

Yet, our prohibition enforcement students are supposed to cram and stoke up on the great fiction hawks and then gallop catercorneded through a rebus of misinformation.

When a suspect is very suspicious we are informed that boys should be used as shadows. They are going to teach the young idea to snoop.

Won't it be great when a proud daddy looks at his infant son in the cradle and says, "Ain't he a great little snooper? He just kicked the nurse in the face because he smelled perfume on her breath, broke a bottle of medicinal liquor in the doctor's bag and refused his milk because the cow had been eating corn. Even the cabinet is glad that he cannot talk yet."

When that baby becomes a boy of six he will not go into school. He will educate himself by looking through the keyhole.

At the age of 12 he will track feeble old men to their lairs and prove that the yellow stains on their beards are not egg.

He will engage in the playful games of childhood outside a suspected speakeasy and when he has sufficient evidence he will take lessons on the police whistle instead of the violin.

THE NEW MECHANICS

By Archibald Henderson

Each decade in the past forty years has been characterized by some epochal and revolutionary physical theory. The electron theory marked the closing decade of the last century. The theory of relativity had its rise in the first decade of the present century. The quantum theory is associated with the second decade. The third decade has been signalized by the recognition of the undulant nature of matter. Material waves have been found to exist, thus placing the science of mechanics on an entirely new foundation.

When Einstein in 1905 introduced the conception of light quanta, he registered a return to the former corpuscular theory of light which had long been abandoned. In 1923 Arthur H. Compton made a discovery of what has been termed by physicists the Compton effect. It is revealed by the fact that, when X-rays are scattered by atoms, they experience an increase in their wavelength, which is independent of the wavelength, and only depends on the angle of scattering. Compton was able to show that, when collisions take place between light quanta and electrons, both the law of the conservation of energy and the principle of the conservation of momentum are satisfied, provided one attributes to every light quantum such a quantity of momentum that, when it is multiplied by the wavelength, the elementary quantum of action results.

Important conclusions likewise were drawn from two of Einstein's crucial tests of the theory of relativity; the deflection of light rays in a gravitational field and the displacement of spectral lines toward the red. It was concluded that light quanta possess not only inertial but also gravitational mass. This the corpuscular theory of light attributed to light the essential properties of matter; discontinuous structure, inertia and weight. In view of these conclusions, it was only natural to endow matter with that attribute which primarily characterizes light, namely, its wave nature.

As Arthur Haas says in The New Physics: Space is filled with electro-magnetic waves of all possible frequencies. The new physics reveals a picture of nature of great simplicity. Actually it is not nature that is complicated, but only the bath that leads to the true knowledge of nature.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

That curious wistfulness that begins when you're about twenty-seven . . . that feeling that life has somehow gone flat.

Of course you hide it fiercely. You're determined that no one shall guess that everything isn't jake. You deliberately seek out younger friends, make more whoopee, wear brighter colors.

But the old kick doesn't come back. Life has changed somehow. Things that made you laugh your head off a couple of years ago bore you now. Things that burned you up with excitement hardly stir you. And you're gripped by a secret terror. Is this all there is to life? Is the fun going to fizzle out before you've hardly started? Does this happen to every one, or is there something wrong with you?

Stop worrying! There's nothing wrong with you. This does happen to every one, and it's quite natural that it should. Life isn't fizzling out—you're just growing up, that's all. Did you think the razzle-dazzle would last forever? It won't. It can't. You'd be as unnatural as a two-headed calf if it did.

Want to see some people who don't feel this flatness, who feel the same thrills at 60 which they felt at 16, who giggle just as much, raise just as much whoopee? They do exist. They can easily be found. At the insane asylum. Joking? Not a bit of it. Those people are living as you think you'd like to live. They're really staying young. Like it? Of course you don't! Then stop your wheezing and be your age!

Changed? Of course you've changed. You've been changing since your first yawp. And what would life have been worth if you hadn't changed? Suppose you'd gone on drooling and guggugging at 20 as you did at 2? Not so pretty—huh? You'll admit that it was highly necessary for you to change between 2 and 20. Well, it's just as necessary to change between 20 and 30—just as necessary to cut out your 20-year-old drool as your 2-year-old.

Nineteen hundred years ago, a wise old saint had words to say on that subject. "When I was a child," wrote St. Paul, "I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things."

Life isn't fizzling out at 27; it's simply trying to put away your "childish things." Trying to take away your giggles and gasps and gulps and make you take your place in the grown-up world. Will that grown-up world ever be as carefree and merry and exciting as the world of youth? No it won't. That's over. No really grown-up life is free from worry. No grown-up life is 100 per cent happy. No grown-up life is easy or comfortable or safe or very amusing. And no amount of fooling or fretting will make it so. You may kid yourself into thinking you're a frolicsome lad or lass at 30, but you can't kid Life. She has your number. She knows your baby days are over. And if you want to keep bleating about it and trying to regain that lost rapture, YOU'LL BE OVER, TOO. For life goes ahead and if you won't go with her, that's just your bad luck. She'll leave you behind, like a fractious child, playing with your broken toys and waiting for the games to begin again—which they never will.

But if you have the courage to go ahead with life—if you're willing to "put away childish things" and risk the big adventure of Being a Man, then Life will make a partner of you and give you a pride and power, and sometimes a glimpse of peace, which no child can ever know.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Some of the niftiest wise cracks has been made by kids and crazy people, showing what a nervous strain it is to be a humorist. Well, at an insane asylum there was a smart guy that was always putting over a fast one. One time he was working on a new building on the grounds, and he was one of the hod-carriers. The foreman seen that this guy's hod was turned upside down on the handle, and nailed that way.

"What you been doing to your hod, Gus?" he says, "Ain't that thing upside down?"

"Sure," says Gus. "It was right side up, like the ones the other boys have, but then somebody was always putting bricks or mortar in it, so I thought I'd rather have it this way, although it don't look quite so good."

Poetry

Words are not poetry unless
They stir some thought that sings,
And touch the sudden tenderness
Dear, half-forgotten strings.
Deep in the mind, then, muted joys,
Again give forth their sweets
In spite of all the years' alloys
Of trials and defeats.

Words are not poetry unless
They open vistas new,
And by their melodies express
Dreams which may yet be true;
Soft-syllabled enchantments lie
In lovely lines that hold
The promise and the mystery
Of poetry's rare gold.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Manhattan has scores of luncheons and dinners daily to which reporters are invited and for which free table and free food are provided. They are not asked for credentials. They merely name their paper and live like a lord and a couple of dukes.

Out of this looseness was spawned a cadging army of meal grabbers who may partake of two meals a day with fat Havanas and perhaps cocktails, wine and highballs without cost. Most of the fakers wear horn-rimmed glasses to furnish the "literary look."

Such "cheaters" with clear glass may be purchased for 50 cents from East Side push carts. The pseudo-press men carry sheafs of copy paper and stub pencils—no reporter carries a full sized pencil—to complete the camouflage. If suspected and questioned they represent "a chain of Jersey papers."

Thanks to financial flapdoodle, reporters are invariably believed to be starved and dressed shabbily. The truth is the Fourth Estate as a class dresses better than bankers. Where were we? O, yes! A reporter, fake or the goods, is always sure of a merry mitt in this era of publicity frenzy.

Theaters are the only institutions to go after such gate crashers rough shod. It used to be anyone could call up and announce he was the correspondent of a western paper and "two down front" would be left at the box office. It cost them a quarter of a million a year.

Al Woods, a good tough bozo, tricked several rascals and had them jailed. Other theaters followed his lead. Today no theater accommodates telephone callers—unless the press agent knows the voice or calls back for verification. Grafting passes is now a dangerous sport.

When the keeper arrived he instructed: "Bring all information about Mr. (naming the visitor) and his private life. The publisher was bluffing, but the gentleman departed in confusion. And most of us would make the same galloping exit. Indeed, I would reach the sidewalk in nothing flat with a window frame dangling around my neck.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You wish you might be more diplomatic.

Instead you are too frequently frustrating your own plans, by saying the wrong thing, or giving way to your emotions.

You like to assert your opinions and are quick to resent opposition—thinking it reflects unfavorably on yourself.

In other words, your ego is to the front, when a desire to say and do just the right thing should predominate.

You like to be yourself regardless of how it affects others.

You don't want the other fellow to think that he can outwit you.

You won't give him the satisfaction of agreeing with him and yet you find that it might have been better if you had said less, and said it more tactfully.

It is too bad that you have to have a few failures to make you keep yourself and your opinions more in the background.

Your love of self-gratification balks many of your efforts.

To sum it up you want the spot light.

Diplomats keep the light off themselves—they can learn more, and know enough to keep their own counsel.

They desire the end as it should be, more than personal satisfaction.
